School census to determine future needs

To aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs, School Dist. 21 will conduct a census of all residents between Oct. 15 and 31.

The door-to-door canvassing will be done by PTA members in each school attendance area.

The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey is designed to give administrators data to plan for future needs.

"From 1963 on, we had a pretty good idea of what kind of kids we'd get from each kind of residence," said Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill. "All those indicators are shot now because of the drop in the birth rate and the change in building from mainly single-family to multiple-family dwellings."

GILL SAID the increased spread in prices of homes in Dist. 21 has also had an effect on enrollments. There are more families with expensive homes who have older children.

Assistant Supt. John Barger said in 1963 there were three times as many kindergarten children as eighth grade students in the district. Today, he said, there is an almost even distribution.

The survey is also intended to identify students in the district who have special educational needs. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental and physical handicaps, the survey will also reveal the number of students who need bilingual instruction.

After the survey is completed, Gill said, it will probably take about a month to compile the results. A report will be presented to the school board as soon as possible, he said. High Schools in the Dist. 21 area will also receive copies of the report.

QUESTIONS INCLUDED in the survey are:

- Type of dwelling (single-family detached, single-family attached, such as townhouse or quadhome).

- Number and age of children in the residence, the school each attends and any handicaps.

- If there are no children under 19 in the residence, the number and age of persons under and over 35.

- Languages other than English spoken in the home.

- Number of years lived in the district.

Besides the numerical data, the survey also asks for each resident's opinion of schools in the district. Residents will be asked to state if they are well pleased, satisfied, dissatisfied or have no opinion of elementary, junior high and high school instruction.

Gill said if it appears that a large number of residents are unhappy with schools in the district, a followup will be made to find out why and what can be done to correct the problem.

REMODELING WORK IS proceeding rapidly on DoDo's Dogs, a proposed hotdog stand at 636 N. Milwaukee Ave. Developers of the hotdog stand, however, have not yet been granted a special use permit required for all restaurant operations. The stand is being developed by former trustee Michael Valenza and Vern Nystrom, chairman of the police and fire commission.

Hotdog stand remodeling begins without legal permit

Major remodeling of DoDo's Dogs Inc., a proposed hotdog stand at 636 N. Milwaukee Ave., is substantially under way although a special-use permit required for all restaurant operations has not yet been granted by the village.

The hotdog stand is being developed by former trustee Michael Valenza and Vern Nystrom, chairman of the village's police and fire commission.

For the past several weeks, The Herald has received complaints that remodeling was taking place although no building permit had been issued for the hotdog stand.

Several weeks ago, Building Director Bill Bleber said no building permit was required for remodeling that did not affect the building's structure. He also said no building permit could be issued for the restaurant until the special use permit was approved by the village.

AT THAT TIME, Bleber explained that the building permit form requires applicants to state the use of their building. He said that if the proposed use requires either zoning changes or a special use permit, he could not grant a building permit until those requirements were met.

Monday, however, Bleber granted a building permit for the "complete renovation" of the building. He told The Herald yesterday he was forced to grant the permit because of the wording on the permit application.

In applying for the building permit, Valenza and Nystrom stated that the building will be used for "retail sales." This use is allowed under current zoning without a special-use permit. They made no mention of a restaurant on the building application.

MOREOVER, Bleber said a letter from Valenza and Nystrom dated Aug. 28 states that the building will be used for retail sales if a special use permit is not granted. "In the event the special use is not granted, then we will utilize the building for one of the uses already established in the B-4 business district," Bleber read from the letter.

"I have to issue the permit, especially with the type of letter they gave me," Bleber said. "Under retail sales under B-4 they are entitled to a permit."

Valenza and Nystrom are scheduled to appear before the zoning board at 8 p.m. Oct. 2 for a public hearing on the special use permit. Recommendations from the zoning board will then be forwarded to the village board, which must grant final approval.

Planners to review The Forums plans

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight will review preliminary plans for The Forums, a 150-unit apartment condominium project on Elmhurst Road just north of Pleasant Run Drive.

The condominiums, being developed by V. B. Smigel and Associates Inc., are proposed for 10 acres just west of the Pleasant Run condominium development. Plans call for several three-story buildings housing a mixture of one, two and three-bedroom condominiums.

The plan commission will also review a proposed industrial subdivision on Twelfth Street north of Dundee Road. The subdivision is being requested by Martin Metals Co.

Plans for the third unit of Lakeside Villas townhouse development are scheduled for review. Tahoe Village developers will also present plans for three new sections of that development on Buffalo Grove Road.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Zoners approve terminal plans for second time

Plans for a motor freight terminal development south of Hintz Road were approved by the Wheeling Zoning Board for a second time, despite the objections of board member Ed Slepicka.

Developers of the terminals were forced to appear before the zoning board for a second time because of an error in their previous legal description. They are seeking a special-use permit to operate freight terminals on the southern part of an 89-acre parcel east of the Soo Line R. R. tracks.

During the hearings Tuesday night, William Rogers, 148 S. Wolf Rd., asked that the zoning board delay approval of a special-use permit. He said the terminals would cause serious traffic problems, and asked that a new traffic study be conducted on Hintz Road.

Rogers noted that traffic studies submitted by developers were taken while school was out of session. He said that traffic increases greatly along Hintz Road during the school year, and asked that a new survey take this school traffic into consideration.

Slepicka agreed with Rogers and recommended that the village board request such a survey before approving the special-use permit. Other zoning board members also favored a new traffic survey.

The zoning board recommended that the village board approve the special-use permit in a 3-1 vote. Slepicka voted against the terminal development, citing traffic problems. Frank Wojek and Ron Potter were absent.

Busing fee for Stevenson grade school

A bus will transport about 65 students to Stevenson School in Wheeling, paid for by parents with some reimbursement from Dist. 21.

A group of parents petitioned the district two weeks ago to bus students from several nearby apartment complexes.

Most of the parents who signed the petition were residents of the Willow River, Willow Park Estates, Lochlomen and Orchard Park apartments.

The Dist. 21 School Board tonight is scheduled to act on a request that would have the district pay the entire cost of busing. The request will probably be denied because all children attending Stevenson live within the 1½-mile busing boundary of the school.

Bob Gerry, Stevenson principal, yesterday forecasted the decision of the board and mailed letters to parents asking if they would be willing to pay $60 annually for bus service.

THE BUS BEGAN running about a week ago, Gerry said, but there is still room for about five children to ride.

Parents should contact the school immediately to register for the bus service. It is unlikely, Gerry said, another bus will be available because there are not enough Stevenson children to fill more than one bus.

Gerry said both parents and children appear to be satisfied with busing arrangements.

The regular-sized Ritzenthaler bus runs in the morning, picks up about 17 kindergarten children at 12:30 p.m. and returns children to their homes in the afternoon.

New park board member may be named tonight

The Wheeling Park District board is expected to appoint a new park commissioner tonight after interviewing the five applicants for the position.

The new commissioner will find the seat vacated by former Park Board Pres. Gus Nizzi, who resigned this summer to accept a position in the Neenah, Wis. school system.

The five applicants for the park board seat will be interviewed starting at 7 p.m. They are Frank Schnaitmann, 51 George Rd.; John Bailey, 949 Wilshire Dr.; Gerald Wilson, 375 Park Ave.; Michael Weiner, 34 E. Jeffrey Ave.; and Dorothy Crane, 359 Walnut Ave.

The park board also is scheduled to elect a vice-president and to review plans for the new addition to the Heritage Park recreation building.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. at the Heritage Park building, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Philip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told The Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raged through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House

Rep. Philip Crane

Rep. Samuel H. Young

shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep fighting. Crane was one of many Republican congressmen to sign a poster delivered to Agnew. The poster pictured a cat hanging from a pole and the message was "hang in there, baby."

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal meetings to discuss the Maryland bribery-kickback probe were called but there was "plenty of discussion," according to Cong. Young.

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were sealed in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClellan (R-12).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClellan, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClellan's office said.

"The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

If Walker, Daley don't agree on plan

State could lose U.S. transit funds

by STEVE FORSYTH

Gov. Daniel Walker could win his battle to block the Crosstown Expressway by postponing state action until after July 1, 1974 — but the victory might be at the expense of federal funding for his Regional Transit Authority plan.

Newly appointed Federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann said yesterday at a press conference in Chicago that the federal agency will not serve as a mediator in the dispute between Walker and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, and will not supply funds until a single regional plan is agreed upon.

The July, 1974, deadline applies to all proposed highway construction under the interstate program, which is to be completed by 1979. Next year's deadline is for a schedule of construction and planning, required so the 1979 deadline will be met.

HOWEVER, IF the Crosstown is blocked that way, Gerald Love, regional federal highway administrator, said the state would run the risk of having the section dropped from the interstate plan and losing the $900 million earmarked to build it.

Loss of the money would mean Walker would lose a substantial revenue source for his recently proposed RTA. Walker has said the money for the Crosstown could be diverted to establish the RTA, but Tiemann said yesterday the diversion of funds could only come with the agreement of Mayor Daley.

Daley would have, in effect, veto power over any alternate system because elimination of an interstate section from Chicago would require the city's approval.

Tiemann repeatedly said it would be up to Daley and Walker to resolve their differences before anything can be done. He said Walker's and Daley's plans for use of the highway money are being returned this week and the highway administration will take no action until a common proposal is submitted.

TIEMANN WAS in Chicago to explain the effect of the new federal highway act on this area, but he was unable to give many details because plans to put the new law into effect have not been completed. He said Chicago and the state will be represented at a task force meeting Oct. 3 in Washington, D.C., to work out implementation of the plans. Two other task forces are working on other portions of the act.

Tiemann did point out that the 1973 Highway act for the first time allows highway funds to be diverted to mass transit, including trains and buses. He said the states are, in fact, required by the new act to allocate a portion of their funds to urban areas of 200,000 population or more. "Obviously, the effect of this change will be to strengthen the role of local officials in the transportation planning and development process," he said.

New federal highway policies should also mean sweeping changes, according to Tiemann. He said local government will have stronger voices in the building of highways and transit systems, and ecological impact studies will be made for every project. Each state will be required to file an action plan for any project, indicating environmental considerations and how the state intends to involve the public in the early decision-making process.

THE ADMINISTRATION now cares about "people" a great deal, Tiemann said, to the extent of giving environment a prime consideration, and including millions of dollars for bicycle paths throughout the country.

Tiemann said the highway builders developed an image of not caring about people because the nation had previously given a mandate — build as many highways as possible, as fast as possible, with the least cost possible. Now, he said, the department is nearing the end of the interstate building program, and time is being taken to consider other things.

NIPC to open area office

The Northern Illinois Planning Commission will open an office in the Northwest suburbs and has hired a planning officer to serve this area, NIPC officials announced yesterday.

The new officer, Paul D. Kraman, has been working for NIPC for three weeks in an orientation program. However, officials said yesterday no location for the Northwest office has been chosen.

Kraman comes to NIPC after two years as chief planner for a bi-state metropolitan planning commission in the Rock Island-Moline-Davenport area.

His other experience includes five years as city planner for the City of Moline and eight years as a consultant with a Chicago firm. He is a resident of Streamwood.

Kraman told The Herald yesterday that his Northwest suburban office would serve 80 different communities.

THE AREA WOULD extend from the Cook-DuPage county line on the south to Glenview on the east and would include McHenry County, Kraman said.

As area officer Kraman will work in the Northwest suburbs three days a week helping local municipalities and other government agencies with planning and technical problems in the areas of housing, sewage, water supply and open space. He also will represent NIPC in the area.

Kraman might also be assigned by NIPC to do staff work for the Northwest Municipal Conference which is currently considering a NIPC offer for staffing assistance.

Officers of locations for the Northwest suburban NIPC office have come from the villages of Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates, from the cities of Rolling Meadows and Crystal Lake and from Harper College.

For a few hours, Senate orders big troop cutback

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After intense, day-long pressure from the Defense Department, the Senate reversed by a 51-44 vote late Wednesday an earlier decision to order a 40 per cent cutback in U.S. troop strength overseas in the next three years.

Some of the pressure reportedly came from Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, supreme Allied commander in Europe, who made telephone calls to senators during the day before he left Washington and flew back to his headquarters in Brussels.

Soon after the Senate approved Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's troop cut proposal by a 49-46 vote during the morning, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger rushed to the capitol and spent much of the afternoon buttonholing senators leaving or entering the Senate.

Most of the opposition, Mansfield said, sprang from a fear that unilateral troop cuts by the United States would undercut negotiating efforts now under way to achieve mutual balanced force reductions in Europe.

There are close to a half-million U.S. troops abroad, not including Navy and Marine Corps personnel on ships at sea who would not have been affected. Approximately 300,000 of the total are based in Europe, most in West Germany.

Mansfield, who has been attempting to win a troop reduction for more than a decade, was both elated and surprised at the early vote.

Two Democrats and two Republicans who voted for the amendment in the morning changed their minds during the intervening six hours and voted against the cuts in late afternoon.

AMERICAN TROOP commitments overseas drew critical attention in the U.S. Senate Wednesday, with the Senators — for a few hours — having voted for a 40 per cent cut in forces over the next three years. But they backed off under intense administration pressure and reversed the action.

Agnew probe bid rejected; he insists he won't quit

(From Herald news services)

The case involving Vice President Spiro T. Agnew continued to take dizzying turns Wednesday, with these major developments:

• House Speaker Carl Albert rejected Agnew's request that the House undertake an investigation into his alleged misconduct.

• Agnew and the White House showed apparent disagreement over whether the vice president and President Nixon have discussed a possible Agnew resignation.

• Agnew rejected flatly the persistent stories that he would resign in face of the furor around him.

Albert, though among Congressional leaders stunned by Agnew's request Tuesday afternoon, wasted little time Wednesday in dismissing the request.

After meeting with House Democratic leaders, Albert issued a two-sentence statement:

"The vice president's letter asking for the House hearing relates to matters before the courts. In view of that fact, I, as speaker, will not take any action on the letter at this time."

Agnew, who apparently hoped that taking his chances with a Congressional inquiry would give him a full public exoneration, had no immediate comment on the Albert rebuff, but said he might make a statement later at a news conference.

Albert's announcement came while the White House was saying Mr. Nixon and Agnew — in their talks on the Agnew case — had discussed the possibility of a resignation, and that Nixon neither encouraged nor discouraged the idea.

The Nixon position, said a spokesman, is that Agnew "should decide what course he should take in the matter."

Agnew took specific issue with the announcement, saying, "The President and I have not discussed that possibility."

Later, the White House conceded there was no detailed discussion of resignation, but that in "the broad context of options," it did come up.

To the constant round of rumors and published stories that he would step down, possibly by pleading guilty to some minor charge, Agnew said: "I want to make it very clear that I am not resigning."

Today: the grand jury

(From Herald news services)

A federal grand jury in Baltimore is to begin hearing evidence today involving alleged involvement by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in political kickback schemes with contractors in Maryland.

Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson announced Tuesday that the evidence would be presented today when the grand jury resumed sitting in a probe that has been under way since January.

Richardson, in announcing that the justice department's investigation would continue through the grand jury, indicated the department had failed to reach some kind of compromise in the situation during two weeks of negotiations with Agnew's lawyers.

Washington speculation has included the suggestion that Agnew might resign in return to pleading guilty to some minor charge, but Agnew has firmly denied that, and he and his lawyers have indicated that they will challenge the investigation by the grand jury.

What form that will take isn't clear, but the attorneys said they would act this week to block the probe, presumably with a suit.

The case involving Agnew goes back to Aug. 1, when he was told that he was under investigation for possible violation of bribery, tax fraud, extortion and conspiracy laws.

Aide says Nixon campaign was clean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential aide Patrick J. Buchanan, refusing to produce President Nixon's secret political memos, testified Wednesday that the Watergate bugging was a "grievous error" but not typical of Nixon's 1972 campaign.

The stocky 35-year-old Nixon speech writer conceded during day-long testimony before the Senate Watergate committee that political "dirty tricks" had been played on the President's behalf last year — but said he had nothing to do with them and that Watergate was not among them.

"I did not consider Watergate a prank," Buchanan said. "It's a crime . . . Electronic surveillance for political purposes is wrong and should be outlawed."

Buchanan had been subpoenaed to bring along a number of White House political strategy memos. But he said they had been moved to the basement of the Executive Office Building on the advice of Nixon's lawyers to be included with official documents protected by executive privilege.

He said some of the language in them was "uninhibited," but he firmly denied they reflected any "illicit, unethical, improper or unprecedented" campaign activities in Nixon's behalf.

Sen. Sam Ervin, whose committee is battling Nixon in the courts for access to tapes of the President's Watergate conversations with aides, told Buchanan there was no justification for keeping the campaign memos secret.

Buchanan also accused the Senate committee staff of a "covert campaign of vilification" by leaking false reports to the press that he was the architect of a campaign of "dirty tricks."

Buchanan was the first witness as the committee turned from the Watergate phase of its hearings to alleged "dirty tricks" and other irregularities in the 1972 election campaign.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday following Buchanan's testimony.

Buchanan, who described the Nixon reelection effort as "one of the most effective, one of the most enjoyable operations I have been involved with," defended it as a clean campaign primarily devoid of illegal or unethical acts.

Buchanan acknowledged under questioning he had urged on Nixon in 1971 a strategy aimed at removing front-running Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, as an election threat by exploiting his short temper and a reputation for indecisiveness.

In April, 1972, Buchanan wrote White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman and campaign director John N. Mitchell saying "we must do as little as possible to impede" Sen. George S. McGovern's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Cattle prices take plunge; cheaper meat predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council predicted Wednesday that sharp declines in cattle prices would soon result in lower retail beef prices.

Although cattlemen are complaining about the drop in cattle prices since government imposed ceilings on beef were lifted Sept. 12, Dunlop said the turnaround was "from the consumer's point of view, delightful."

"We would expect there should be declines in retail meat prices soon," Dunlop told reporters in predicting the falling cattle prices would shortly filter down to the grocery level.

Dunlop's good news for consumers came as the Commerce Department reported a modest setback in the nation's international trade balance and a continuing rise in closely watched index of future economic trends.

Many observers had predicted a renewed beef price surge once the ceilings were gone. Instead, live cattle prices have dropped 32 per cent in just six weeks — from $57 a hundredweight on Aug. 14 to $39 per hundredweight on Sept. 25.

In other economic developments, a 5 per cent increase in imports last month pushed the U.S. trade balance into a $16 million deficit for August, about the same level as in June but below the $106 million surplus in July.

The Commerce Department also said the Index of Leading Economic Indicators rose 1.2 per cent in August, but inflation, not basic economic growth, was behind most of the rise.

Health of Skylab 2 crew called surprisingly good

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The three Skylab astronauts returned to their native soil Wednesday in surprisingly good condition after their record 59 days in space.

"I was a little surprised at how really well off they were," Dr. Paul Buchanan, the Skylab crew surgeon, told newsmen when the recovery ship, the New Orleans, arrived here.

The astronauts, Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma, and their spacecraft were plucked from the ocean 224 miles southwest of here a few minutes after their splashdown Tuesday.

"They're walking as well as I do," Buchanan said of the astronauts, "and they were able to climb steps okay."

He said they experienced slight nausea after they were taken aboard the New Orleans but added it may have been caused by the rolling of the ship in fairly rough seas.

The astronauts will remain in quarantine for one week, Buchanan said, but will be allowed to see their wives and families sooner.

The astronauts were to be tested aboard the New Orleans Wednesday and Thursday morning before flying to Houston for additional examinations.

Just how well the Skylab 2 crewmen readapt and how long it takes could affect the last Skylab flight later this year.

Officials said they were considering extending the Skylab 3 flight to 70 days instead of the planned 55 days.

SkyLab program director William C. Schneider said three possibilities exist for the last mission. The pilots may launch Nov. 11 for a 56-day or a 70-day stay, or launch Nov. 21 for a 56-day flight.

The advantage of launching late or staying more days is to allow more viewing of the comet Kohoutek which may be the brightest comet of the century.

Past year examined as Jewish New Year—5734—arrives

The call of the Shofar last night ushered in the beginning of the Jewish High Holy Days, and brought to the Northwest suburbs a variety of messages for the new year 5734 on the Jewish calendar.

The holidays began at sundown yesterday when Jewish people welcomed Rosh Hashana, their New Year, at synagogues throughout the area. Rosh Hashana is the start of a 10-day period when the Jews are supposed to examine their actions of the past year and repent for their wrongdoings.

Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, which begins at sundown Oct. 5, will signal the end of the holidays. On that day, according to tradition, God will seal the Book of Life and thus determine the fate of all people for the coming year.

AS PART OF this period of introspection, Rabbi Floyd Herman of Temple Chai said he will talk about the role of the synagogue and Judaism in solving people's personal problems.

"I think there are some serious problems that affect our lives today," he said. "And I think our synagogue has something to say about that."

Temple Chai, which serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and north Arlington Heights, has scheduled New Year's services at 10 a.m. today at Howard Johnsons Motel, Northwest Highway and Route 83, Palatine. Children's services will begin at 2 p.m.

Yom Kippur observation will begin with the Kol Nidre service at 8 p.m. Oct. 5. Services will begin at 10 a.m. Oct. 6 and continue throughout the day.

SERVICES TO mark the New Year began at sundown last night at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines. Rabbi Jay Karzen will officiate during two days of observances with major services conducted today and tomorrow from 8:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. both days.

Cantor Harry Solowinich will chant the service with the assistance of several laymen. Five children's services as well as teenage services will be held at the same hours.

Yom Kippur services will be Oct. 5 and 6, with a three-hour Friday night service beginning at 3 p.m. Saturday services will be from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Yizkor memorial service will be at noon Oct. 6.

RABBI MORDECAI ROSEN of Congregation Beth Judea said his theme for the high Holy Days is Jewish self-awareness through education. "In addition, part of Jewish self-awareness is the feeling that we are part of Jewish people throughout the world, which includes Soviet Jewry," he said.

Services for Beth Judea, which also serves the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights area, will begin at 9 a.m. both today and Friday. Evening services for the New Year will begin at 8:45 p.m. today at the Kingswood Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Kol Nidre services on Yom Kippur eve, Oct. 5, are scheduled at 8:30 p.m. On Oct. 6, services will begin at 9 a.m. and end at sundown with a community "break-fast."

RABBI HILLEL GAMORAN of Beth Tikvah Congregation, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates, said this year there is a need to discuss Jewish commitment to law.

"One of the things we're going to talk about is the fact that our democratic institutions have been threatened this year," he said. "There's a need to review our commitment to the idea of law, just as the Jewish tradition places its emphasis on Torah and law rather than on any single human being. In America, at this time, we have to rededicate ourselves to democracy."

Rosh Hashana services will begin at 10 a.m. today, with children's services at 3 p.m. Yom Kippur services will begin at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 5, with morning services at 10 a.m. Oct. 6. Children's services will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Yom Kippur, and afternoon memorial services are scheduled at 3 p.m.

RABBI MICHAEL MYERS of the Woodfield Jewish Congregation in Schaumburg said "the New Year should bring peace for us and all mankind." Services for his congregation will be at the Itasca Holiday Inn, 660 W. Irving Park Road, Itasca.

Rosh Hashana morning services will begin at 9 a.m. today and Friday. Evening services will be at 7:30 p.m. tonight and at 8 p.m. Friday. Yom Kippur observances are scheduled at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 5. Services will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Oct. 6 with memorial services at 11 a.m. and afternoon services at 5 p.m. N'eylah will begin at 6 p.m., followed by evening services at 7 p.m.

UGH! ACHIEVEMENT tests seems to be what this Dist. 26, River Trails Junior High School student is thinking. Most kids say although the tests are boring to take, they're worthwhile and an accurate measure of what they know. The tests are being given all this week in schools throughout that district.

Achievement tests

Students, teachers, administrators maintain testing is necessary, but far from perfect

EDITOR'S NOTE: Every year students in the Northwest suburbs take standardized achievement tests. This week students in River Trails School Dist. 26 are taking the exams and Herald reporter Jill Bettner got opinions from students, teachers and administrators about the annual testing.

by JILL BETTNER

Students at River Trails Junior High School (Dist. 26, Mount Prospect) appear to consider annual achievement tests a necessary evil. The tests are worthwhile, they say, but boring.

Along with the junior high students, all pupils in grades two through eight in the district this week are taking the achievement tests developed by Science Research Associates Inc.

According to Glen Erickson, principal of Bond School and director of testing for the district, the machine-scored tests are designed to measure academic skills. The results of the tests indicate how the student's skills compare with others his age in the district and nationally.

Students in grades one through three are tested mainly in reading, language arts and math, Erickson said. Upper level students are also tested in these areas plus science, social studies and the use of source materials.

The tests are being given at short stretches over several days.

MOST RIVER TRAILS students agreed that the tests are fair and pretty good indicators of their ability in each academic area.

"I think they show what we know and there isn't much on them that we haven't had yet," said Chris Domerachi, seventh grader.

The students also feel teachers are correct in using the tests to help gear classroom instruction to the needs of pupils.

"It's a good way to tell what kids need to know," said Arnette Garcia, seventh grader. "Teachers should use them to teach whatever kids get wrong on the tests," added Dennis Leuntjens, eighth grader.

Although most teachers said they use the SRA tests results somewhat to tailor their instruction to fit student needs, they agreed that a pupil's ability cannot be accurately measured by the tests alone.

"We're told to rely pretty much on the results of the tests," said a language arts teacher who wished to remain anonymous. "It's what the board has determined, so it's what they want and the parents want, but the tests don't measure everything. For example, they don't measure creativity."

ERICKSON STRESSED that there are many factors too, that influence a student's performance on the tests.

"We try to emphasize to parents and teachers that this one test is not the gospel word," he said. "It's just one means we have of learning a child's progress. All the reading books have tests, the math program includes a test after each chapter and teachers use other tests to measure the day-to-day progress picture of students all year."

Erickson said the districtwide comparisons of student performance are useful in identifying general academic strengths and weaknesses.

"Last year," we found that a lot of students were low in math skills, so this year we've tried to schedule more math review and work of that kind," he said. "Although we don't teach primarily for the test, it helps us get a better idea of what we're doing."

Up until last year, the Iowa Test of Basic Skills achievement tests were administered in the district each spring. Administrators feel the SRA tests are more accurate and the results are easier to explain to parents.

"This is really the Cadillac package of tests," said Eugene Kukla, River Trails principal. "What I think is so uniquely good about them is that parents can understand the results so they can cooperate with teachers in correcting learning problems."

KUKLA SAID because several skills are measured in each academic area, it is easier to pinpoint a student's problems.

For example, under reading, the student is tested for comprehension, his ability to restate material, understand a sequence and summarize, draw inferences, apply the material to new situations and see logical relationships. He is given a separate score for each skill.

By giving the tests in the fall rather than the spring as in the past, Kukla said instructors have a better chance to give students the help they need to advance and do well in the next grade. Sometimes, too, students may be transferred from one ability group to another based on the test results. Students in grades seven and eight at River Trail are sectioned into low, intermediate and high-ability groups.

Kukla will call a special meeting of parents in November to explain the test scores. Homework teachers will also meet with parents individually to discuss their child's test results.

The principals of the other schools in the district will conduct similar parent meetings.

Some work to begin soon

Lake County road projects

by JOE FRANZ

Several major road improvements are planned in Lake County in the next several years to keep pace with Buffalo Grove's expansion to that area.

Although some of the projects are still in the planning stages and others are tentative, construction of some projects could begin as early as next year.

Edward Streed, superintendent for the Lake County Highway department, said yesterday the county hopes to begin extending Busch Road shortly after the first of the year.

THE ROAD which lies north of the village ends at the Soo Line R.R. tracks. The extension will connect it with Deerfield Road near Milwaukee Avenue. Although the area is now unincorporated, the village plans expansion there in the future.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the extension of the two-lane road will create another major east-west road to connect the village to neighboring communities to the east.

Streed said the 2.75-mile extension will probably cost between $500,000 and $600,000. He said construction of the project was scheduled to start late this year, but will be delayed somewhat because of negotiations with land owners for the right of way. The county hopes it can obtain the land through negotiations rather than through condemnation which is more costly, he said.

Another project planned for next year is the creation of a T-intersection at Rte. 53 and Rte. 83 in the northern section of the village. Henry Yamanaka, mobility studies engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday the state plans to eliminate the dangerous intersection that now exists.

HE SAID THE PLAN calls for the realignment of Rte. 53 so traffic on the road is forced to stop when it meets with Rte. 83. Work on the intersection is scheduled to begin in April next year, he said. The project is expected to cost $275,000, he added.

In 1973 the Cook County Highway Department plans to begin the widening and extension of Lake-Cook Road through Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. At present, the two-lane road runs from Arlington Heights Road, east to Buffalo Grove Road.

The county is in the process of obtaining the right of way for the extension of the road from Buffalo Grove Road to Milwaukee Avenue. The road, which will be widened to four lanes will be linked to portions of Lake-Cook Road both east and west of the village, thus making it a major east-west highway.

ANOTHER PROJECT which is probably several years away is the widening of Ill. Rte. 22, north of Buffalo Grove. Yamanaka said the state is studying the possibility of widening the road to four lanes between U.S. Rte. 41, in Highland Park, to Rand Road, in Lake Zurich.

Yamanaka said he could not predict when the project would begin since plans are still tentative.

Within the next few years there are plans to pave Arlington Heights Road from Rte. 83 north 1,000 feet to Levitt and Son's Koelper Demuth property. The project will be paid for by the village, Levitt and Vernon Township, Larson said.

The unpaved portion of the road runs into an area Levitt plans to develop within the next two years. The paving of the road will be done as the area is developed, Larson said.

State officials to meet with PHIA

by TOM VON MALDER

Four state officials have already accepted an invitation to meet Monday with the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

Those who have said they will attend the 8 p.m. meeting at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., are State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-Ist, said he will try to send an aide.

Those invited, but yet responding, are Gov. Daniel Walker; State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette; State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, and State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th.

Jack Gilligan, PHIA president, has drawn up a list of legislative areas to be discussed at the meeting. The list includes items of direct interest to Prospect Heights residents.

THE FIRST of 11 subject areas Gilligan has listed is a reduction or elimination of the assessed valuation of airports, golf courses and similar privately-owned publicly-used facilities. Gilligan would like to see at least a 75 per cent reduction to serve as an "incentive to the preservation of these uses."

Palwaukee Airport and the Rob Roy Golf Course both lie partially within the proposed boundaries for the City of Prospect Heights. The second proposal calls for the establishment of a state land use commission, which among other functions would hold public hearings to "determine the total environmental impact of, and to clearly define criteria for allowing, conversion to other uses of airports and golf courses" and other privately owned, publicly used properties.

The proposal states that the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) may be the agency that could be empowered to hold such hearings. Current proposals before Mount Prospect call for apartments on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

A third proposal supports the creation of a Regional Transportation Authority for the area. "We don't want an expressway put through Prospect Heights. We don't want a transportation system stuck down our throats," Gilligan said. He added the PHIA wants knowledge of transportation plans and ability to speak on any plans.

OTHER PROPOSALS would give the townships limited zoning and land use approval authority and permit townships to buy or condemn property for environmental protection, recreation or other public use. The first is prompted by incidences such as the one in which a home was moved onto Waterman Avenue without the PHIA or neighborhood being informed before hand.

"We want to know what's happening," Gilligan said. "We've been burned a couple of times." He said the residents of Waterman Avenue were extremely upset when the house was moved to their street.

The sixth proposal calls for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners. "We want some of their situations examined. They are (often) restricted severely by the (mobile park) manager," Gilligan said. Many mobile home parks are found in unincorporated areas, as there are often municipal ordinances against trailer homes.

Gilligan's group would like a more equal distribution of state sales tax rebates, he said. "Randhurst is a regional shopping center. It doesn't belong to Mount Prospect alone."

The PHIA plan is not to take all of the sales tax rebate from Mount Prospect, for example, but some "slight" reimbursement.

THE PHIA is also asking for more state funding for environmental projects, an increase in the authority and power of soil and water conservation districts with respect to land use recommendations. It also calls for townships to be empowered to engage in environmental programs designed to control air and water pollution and flood damage relief.

The final proposal seeks minimum standards and requirements for surface drainage control and enforcement through sanitary districts in unincorporated areas.

Gilligan said the meeting is open to all interested residents and they may bring up any legislation proposals of their own.

Quintet and the Chicago Chamber Orchestra.

Sunday at 7 p.m. Jose Feliciano, El Chicano and Bonnie Koloc.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police officials say they have been told by promoters that a crowd of 100,000 is expected over the three-day run. Extra patrolmen for crowd control have been assigned, according to Police Sgt. Jack Weber.

The trade show itself will feature the latest high fidelity stereo equipment from 40 different manufacturers. Sound seminars will be conducted by factory experts and full-length films are also planned.

All exhibits will be in the Arlington Park grandstand. The concerts will be staged in front of the grandstand.

THERE WILL be a $1 race track parking fee.

Pacific Stereo, a leading seller of stereo equipment on the West Coast, has five Chicago area stores in the suburbs of Evanston, Lombard, Oak Park, Niles and Oak Lawn.

Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning said recently that administrative officials were aware of the trade show and concert plans and did not think that a special use permit was not needed.

Correction

A Herald story yesterday listed the wrong person as being charged by Wheeling police with driving while intoxicated. Fred M. Gablentz, 31, of Evanston, was charged with the offense, not Anthony Pagano. Pagano was the victim when Gablentz' car struck his home, causing about $7,000 damage.

Social Security and you

New assistance program starts January

A new federal program is replacing the state-federal old age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to disabled programs now in existence, according to Norman R. Thoresen, Branch Manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security office.

The federal government will begin making monthly cash payments in January, 1974, to people in financial need who are 65 or older, blind or disabled. The amounts will range up to $130 for a person living alone and up to $195 for a couple. "The money will come from general funds of the Treasury, though the program is being administered by the Social Security office," Thoresen said.

A single person may qualify if his assets do not exceed $1,500. For a couple, the amount is $2,250. A home, household goods, automobile, and personal effects of reasonable value can be excluded in the counting of assets.

Many people in this area may be eligible for these payments who are not now receiving any form of assistance, Thoresen said. Persons who may qualify for supplemental income payments should apply well in advance of January. Those receiving cash payments from the Department of Public Aid need not apply as they will automatically be converted to the new program.

Interested persons should visit or phone their local social security office. The Arlington Heights office is located at 120 W. Eastman, and the telephone number is 255-7512.

American College Test to be given Oct. 20

New cooperation between psychiatry and religion overcomes past differences

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Do psychiatry and religion mix? "Yes," says Dr. Abraham Franzblau, formerly dean and professor of pastoral psychiatry for the Hebrew Union College Jewish Institute of Religion in New York and now a psychiatrist in private practice. "I think this is one of the most interesting of recent developments in the field."

Although the concepts of religion and psychiatry should complement each other, for many years this has not been the case. "The whole thing goes back to Freud," believes Dr. Franzblau, "because in earlier days the medicine man and the religious leader were often rolled into one. But Freud, in his analytic theories, believed that religion was an illusion. In recent days, there has been a breaking down of the bars in this respect, and psychiatry and religion have been cooperating very, very closely."

In a recent study completed by Dr. Franzblau and his associates, it was found that over 13 per cent of all psychiatrists render psychiatric services to a religious institution. According to Dr. Franzblau, this was the beginning of a new day. "This new beginning came from a number of factors that operated in the past. For one thing, the length of time since Freud's original writings on this subject allowed many people, who thought they had to be anti-religion by definition, to mellow. As a matter of fact, there are now a good number of psychiatrists who finished theological training and got their ordination as rabbis or ministers or priests, and then decided to go into psychiatry.

"FREUD OPPOSED religion because he felt that it was too rigid, that it was based on neurotic illusion, and he felt that it was important to free people from these illusions. Now, psychiatrists who work with religion feel that the thing people need to be freed from is their neuroticisms, and if religious ideas go under that heading, sure, we want to free them of it. But we realize that much of religion doesn't come under that category at all."

Some people question whether a psychiatrist of one religion can treat a patient effectively if the patient is of another religion. Dr. Franzblau counters this question with a question of his own:

Can a psychiatrist who is a male treat a female effectively; can a female treat a male effectively? The answer is, of course, yes. I don't think it depends on the problem, but rather on the training of the psychiatrist, on his own stability. I don't think there are any differentials that would keep a good psychiatrist from helping an individual."

According to Dr. Franzblau, many people come in for treatment with distortions, fears, and phobias which are based on religion. "One particular child had gotten the notion when he was young that Jesus was put on the cross when he was an infant, and the thought of this poor child up there on the cross being tortured distorted a great deal of his childhood peace and serenity. There are other things of this nature that have to do with the pain and torture of hell which cause some people undue panic and fear, and influence their behavior. We try to ease that type of thing."

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

Trio of issues to honor rural America

The first of three stamps honoring aspects of rural America will be released by the U.S. Postal Service Oct. 5 at St. Joseph, Mo.

The 8-cent commemorative salutes the 100th anniversary of the introduction of Angus cattle into the United States. The remaining two stamps will be issued in 1974.

One of them will mark the 100th anniversary of the introduction of Kansas hard winter wheat into this country. The second will mark the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the Chautauqua, which made a major contribution to the cultural life of rural America by bringing lecturers, orators, concerts and many celebrities of the arts to smaller communities.

THE ANGUS stamp's first-day ceremonies will be held at the headquarters of the American Angus Association and depicts the Angus cattle from Scotland and Longhorn cattle in a prairie setting. The design was adapted from a painting by F. C. "Frank" Murphy of Chicago.

It will be printed 50 stamps to a pane with one plate number. Yellow, red, green and tan will be applied by offset with blue, black and red being added by the Glori press.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to "Angus Stamp, Postmaster, St. Joseph, Mo. 64501" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

AUSTRALIA will issue two Christmas stamps — in 7 cent and 30 cent denominations — on Oct. 3. A Christmas Aerogramme will be released Nov. 14.

The stamps, aerogramme and the official first-day cover were designed by George Hamor of Sydney and are illustrated in the style of medieval woodcuts.

The 7-cent stamp depicts the Baptism of Christ by John the Baptist while the 30-cent illustrates The Good Shepherd.

Requests for a 37-cent souvenir stamp pack and first-day cancellations should be sent separately to "Philatelic Section, Australian Post Office Headquarters, Communications House, 199 William St., Melbourne, Australia 3000." Be sure to send your remittance in Australian funds.

THE U.S. POSTAL Service has announced several new programs to encourage American philately. They include:

- A school program aimed at making the stamp a teaching aid.

- Placement of philatelic displays in 10,000 post offices beginning in November.

- Aggressive sale of a new edition of "Stamps and Stories."

- Marketing of a 1973 mint set pack of stamps containing all the commemorative, special and memorial stamps issued during the year.

- Introduction of stamp collector starter kits which would include Canadian as well as U.S. stamps.

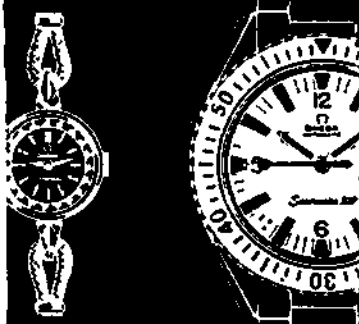

- Special topical starter kits based on European arts, space, animals and sports.

The new program evolved at the first National Philatelic Symposium, sponsored by the Postal Service, which met in Washington, D.C., recently.

The symposium also heard some interesting statistics about U.S. stamp collectors. More about that next week.

School districts may get refunds from co-op

The 10 Northwest suburban school districts in the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) probably will be getting refund checks in November from the co-op.

The NEC governing board has agreed to refund the approximately $24,500 which is left over from the last fiscal year in the NEC administrative budget. The administrative budget pays the salaries of such persons as NEC Executive Director Gloria Kinney and Business Mgr. Jeff Inkley. Member districts are billed for administrative costs depending on size.

Inkley said the exact amount of refunds, which will be made on the same ratio that original payments were made, will not be known until sometime in November after an audit is completed on NEC's books for the 1972-73 school year.

The Dwyer School, an NEC program for emotionally disturbed children, had a surplus of $29,000 at the end of the year, Inkley said. The NEC board is expected to make a decision on what will be done with that surplus at its October meeting.

NEC administers various cooperative programs, including special education programs for school districts in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Doctors disagree on heart treatment

I am caught between conflicting recommendations, medical and surgical, given by two famous medical centers about doing an angiogram and possibly coronary artery surgery. I am a 52-year-old university professor with mild angina attributed to the occlusion of one coronary artery. My weight is 148; fasting blood sugar, 105; cholesterol, 210; triglycerides, 185; and blood pressure, 132/95.

A treadmill test with an electrocardiogram (heart tracing) was diagnosed as positive, but another doctor stated that the findings were negative and the test should be repeated. Is it not true that once you've been diagnosed as having a positive test that it does not change?

Still another doctor stated my condition was due to anxiety and prescribed Inderal and Sorbitrate, plus nitroglycerin for chest pain. Of course, I was a nervous wreck and had to take nitroglycerin for activities and emotions that I had never had prior to all this conflict.

One doctor said my palpitations were due to my coronary artery occlusion, but after five months of medicine both of these conditions ceased entirely. Why? I thought that if an artery was filled with fat and time it couldn't heal itself. If these heart conditions were caused by an occlusion, how could they stop?

There is quite a divergence of opinion in interpreting electrocardiograms with exercise. I did a large amount of the early treadmill work in healthy young pilots. Many of them had electrocardiographic changes, but no heart disease. Such tests may unmask underlying heart disease, but a great deal of caution has to be used in interpreting such tracings. Electrocardiograms can change in response to exercise. Individuals in poor physical condition often have changes which disappear after their physical condition has improved.

It is possible after blockage of one artery for small connecting arteries to open and detour blood around the occlusion. In this way nature provides its own bypass without surgery.

ANGIOGRAMS and surgery should be reserved for individuals with persistent chest pain, usually in the form of intermittent episodes, after a recognized heart attack. Coronary bypass operations or revascularization of the heart are not always successful and can impose their own problem. Just keep in mind that President Johnson had a severe heart attack at age 46 and lived almost 18 years after his initial episode.

You should do everything you can to minimize the fat underneath your skin. Follow the measures suggested for preventing heart disease, including diet, no smoking, and if your condition permits, begin a gradual increase in normal physical activity. This means walking in your case.

Your palpitation may have improved because of your medicine and relief of concern about your problem, or an improvement of the circulation to your heart, which can occur in time if everything else is left alone. Just the fact that you have done this well this long, and assuming that your letter means that you no longer have symptoms, I would concur with the conservative approach — which means no surgery.

Township GOP sponsors forum on obscenity

Is "The Naked Ape" obscene? Should John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" be taken off the library shelf? Should "Lord of the Flies" be X-rated?

These are some of the questions to be wrestled with tonight when the Wheeling Township Republican Organization sponsors a public forum on obscenity. The free program will begin at 8 p.m. in Room 124D of Hershey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

Plans for the program were made after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last July that local juries or judges should have the right to decide whether a challenged book, film or magazine is obscene. The guideline for obscenity, as set by the High Court, is if the work taken as a whole would be considered obscene by the "average person, applying contemporary community standards."

Panel members include Kenneth Gillis, chief of the criminal appeals division for Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey; Patrick Tuite, a Chicago attorney who has defended a number of obscenity cases; and Forest View High School Principal Jack Martin, a former English teacher.

The audience will first hear a panel discussion and then divide into juries to judge obscenity of magazines found on the newstands and books that have come under attack in other communities. A showing of a movie also is in the plans.

Moderating the panel will be James Vesely, managing editor of The Herald. "Our aim in this public forum is to get a better understanding of what the Supreme Court decision means and what affect it may have on local institutions," said Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen.

Yesterday afternoon organizers of the program said U.S. Rep. Philip R. Crane, R-Ill., also will be on hand during the discussion. Crane is visiting his district and has changed his arrival date in the suburbs in order to join the discussion of pornography and obscenity.

We are not going to name the knight of the round table who sat South. We don't want to be challenged to mortal combat. Suffice to say that the wily Mordred, sitting West, really fixed him.

Mordred opened the Jack of hearts. South saw that he had to win the trick and go after the clubs. You readers, looking right at all the cards, can see that since West holds both club honors, South is sure to make his contract, but watch the wily Mordred in operation.

South led the ace of clubs and Mordred dropped the queen. He continued and Mordred played the nine. South was fooled and decided that Mordred had started with doubleton queen-nine. So South rose with dummy's king and succeeded in working a diamond finesse.

Then South cashed the ace, king and queen of spades while Mordred dropped the eight, 10 and Jack.

It became evident to South that Mordred had started with 3-5-3-2 and not 4-5-1-3 distribution.

South decided Mordred had been dealt three spades, five hearts, three diamonds and two clubs so that a high heart lead would end-play him.

It did, all right. Mordred fanned his hand for the rest of the tricks.

Prove it, Bernard Carey

Put up or shut up, Bernard Carey. You've said it on television. Now, as Cook County State's Attorney, prove it in court.

That's the message from Chicago Deputy Police Superintendent Mitchell Ware to State's Attorney Carey. We agree that Carey should offer evidence before pronouncing a guilty verdict against his opponents.

Carey last week charged that Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Ware condoned crime syndicate operations. Carey asserted that Daley and Ware are "sitting on corruption" and that Daley "condoned the corruption around him."

Ware responded last Saturday with a $5 million libel suit against Carey.

Carey's charges are reckless. As an attorney, the state's attorney should know and adhere to regular prosecutorial procedure. Indictments come from grand juries. Juries, not newspaper headlines, pronounce guilt or innocence.

However, Carey is to be commended for formation of a special grand jury to spend 18 months investigating connections between the mob and politics. A tough look at organized crime's influence on government definitely is needed and the investigation's scope should cover all of Cook County.

Carey's primary target — Mayor Daley — has survived for 20 years as top man in Chicago politics. The Sumnerdale and the current Bransch scandals have rocked his police. His political cronies — former County Clerk Edward Barrett and city aldermen — have been indicted and convicted of influence-peddling. The mob has been investigated and investigated again.

But Daley has never been hauled into court.

No one has ever proved, and few have accused, Daley of directing his city administration to mob money. In other words, Carey's accusations could offer him, in the end, little more than political frustration.

Carey as a Republican is battling in the political world of Daley's Democratic machine. The state's attorney was ushered into office by the announcement that Chicago police were pulling their forces out of his office for budget reasons. Carey's investigative staff now falls far short of that of former state's attorney Edward Hanrahan.

Carey's job is to prosecute — if he can find evidence to support his charges. So far he's offered none to the Daley and Ware to mob-influenced corruption.

We're waiting for the evidence.

Juan Peron's uncertain future

by PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst
In the sober dawn after a night of celebrating Juan D. Peron's return to the presidency of Argentina, many an Argentinian must have awakened with a chill premonition.

It would come not from the host of problems needing immediate solution. It would come from the fact that the country's new vice president is Peron's 40-year-old third wife, Isabel.

It would come from the fact that Peron will be 78 on Oct. 8, just four days before he takes over responsibility for leading a divided nation out of its political instability and economic stagnation, and that he is visited almost daily by a heart specialist.

Isabella will be the first woman vice president in Latin American history. It is not the break with tradition that rouses the chill.

Rather it is the fear that in trusting their future once more to the man the Argentine military ousted 18 years ago as a corrupt dictator Argentinians may have consigned themselves to a new era of even greater uncertainty and even more violence than the one they are leaving.

Peron met Isabel, a cabaret dancer, in Panama during his wanderings after his ouster from office in 1955.

Whatever the aesthetic qualities of the dance it can offer little in the way of the practical experience needed of the politician, and yet Peron's union with Isabel and even his selection of her as his vice presidential running mate both were in the Peron pattern.

His second wife, Evita, was an actress who won the hearts of Argentina's "shirtless ones" who in turn gave Peron his political base. He once made her his running mate but in the last moment withdrew her name.

But Isabel is no Evita. Her candidacy roused wide uneasiness as testified by the defacement of hundreds of posters featuring Isabella. Among Evita's one-time followers, her memory is held in reverence which permits no competition.

Many among Peron's own followers believed until the last moment that he had placed his wife's name on the ballot merely to prevent internal jockeying within his fragmented Justicialista party and at the last moment would name a substitute.

Her candidacy and the fear that Peron might not live to complete his four-year term has aroused the anxiety not only of the anti-Peronists but also of youthful leftwing Peronists and especially of the army. The army permitted Peron's return only in a desperate, last ditch hope that he would place national unity above political partisanship.

Peron himself has disclosed that a recent virus ailment affected his heart and that doctors have told him he must avoid excitement.

Excitement may be as difficult to

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bob Lahey is ill. In his absence, Herald assistant managing editor Bob Casey has written a column on political ethics.

Calling together the Illinois General Assembly to discuss ethics is an intriguing idea, something like calling a chamber of commerce meeting to discuss unions or an Arab summit conference to talk about Israel.

But that's what Gov. Daniel Walker wants to do. The legislature, he says, needs encouragement in this important area of public concern.

And he's right. The present ethics law, the one that makes public officials fill out a form every year, hasn't tripped up anybody but Earl Bush, Mayor Daley's express secretary. To see one of those forms, you have to tell more about yourself than the politician did when he filled it out. Then they send him a notice saying you've checked his form and why.

The problem is historical perspective. The last comprehensive ethics law was abandoned in 1500 B.C. Present-day politicians don't know what's ethical and what's not, so it's time to bring back that ancient code to give them a little help.

In those days, the ethics law was known as the 15 Commandments, because the prophets knew politicians would need more than the usual 10. It was recently discovered by a Biblical scholar and is presented here for the first time in 3,500 years:

—Thou shalt not break into and enter thy neighbor's tent, nor his ward office, neither the house of his physician.

—Thou shalt not steal ballots, nor cause the ballot box to be stuffed; ghosts or spirits shall not vote in thy ward, nor cows or pigs in thy township.

—Thou shalt not arrange and make thy tent shine with splendor by taxes and burdens on the people, nor by shaking down building contractors.

—Thou shalt not give false witness; should thy enemy be accused or called before any tribunal, thou shalt not implore his silence, nor pay hush money unto him; neither shalt thou bid him take the fifth.

—Thou shalt not hire thy brother-in-law, nephew, nor the father of thy son's wife. And, yea, the man who shall cause insurance business to flow to his son shall not dwell in the Lord's house.

—Thou shalt not covet thy opponent's campaign contributors, nor sell unto them tickets to thy golf outing or dinner dance.

—Thou shalt not be an innkeeper, nor dispenser of wine; wherefore, should inquiries be made of thy activities as a dispenser of wine by agents of the governor, thou shalt not arrange to have those agents fired.

—Thou shalt not double dip, nor hold commissions from both the king and the governor in the same year; be not a pay-roller.

—Thou shalt not consult with those who enter the king's councils for special pleadings, neither as legal consultant, public relations and marketing consultant, nor insurance consultant nor real estate consultant.

—Thou shalt not be a money lender nor hold shares of a money lender, who, by your leave, shall retain the king's deposits interest-free.

—Neither shalt thou own shares in a place of horse racing, nor receive season passes thereof; avoid the running of horses and, instead, ride a camel or donkey or ox.

—Assess not the lands of thy people one more valuable than another; thou shalt not give tax breaks to campaign contributors.

—Thou shalt not take unto thyself nor the closet of thy house either shoeboxes or blue valises filled with shekels, nor with dinari, nor other coins; woe unto him who is a bagman.

—Thou shalt not rezone the lands of thy cousin, nor join him in a secret bank trust to put up an apartment building.

—Each year, whatever shall have been added to thy wealth in the year before, thou shalt make known to all.

Back in ancient times, the 15 Commandments were written on stone tablets. To make sure they get better readership this time, they should be printed on small green handbills, 2½ inches by 6 inches.

Fence post letters to the editor

Meditation supported

Some two weeks ago Rev. Lester Kinsolving wrote a syndicated column under the title, "Religion Today." Although the article brought to light many valid points, it has one fault that gives rise to many other inaccuracies. Rev. Kinsolving has considered Transcendental Meditation and the organizations making it available from the standpoint of religion.

"T. M." is not a religion and it has nothing to do with beliefs. It is an easily learned, effortless technique for gaining deep rest and thereby providing greater mental and physical energy. It works automatically and commands no faith or intellectual understanding. It therefore does not conflict or subvert any religion or faith that a person might have.

Rev. Kinsolving makes mention of the scientific research that has been done but I don't think that he grasped the significance of Dr. R. K. Wallace's or the work by other scientists. T.M. does have a positive effect upon blood pressure, because it lowers the metabolic rate by about 15-20 per cent and the workload upon the heart by 30-35 per cent. T.M. provides about twice the rest of an equivalent amount of the deepest period of sleep — let alone a short nap. In 15-20 minutes T.M. not only rests the body but a meditator is mentally refreshed and clear. By removing the debilitating effects of tension and stress, T.M. has been found to increase reaction speed, improve perceptual ability and motor coordination, and also to develop learning ability (long and short term recall). These dramatic results are coupled with a general improvement in the psychology, the increased ability to interact with the environment and a sharp decline in drug usage.

These findings lead Science Digest to suggest T.M. as a means for combating abuse in schools, and Maj. General Davis to encourage the U.S. Army to promote the availability of T.M. The Illinois House did pass a resolution recommending the use of T.M. in this state's institutions and similar motions have been adopted by Texas, Iowa, Michigan and other states.

The technique's effectiveness has impressed many intelligent and responsible people who recognize the documentation done by UCLA, Harvard, Stanford, Berkeley and many others. These leaders also recognize that T.M. is taught by a fully accredited, non-profit, educational organization — subject to close scrutiny by the I.R.S. These leaders see the potential T.M. has shown in making the most of our human resources at the individual level. Maharishi referred to this realizing of human potential as being the wellspring from which solutions to our great problems must come. Any effective way to accomplish these should be considered deeper than the thin veneer of half-truths, distortions and confusion that might be found. The information in Rev. Kinsolving's article is merely a diamond in the rough, and I hope the public recognizes this.

'Bring back local kids'

My firm recently outfitted a group of young men from Miner Junior High School under the leadership of Daniel Wojnowski for a canoe trip into our wilderness canoe country of Minnesota and Ontario. This group spent seven days canoe-camping in the wilderness.

I would like to share with you my personal observations of this group.

Although we outfit approximately 10,000 persons each summer I can assure you that the village of Arlington Heights could not have been represented by finer young men than those from Miner Junior High. Without exception, their conduct and behavior was beyond reproach, and it was most refreshing to observe them channel their energies into such wholesome activities as canoeing and camping.

To the families of these young people from Arlington Heights I say — "We commend you for raising such fine young men, and we thank you for sending them to visit us. They are always welcome to return to Ely and the canoe country."

Seymour's back?

Yes, Seymour, the much maligned "King Cobra" turned out to be the 20th century sensation! Now, you may be surprised to hear from way down in Inverness, Florida, but here goes! Seymour did reach Florida, via king snake or what ever title the cobra holds, with no holds barred, caused some little bit of concern and consternation within this writer's home, by way of a letter from daughter Norma Faye Ericson, who with family, live in Palatine, Ill., at Plum Grove Estates.

This letter stated that husband, Roger, and daughter, Norma, had purchased hip length boots to walk their little schmauser pup at nights as there was a six-foot cobra loose, traveling nocturnally, and as Buffalo Grove was near where they live, no telling when Seymour might show up with his head spread out for business, biting business, that is!

Being a widow, with a daughter up north and two grandchildren, Catherine and David, both going to school, the snake story was somewhat similar to our own heritage, the rattlesnake. But Seymour did steal the show! Being a columnist for the county newspaper, of course, the story of Seymour went into the column and was read by approximately 20,000 souls, who have an allergy about snakes, you can bet!

So in closing, when going out, this writer also looks where she steps for who knows about Seymour. He may decide to come south for the winter, smuggled close up under some low-slung car, or still travelling incognito!

Be sure that wherever this astute Seymour is, he would chuckle deep down in his "hood" at the odd people that humans are!

Perhaps the scare is gone, but the memory lingers on!

Dorothy's delayed diploma

by ELEANOR RIVES

"I'm a 1953 statistic," said Mrs. Ronald Rosen of Rolling Meadows, who looked much more like a busy suburban housewife. "I was on the list of high school dropouts that year."

Dorothy Rosen had completed three years at DeKalb Township High School, needed only four more credits to graduate in 1954. Instead, she dropped out of school and got married.

Now Mrs. Rosen is a 1973 statistic. She is one of about 370 names on the list of the first graduating class of Rolling Meadows High School. Her daughter, Deborah, is another. Looking more like sisters in their identical caps and gowns, they were awarded high school diplomas in the June 12 commencement program.

"IN THE BACK of my mind, I always thought that one day I would go back and finish," said Dorothy.

But rearing and later supporting three children — Deborah, Brian and Connie, now 19, 11 and 10 — drained her physically; and the eventual break-up of her marriage in 1968 drained her emotionally.

By the time she married Ronald Rosen, whom she met at Western Electric Company where they both worked, she had definitely made up her mind to "go after that diploma."

She called Rolling Meadows High School, which referred her to the Adult Education Office of District 214. At the direction of John Fish, coordinator of continuing education, she sent for her high school transcript.

TO ADAPT TO present day graduation requirements, Dorothy found she would need another year of science and a course in sociology. She was elated to learn that her four years of office experience at Western Electric would automatically award her two credits. She added another half credit to the total by throwing in business law, which piqued her interest as a businesswoman.

Between 10 and 15 adults attended the evening classes two nights a week at Arlington High School. In less than a school year, Dorothy had attained her goal.

"Education has advanced so much in the last 20 years," she stated. "Some college courses are taught at high school level now, and some high school subjects in junior high."

NEVERTHELESS as an adult she found learning particularly enjoyable. "Sociology was all the more interesting because I had already experienced or learned from the experience of others what was taught," she said.

"You'd be surprised how physical science, which includes chemistry, brings in the everyday experiences of a homemaker — the effects of salt, of soda, of combinations that have a chemical reaction. Lever, weights, light, sound — you live in a world with all this stuff and don't even give it a second thought." By mid-March, Mrs. Rosen had earned her diploma. But no commencement exercises are held for adult education graduates. "There should be some kind of ceremony," she thought. "We have accomplished something. I missed out on it once and I don't want to miss out on it again."

She asked Rolling Meadows High School to graduate her in the same ceremony with her daughter, complete with cap and gown and formal presentation of her diploma — a first in the history of District 214.

WHEN DOROTHY WAS called on the stage that June night, her "cheering section" included, with the exception of two grandmothers, all the same people who would have been there in 1954, plus her husband and children. Debbie shared with her mother in their enthusiastic support. A family celebration followed at the Beef 'N' Barrel.

Mrs. Rosen has gained more than a diploma for her efforts. She has rediscovered the pleasure of learning and she doesn't intend to lose it again. Her future plans include certain business courses at Harper Community College under the tuition-refund program of the company she works for.

"I wish I could inspire other women to go back and finish high school," she said. "It's so easy when you consider that credit is given for work and home experience."

"But more than that, I'd like to pass some good advice along to high school students. It's just this — don't drop out!"

MUTUAL ADMIRATION society. Mother and daughter compare high school diplomas. Deborah Schorsch took her Mom's advice and finished school before becoming Mrs. Bowker.

Adult learning options

There is no reason for anyone to be diploma shy or shy a diploma.

Any adult who wants to finish high school has a number of alternatives open to him.

He may elect to take the General Educational Development test (G.E.D.) to earn a high school equivalency certificate which most employers, colleges and universities consider equal to a diploma.

He may enroll in a night school course specifically designed to prepare him for the G.E.D. test, although such a course is not a requirement.

In the northwest suburban area, G.E.D. tests are administered at Harper and Oakton Community Colleges. At Harper, the test will be given in three parts, Oct. 19, 20 and 26 for persons who apply Oct. 9 at 7:30 p.m., Room 347 in Building A. At Oakton, the test will be given in two parts, Oct. 13 and 20. Application for the Oakton testing is being taken at the Cook County Educational Service Region, 33 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, telephone 443-6726.

An adult may prefer to complete requirements for a regular high school diploma, in which case it will be necessary to procure a transcript of his previous high school credits to determine what night school courses he needs. The initial step is to call the adult education division of the high school district in which he resides.

In High School District 207, information and counseling are available from Mrs. Dodds at 825-3433.

In High School District 214, the person to contact is John Fish at 253-1700.

In High School District 211, Charles Mueller at 339-3300 performs this function.

It's cheaper not to commute

It was love and not the shortage and cost of gasoline that inspired Charles Mueller of Arlington Heights to marry a girl from Chicago. Chuck no longer has to drive back and forth between the suburbs and the city for he and Barbara Emberton were married Aug. 18 in St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights.

Barbara, daughter of the Odell Embertons, and Chuck, son of the Harold Moellers, 1524 N. Fernandez, were married in a 5 p.m., double ring ceremony. They greeted 115 friends at a buffet dinner reception in the Arlington Heights VFW Hall and then flew off on a week's honeymoon in California. They now reside in a Chicago apartment.

Barbara, a graduate of Roosevelt High School, is with Central Plastics, Chicago, and Chuck, a graduate of Wheeling High who also studied at Harper College, is with Twin Disc Grinding Co., Melrose Park.

BARBARA'S SISTER, Brenda Emberton, Chicago, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were her sister-in-law, Sue Emberton, and Jeri Nichol, Chicago Junior bridesmaids were Barbara Cecil, Melrose Park, and Debbie Peluras, Carpentersville. The bride's 3-year-old sister, Tina, was flower girl, and the groom's cousin, 3-year-old John Hilgert, Libertyville, was ring bearer.

Chuck's brother, Jack, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mueller and ushers were Barbara's brother, Tom, and Chuck Van Durme, Wheeling. Junior ushers were the couple's brothers, Odell Emberton Jr., and David Moeller.

Pilot steers new course

Richard T. Prisliger and his bride, the former Michele C. Randolph, have just begun a course in marriage, but Richard is busy taking correspondence courses before the couple return in January to their studies at the University of Denver. A pilot with a private license, Richard is working toward his commercial license.

Michele, daughter of the John E. Randolphs, 778 Stephen Drive, Palatine, and Richard, son of the Edward J. Prisligers, 334 Pleasant Hill Blvd., Palatine, are both graduates of Fremd High. Michele has completed part of her freshman year at the university and Richard will be a junior when they go back to school.

Michele made her own candlelight satin gown with long train for the Sept. 1 wedding in St. Theresa's Church, Palatine. She trimmed her gown with Alencon lace and seed pearls and wore a floor-length veil. White roses, stephanotis, carnations and lily of the valley with ivy made up her bouquet.

AMONG THE BRIDAL attendants were Michele's two sisters and her two brothers, and the groom's sister and brother. Alison Nabor, Palatine, was her sister's matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Christanne Randolph, Cathlynn Prisliger, Debbie and Micky Bruser, Liz Jobst and Bobbie Reisenbuehler, all of Palatine.

Michele also made Alison's pink crepe gown with long chiffon sleeves. In pink crepe with overlays of chiffon were the bridesmaids who carried pink roses, baby's breath and pink and white carnations. Alison's flowers were pink roses and crimson carnation.

Scott Prisliger was best man, and ushers were Michael and Mark Randolph, Dick Eller, Bill Andres and Mike Nabor, the bride's brother-in-law, all of Palatine, Jack Eller, Mundelein, and Craig Jorgenson, Rolling Meadows.

A reception for 180 guests was held at Allgauer's Northbrook, following the 1 p.m. candlelight service.

For their honeymoon the newlyweds camped a week at Devil's Lake, Wis., and also spent two days at the Playboy Club in Lake Geneva.

Bride wears gold coin

An old gold dollar suspended on a chain complemented the bridal ensemble of Kathy Nunes when she became the bride of Michael Sessa Aug. 18. The gold piece belonged to the groom's grandmother and was a gift from her husband many years ago. Kathy also borrowed a sixpence for the 11 a.m., double ring ceremony which was held in St. Emily Church, Mount Prospect.

Kathy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Nunes, 1000 Barberray Lane, Mount Prospect, and Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sessa, 209 E. Hiawatha Trail, Mount Prospect, now reside in Daytona Beach, Fla., where Mike attends Embry-Riddle Aeronautical Institute. Mike, a graduate of St. Viator's also studied at Harper. Kathy, too, studied at Harper after graduating from Hersey High. Until her marriage Kathy was employed on the medical campus of the University of Illinois.

VALERIE MacLEOD, Rosemont, was maid of honor, and Nancy Willette, Palatine, and Sally Bellagamba and Margaret Bathgate, Des Plaines, were bridesmaids. Ellen Nunes, 7-year-old sister of the bride, was flower girl, and Matthew Sessa, 8-year-old brother of the groom was ring bearer.

Donald Janssen, Arlington Heights, was best man, and groomsmen were Paul Banas, Michigan; Martin Bellagamba, Des Plaines; and Thomas Ryan, Park Ridge.

Also taking part in the service were the couple's parents. Fathers of the pair read from the Bible and the mothers took bread and wine to the altar. Ushers were the couple's brothers, Mark Sessa, and David, Gary, Brad and Ron Nunes.

A reception for 220 guests was held at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Buying a new 1974 car? Here are some tips as published in Media & Consumer, a digest of consumer news:

Don't buy a new car in the autumn, when they first come out. Instead wait 85 or 120 days. Ideal buying times are mid-winter, when sales drop on snowy days, or during sales contest months in the summer.

Last year's leftover can be a good deal. It's worth your while if you can get it for approximately 30 per cent below list price.

Establish a price limit. Check in advance with your bank or lending agency. Know beforehand how much you can afford in monthly payments and how much you'll need for a down payment.

Decide which options are really necessary and worth the extra cost.

Try several dealers for the same auto. Haggle over the price. Deliberately offer an unrealistically low price. When the salesman rejects this offer, ask him how low he can go.

FIGURE OUT what the dealer paid for the car by taking the sticker price, subtracting cost of transportation, and then: take 85 per cent of the balance for compacts, 81.5 per cent for intermediate-sized cars, 78 per cent for full-sized cars. Finally, add back the transportation cost. This is approximately the amount the dealer paid.

Wait to talk about trading in your old car. Get the price you want on the new car first. If the salesman knows at the beginning you're trading in, he might offer you a high price for your old car, but jack up the cost of the new one.

Never sign a contract that isn't completely filled in. Also have your lawyer or some other knowledgeable person look it over before you sign.

THE ENERGY shortages this country is undergoing could spell disaster for the environmental movement. And if that happens, it will be just what the Nixon Administration wanted, according to Washington correspondent James Bishop Jr.

Addressing a convention of the Family Camping Federation here recently, Bishop, who writes environmental news for Newsweek, said that a high administration official pointed this scenario for him.

The official, Bishop said, indicated that the administration has encouraged Buying a car?

Think it over

clashes between environmentalists and corporate energy producers to make political gains.

The source added that the administration expects the U.S. Jewish community to turn on the environmental movement when U.S. dollars begin flowing to Arab oil states.

BISHOP CHASTISED the U.S. government for having "no energy policy" and for "hanging onto an antiquated oil import program."

Now, he noted, Gov. John Love of Colorado has been appointed the administration's "energy czar." But, Bishop said, Love has failed to respond to pressure for a "short-term fix" of the crisis in the form of oil allocation. As a result, the nation will probably encounter a heating oil shortage this winter which may force Congress to take punitive action against the oil industry.

Des Plaines Juniors plan antique show

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines will hold "Antiques and Uniques," an antique show and sale featuring collectibles from throughout the Midwest, Sunday, Oct. 14, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Union Hall, Mount Prospect Road and Oakton, Des Plaines.

In addition to the antique show, booths featuring items handmade by the Juniors will be on display with proceeds to benefit various charities supported by the club.

Admission at the door will be $1.50 for adults; children under 12 will be admitted free if accompanied by an adult. Advance tickets at $1 are now available by calling 299-3767. Refreshments will be available.

Sam Young speaker at GOP women dinner

Cong. Sam Young, R-10th, will be guest of honor and speaker at the Maine Township Republican Women's Club annual smorgasbord dinner Sunday, Oct. 14, at 5 p.m. at Nielson's Restaurant, 6475 Mannheim Road, Des Plaines.

Young will discuss the Washington scene as he sees it and will answer questions from the floor.

A $5 donation will be charged. Reservations may be made by calling Jeanne Kilian, 824-8374, or Geraldine Matusek, 824-4252. The dinner is not limited to any political or other specialized group.

Luncheon with 'ruffles'

"Ruffles and Raffles" is the theme of Luncheon '73 for the Woman's Club of Inverness which will be presented Thursday, Oct. 18. Setting for the fashion show luncheon is Turnberry Country Club, Crystal Lake.

Cocktails will be served at 11:30 when guests are invited to tour the new country club; luncheon will begin at 12:30. Tickets are $7.50 and reservations may be made by calling 358-4170 or 358-7077.

"Ruffles" for the fashion show will be presented by Beatrice Dorsey of Dundee. Esther Korbelik of Long Grove will set the mood with piano accompaniment during the luncheon and fashion show.

Chairmen of the benefit are Mrs. Robert Jaeger and Mrs. E. Gunderson.

The club developed the Inverness Children's Library, a story hour for pre-school children and a summer reading program for pre-school through sixth grade children. It also sponsors scholarships for summer music and art programs and to an area student attending Harper. As a conservation project the club participated in the beautification of Colfax Corners and in landscaping and maintaining the Colfax-Baldwin Road entrance to Inverness. All of these projects are made available by the proceeds of the benefit luncheon.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Help! I'm most disturbed at finding tiny bugs among papers and books infrequently used. How do you get rid of these pests — and what do you do to prevent their recurrence? I feel as if I'm being invaded.

—Mrs. P. B.
These sound like book lice — the generic term for them being psocids. As a rule, their appearance denotes excess moisture. If you can dry up the area by providing plenty of ventilation, you may be able to get rid of them without any trouble. As a rule, an infestation like this will disappear when the heat is turned on in the fall. Some suggest that sprinkling borax among the pages — and getting the books out of the house — will do the trick. Unfortunately, if it's a bad infestation, a professional exterminator will be necessary.

Dear Dorothy: When the ivy on one side of the house started to creep in through the windows and even an air conditioner, we decided it was time to pull it down. But how do we get the hairy roots still sticking to the brick?

—Barbara Herrmann
A brick itself or a good wire brush will take care of most of it — and the weather ought to do the rest.

Dear Dorothy: I'm grateful for an item you carried about keeping brown sugar soft and moist. When I find the brown sugar turning hard, I now fold up a piece of paper toweling, wet it and put it on top of the inner waxed paper. In a couple of days the sugar is soft and stays soft.

—Bernice Hiller

Dear Dorothy: A tip on freshening up feather pillows — wait for a cloudy, windy day. A hot, sunny day can dry up the oil in the feathers.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Picture this: a truck piled high with potatoes is careening down the road.

The truck hits a bump; a few potatoes come tumbling off the truck onto the highway. A woman with a straw basket hurries over to scoop up an instant harvest.

A second truck hits the bump, drops a few and a woman is again there to pick up the potatoes. After the third truck duplicates the action and the woman grabs her booty, a man standing near her as she stoops to retrieve asks what she is doing. She replies, "My shopping." This was my introduction to "the Potato King."

Little did I realize while I was making like a bargain hunter that the owner of thousands of acres of potatoes (and a caravan of trucks) was taking in the whole scene with some degree of amusement.

ACTUALLY, THIS potato retriever was reliving her childhood, when we neighborhood urchins hung about the ice-man in the summer heat hoping he would drip on us.

Later when I found myself invited to the Potato King's vast acres to pick potatoes to my heart's content, I learned from him many helpful hints on raising potatoes that I would like to share with you. Potatoes need a light, loamy soil to grow, no heavy clay or hardpan, but lots of sand and organic matter. Manure urges potatoes to thrive. Potatoes themselves are a good creaming crop (meaning they bring the soil into condition).

Although potatoes are a lazy man's crop and easy to grow, there are two important tasks to their culture — earthing up and weeding.

The grower hills up the sprouted tubers when the plants are six inches high and the leaf tips show and then again four weeks later. This is to support the stems and protect the tubers. If you leave potatoes exposed to the sun, they will turn green and as such are unfit for kitchen use.

THE PROS USE potato sets of about two ounces — the size of hen eggs. The more eyes on the sets the more potatoes. Of course, there are many people including me who do not buy seed potatoes, but simply wait until the potatoes in the kitchen sprout. And there are those like my Aunt T who grow from left-over potato peelings.

Next, watch for the flowers on the plants to bloom. Wait four to six weeks after blooming, and you will not go wrong in calculating the right time to harvest. You can leave the potatoes, in the ground longer, but it's best to harvest all potatoes before the leaves turn yellow — or before all the trucks have passed your local bump.

Pi Phi's show crafts Oct. 2

The Des Plaines-Park Ridge chapter of Pi Beta Phi, will hold its annual display and sale of Arrowcraft products Tuesday, Oct. 2, from 2 to 7 p.m., at the home of Mrs. James Davlin, 1412 S. Western, Park Ridge.

The sale, open to the public, will feature authentic, handmade products from Arrowmont, a Pi Beta Phi-supported crafts school located in Gatlinburg, Tenn. The school was founded in 1912 by Pi Beta Phi to teach native crafts to the Tennessee mountain people.

Through the University of Tennessee, Arrowmont offers undergraduate and graduate credit to students participating in the enameling, spinning, ceramics, macrame, jewelry-making and weaving classes as well as many other craft programs.

Among the items to be offered at the area show are handcrafted wooden objects, handwoven placemats, stoles, bags, baby blankets and handmade Christmas ornaments, pottery and jewelry. Items from the catalog may also be ordered. Proceeds will go toward the support of Arrowmont.

from Paillard who brought you the fine Hasselblad Camera, now brings you a 35mm system.

Because the motorized Auto Winder prepares every thing for the next shot 1/2 second after you lift your finger from the shutter release button. And, it lets you keep your eye glued to the finder eyepiece, following up your subject, even during auto-winding action. In other words, you're always ready for the decisive moment because the Auto Winder takes care of everything automatically. (Detachable for manual operations.)

The new CC (Control Center) Pentaprism Finder also helps by slowing the actual aperture setting on the ring, plus exposure adjustments and a fast split image rangefinder spot, for speedy centralized shooting controls. (Exchangeable with waist level finders.)

Finally, the newly developed multi-coated 50mm f/1.4 RE GN Topcon M lens automatically sets the flstop for the distance focused, by simply locking the guide number (GN) into the lens. Flash Mate operation means speedier shooting in the flash photography, without flash calculations, too.

A success story— 'Tiebreaker weekend'

THE TIEBREAKER rule is quickly turning head coaches into connoisseurs of late night television shows.

"My gosh, at 3:30 in the morning I was still watching John Wayne movies," said Maine West coach Jim Morel.

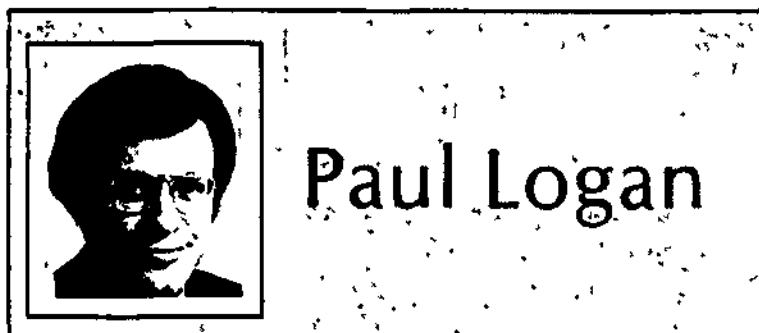

"I stayed up and watched an old movie," added Norman Henderson, coach of Paxton High School in southern Illinois.

These two gentlemen have the distinction of being involved in the first known overtime playoffs in Illinois using the Kansas Plan. Friday night saw Maine West and Maine South and Paxton and Danville Schlarman deadlocked at 7-7 each after regulation time had expired.

West and South traded touchdowns and extra points before the Warriors scored again and stopped the Hawks for a 21-14 thriller.

The Paxton Mustangs outscored hosting Danville 8-0 for a 15-7 sudden victory.

Paul Logan

"Before (the overtime) they were just a little bit apprehensive. They didn't know what to expect. They enjoyed the idea of playing to win rather than to tie. Some kids forgot (we had the tiebreaker) and were disappointed at the end 'cause it ended in a tie."

As for the fans, he added:

"We had hysteria over here. The place just went up for grabs — players and fans alike. It was unbelievable."

Since you've got Proviso East (in the battle of tiebreaker winners) this weekend, coach, how would you like to enjoy such excitement again?

"Once is enough," said Morel. "I'd just as soon not have to go through it again."

Joe Krupa, Proviso's head man, has a slightly different view of the tiebreaker.

"As long as you win, they're all right," said this former Pittsburgh Steeler player.

"I think it's a good thing. If a team comes up to tie you, to them it's a victory, to us it's a loss."

New Trier had done just that — deadlocked the game in the final minutes and missed the two-point conversion to win in regulation.

"We were surprised we were tied," said Krupa. "That made us more jubilant when we won the tiebreaker. To us it was like another shot."

Paxton, a school of 580 in central Illinois, has been a power over the last six years under Henderson with a 40-11 record. The Mustangs beat Waukegan Conference foe Schlarman by scoring first and then holding.

"The clock ran out on the last play," recalled Henderson of hosting Danville's near miss TD in regulation time. "The officials hesitated on the signal as to whether it was a touchdown or not. It was on the one foot line... real close."

"This is my second tie in 15 years of coaching," said Henderson. "I hadn't had a tie in the last 12 years."

"I think it's a great thing — coaching in an overtime. I think that if you've played four hard quarters, it's kind of a letdown ending in a tie."

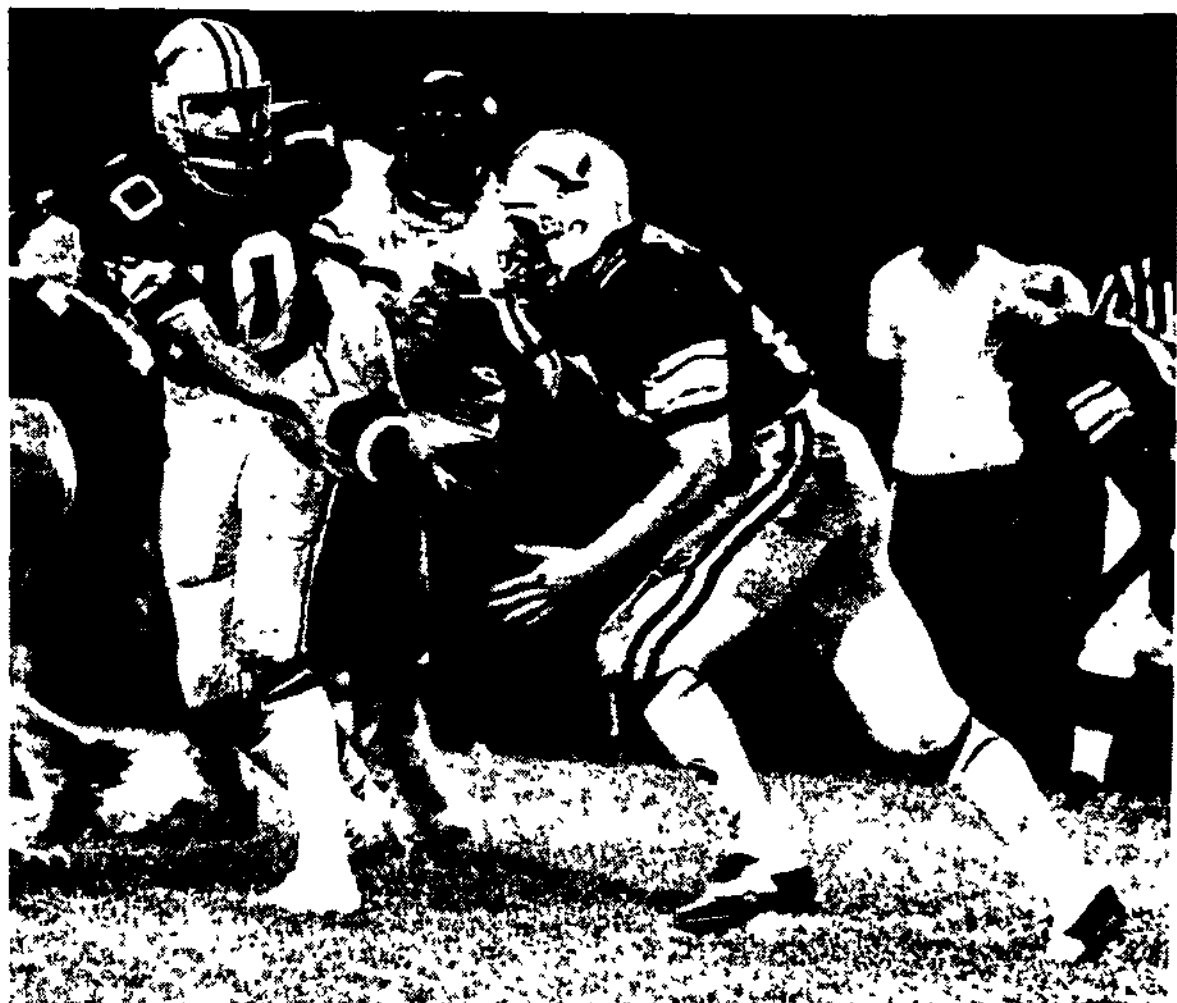

Henderson also thinks the Kansas Plan will put added emphasis on the kicking game:

"You are talking about a field goal from extra point range. If you have a good field goal kicker, you might elect to go on defense first and then kick the field goal on fourth down if your defense keeps them from scoring. I think a lot of coaches are going to think more about developing kickers in the future."

All three victorious coaches agreed that a guaranteed winner, a statewide rule with the playoffs next year, will add a lot to the game. Morel sort of summed it up for the trio when he added:

"It will do a lot more for the game. There will be more fan participation, like baseball and basketball, because you know there will be an eventual winner and loser."

the afternoon, the two teams also needed a double overtime to decide a contest that ended 28-28 after 48 minutes of play. Both teams went for the two-point conversion and missed to make it 34-34. Then Proviso slapped eight more on the scoreboard and won 42-34!

Thus, only two ties were reported on the wire services last weekend, both involving teams whose conferences weren't playing the Kansas Plan. Briefly — for those of you who aren't familiar with the tiebreaker — each team receives four downs, starting at the 10 yard line, in which to score.

"Some thought the game was over," recalled Morel of the crowd. "Suddenly it was announced... teams would play to win... Boy, excitement started general."

Morel admitted that "we anticipated this happening this week." It was the first season for tiebreakers in the Central Suburban League as well as several other conferences throughout the state. The Mid-Suburban League was the first to experiment with the rule last year, but no game ever ended deadlocked.

"We prepared for it," Jim continued. "We felt we'd take the ball first."

Since the passing game is considered much more difficult from 10 yards out and an interception could possibly end the team's chances, Morel's thinking going into the game was one of running. However, the situation naturally dictated. Several runs and a pass scored the first TD; four straight runs netted the second score — the eventual winner.

"It was just unbelievable excitement," said Morel. "I think it was probably one of the most exciting wins I ever experienced, playing or coaching. It had everything a game should have. Both (teams) were playing well enough to win... Then the fact of being the first time the overtime had been tried in the CSL."

As far as the kids' reaction, he said this:

Huskies-Falcons on radio Friday

The important Mid-Suburban League football confrontation Friday evening between host Hersey and Forest View will be the featured game on WWMN-FM radio.

WM Director of Sports Bud Kelly and Herald Sports Editor Bob Friak will be at the 92.7 microphones at 8 p.m. for the battle between the North Division Huskies and South Division Falcons.

North gets fifth soccer win; West sophs undefeated

John Monaghan and Doug Dickson kicked goals Tuesday as Maine North's varsity soccer team shut out Deerfield, 2-0, in a Central Suburban League game. Andy Newman was in goal for the Norsemen, now 5-1 overall and 3-1 in CSL play.

Also on Tuesday, Highland Park blanked Maine West, 2-0, leaving the Warriors 3-3-1 overall and 2-3 in CSL games. The Warrior sophomores remained undefeated in seven games with a 3-0 decision over Highland Park.

Four NBA teams to play in Arlington gym Sunday

For only the second time ever, the Chicago Bulls will play a game in the Herold area Sunday night.

The first time was two years ago when Coach Dick Motta's Bulls downed Cincinnati at the Prospect Fieldhouse. Sunday it will be the Arlington High Lettermen's "A" Club presenting the contest against the Cleveland Cavaliers at Grace Gym.

And that's only half the attraction. The first game of a doubleheader will pit the Kansas City-Omaha Kings against the Houston Rockets.

There will be individual as well as team attractions. The Kings feature probably the flashiest player and the best scorer and playmaker in the league, Nate Archibald. The Cavaliers will showcase No. 1 draft choice Jim Brewer, a former Illinois All-State player who led Proviso East to a state championship in 1969, plus the dazzling Austin Carr of Notre Dame.

The first game between the Kings and Rockets will begin at 6 p.m. with the Bulls-Cavaliers contest at 8:30.

The twin bill is one in a series of exhibition games called the Mid-Central Pre-season Classic involving the four teams. A trophy will be presented to the winner at the end of the series.

The games were originally scheduled for Chicago Stadium, but had to be moved because of a delay in tickets. New business manager John Kerr (former Bulls coach and pro great) announced the switch to Grace Gym, which seats at least 3,000.

Tickets are $4 apiece and are available on a non-reserve basis from 8:00 to 4:00 every day in room 251 at the school through Friday afternoon. Or tickets may be purchased from any member of the "A" Club. Doors will open at 5 p.m. Sunday.

This will be the Bulls' only Chicago area appearance in the pre-season until they open the regular season against the Los Angeles Lakers Oct. 9 at the Stadium.

The Bulls won their first two exhibition games, beating the Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association, then downing the Philadelphia 76ers 114-104.

Arlington wins again in tennis

Arlington's girls tennis team remained unbeaten Tuesday with a 7-0 victory over Rolling Meadows in Mid-Suburban action.

Fremd, the other unbeaten entry, had a bye and did not compete. Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, and Wheeling are the other teams with three or more victories.

In addition to Arlington's win Tuesday, Palatine blanked Schaumburg 7-0; Wheeling defeated Buffalo Grove 6-1; Elk Grove topped Hoffman Estates 7-0; Hersey edged Forest View 4-3; and Prospect dumped Conant 6-1.

INTERFERENCE! Palatine's Jim Hickey doesn't get the chance to catch a Andy Donahue pass as an unidentified Schaumburg defender locks his arms. The Pirates, aided by Hickey's successful receptions and those of Mike McCostlin, won 32-19 Friday. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Kaye's passes blast Rockford

Quarterback Jesse Kaye passed for five touchdowns last Saturday to lead the Lake County Rifles into first place of the Central States Football League with a 38-20 win over the Rockford Rams.

Kaye completed 14-of-33 passes for 311 yards as Lake County dominated from beginning to end. He had one intercepted.

Both teams now have 7-1 records in the Southern division of the CSFL. Lake County had previously lost 19-6 to Rockford, so under league rules, it had to win by more than 13 points to gain first place.

More than 4,000 fans crowded into Carmel Field in Winnebago for the game. Most were still watching when Jeff Allen caught his second touchdown pass from Kaye with one minute remaining to assure first place for the Rifles.

Lake County rolled up 449 yards total offense, most of it on Kaye's passing.

Rockford had 280 yards and could complete just seven of 29 passes.

The win, however, does not secure a South division title for Lake County. The Rifles have a road date with the Madison (Wis.) Mustangs on Saturday. That club leads the league in offense and defense.

Lake County failed to score early after Tony Bertuca recovered a Rockford fumble on the 25-yard line. Later, halfbacks Cliff Boyd and Levi Mitchell moved the Rifles into position for Larry Schultz's 40-yard field goal at 3:52 of the first period. Boyd tallied 93 yards rushing.

Two Rockford field goals by Bob Hight gave the Rams a 6-3 lead. But A. J. Owens caught his third pass for 42 yards and a touchdown as Lake County went ahead, 10-6, after Schultz added the first of five extra point kicks.

Kaye spread his remaining four touchdown passes around to Owens, Allen and Carskie.

Prospect survives Falcons; Arlington golfers win pair

Prospect, the Mid-Suburban pre-season favorite to win the fall golf crown, survived a serious threat by talented Forest View before squeaking out a 157-158 triumph at Indian Lakes Golf Course. Rolling Meadows finished third in the double-dual with 173 strokes.

The Knights were coasting to their third and fourth victories of the year through four players, but Falcon Bob Appleton fired a sparkling 36 to go along with 40's by Dave Martindale and Dan Meier and Rick Keyser's 42.

Prospect countered behind the consistent shooting of John McBride's 38, Craig Ridley's 39, and 40's by Steve Spielman and Ron Swanson. In suffering a pair of setbacks, Meadows counted the 42's by Ken Hatfield and Scott Burkhardt, Tom Munson's 44 and Tom Schramm's 45.

Arlington ran its record to 3-1 by clipping Conant, 162-166 while Elk Grove was four shots back at 170 in another MSL double-dual meet.

The Cardinals parlayed steady 40's by Steve Loughman and Tom Olcese with 41's by Doug Sandell and Jay Colleton over Palatine Hills' par 36 layout. Conant recorded Kevin Eakins' 39, 42's by Dave Sidlin and Pete Pavich and Tim Davey's 43.

Elk Grove was paced by Scott Walker's 39, added Mark Johnson's 42, Mike Kwon's 43 and a 46 by Scott Helm.

Schaumburg broke into the win column in a non-conference battle with West Chicago, 168-177. The Saxons fired their best score of the fall over St. Andrews as Ron Gentuso carded 40, Scott Richards 41, Keith Abraham 43 and Greg Governale 44.

Prospect harriers capture two wins in Mid-Suburban Prospect was a two-time winner and Wheeling split in a Mid-Suburban League double dual, while Forest View won a pair outside the league, in Tuesday cross country.

The Knights, with one of the best teams coach Joe Wanner has had, routed Elk Grove 16-41 and Wheeling 16-39 while Wheeling was a 19-43 winner over Elk Grove Forest View, meanwhile, whipped North Chicago 15-48 and Crown 23-32.

Jeff Chamberlain was the winner for Prospect on their 2175-mile home course with 14:46. The Knights took the first four places with Rich Podgorny, Rich Reithal and Greg Tobias following.

Bruce Messinger was Wheeling's top man with fifth and Dave Jackson of Elk Grove was sixth. Next were Bob Thompson of Prospect, then five Wheeling runners in a row — August Zicarelli, Jim Leeper, Rich Reese, Steve Erickson and John Messinger.

Forest View yielded the first and fourth spots but took all the rest of the first seven. Mike Ham ran 15:36 for second, and next were Fred Gruenwald, and place. Tony Hess was a second best Steve Goerschler and Steve Schellenberger.

Short circuit causes problems

A short circuit in a light pole at the Prospect High School football field resulted in flashing lights and an electrified fence during the Arlington-Prospect football game Friday.

Officials of High School Dist. 214 said this week they still are not sure exactly what caused the short. Asst. Supt. Robert Weber said officials of Commonwealth Edison have been unable to pinpoint the exact cause of the problem.

"It was one of those fluky things that can't possibly happen, but do happen," Weber said. He explained that a short in the light pole had somehow resulted in an arch of current being transferred to the fence on the west side of the football field.

No injuries resulted from the mishap, Weber said, because members of the Prospect High School Booster Club and Prospect faculty members guarded the fence to keep spectators away.

Weber also added that Commonwealth Edison has also recommended that the district electrically ground the fence separately from its posts and from the light pole. The light poles and fence posts are now grounded.

International Ski Show set for Arlington Park

Chicago will again be among the major cities playing host to the international Ski Show from Oct. 25 through Oct. 28 at the Arlington Park Exposition Center.

The theme of The Ski Show—expowinter 73 is "A Freestyle Festival"—a tribute to this increasingly popular and imaginative style of skiing. Different from all other Ski Shows, this year's expowinter 73 will have more than 200 unusual exhibits and events to prove it. Attendees will find totally new information, instruction, demonstration and entertainment features...all conveniently arranged into three separate areas of interest.

An exhibition of freestyle skiing will take place on the giant Ski-Dek, where some of the world's best will show their styles. 1973 World Champions John Clendenin, "Airborne Eddie" Ferguson, Scotty Brooksbank, Wayne Wong, Corky Fowler, Pat Karnik and Mike Lund will perform wheelies, outriggers, kick-outs and some dazzling aerial stunts so new they haven't been named yet. To add to the excitement, the stars will compete against each other and rip off their own tricks in the Samsonite "American Freestyle Invitational."

In the Celanese '73 Fashion Preview, a crew of talented acrobats will give a dynamic, "like" performance...not on skis...but on trampolines and balance beams! Members of top U.S. gymnastic teams will demonstrate the flexibility, stretchability, and wearability of the newest skiwear in a ski fashion show choreographed by Olympic gymnast Cathy Rigby Mason.

Ski Magazine will offer "The Ski School," with a curriculum of John Perryman's ski course for '73, GLM lessons from PSIA, Alpine Racing '73, and freestyle techniques. Skiing Magazine will present the brand new "Skiing Equipment Center," where experts Doug Pfeiffer and Gordon Lipe will explain the

Rainwood Bowling League

The Rainwood Mixed Bowling League began its season with Eric Anderson showing he is ready with high marks of 349 and 336. Bill Lowman had 498-182 while the women were led by Mickey Bury's 441-168, Helen Zylstra's 418-154 and Ilene Forman's 404. Kay Wierzbicki came through with a 183 game as did Warner Ciske with 187.

At Beverly Lanes

Northwest Trust and Savings Bank led a very closely-balanced Polka Dots Women's League at Beverly Lanes with four wins and two losses...Colburn's Shop, Winkelman's Bike Shop, A Sun Post and Saurin's Flower Shop each broke even while Prond Homes Inc. won two...Linda Plesco fired a 204 and Glny Byrne 211, both with handicaps...Joan Bischof had a 122 handicap series.

latest technical aspects of the largest array of advanced skiing equipment ever assembled.

Other highlights are as follows: the Budweiser Winter-garden, fro apres-ski ambience, a frosty brew...and music, too; the new Ski Touring Course, where ski show attendees can actually try cross-country skiing technique and gear; the Ski Waxing Center; the Ski Council Hospitality Center, a great gathering place for ski buddies and bunnies to meet and plan their tour of the show; the American Express/Skiing Travel Center; the Great Ski Swap and Used Ski Sale for equipment bargains; the YMCA Ski Fitness Test; the Ski Film Festival, with six new ski movies.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

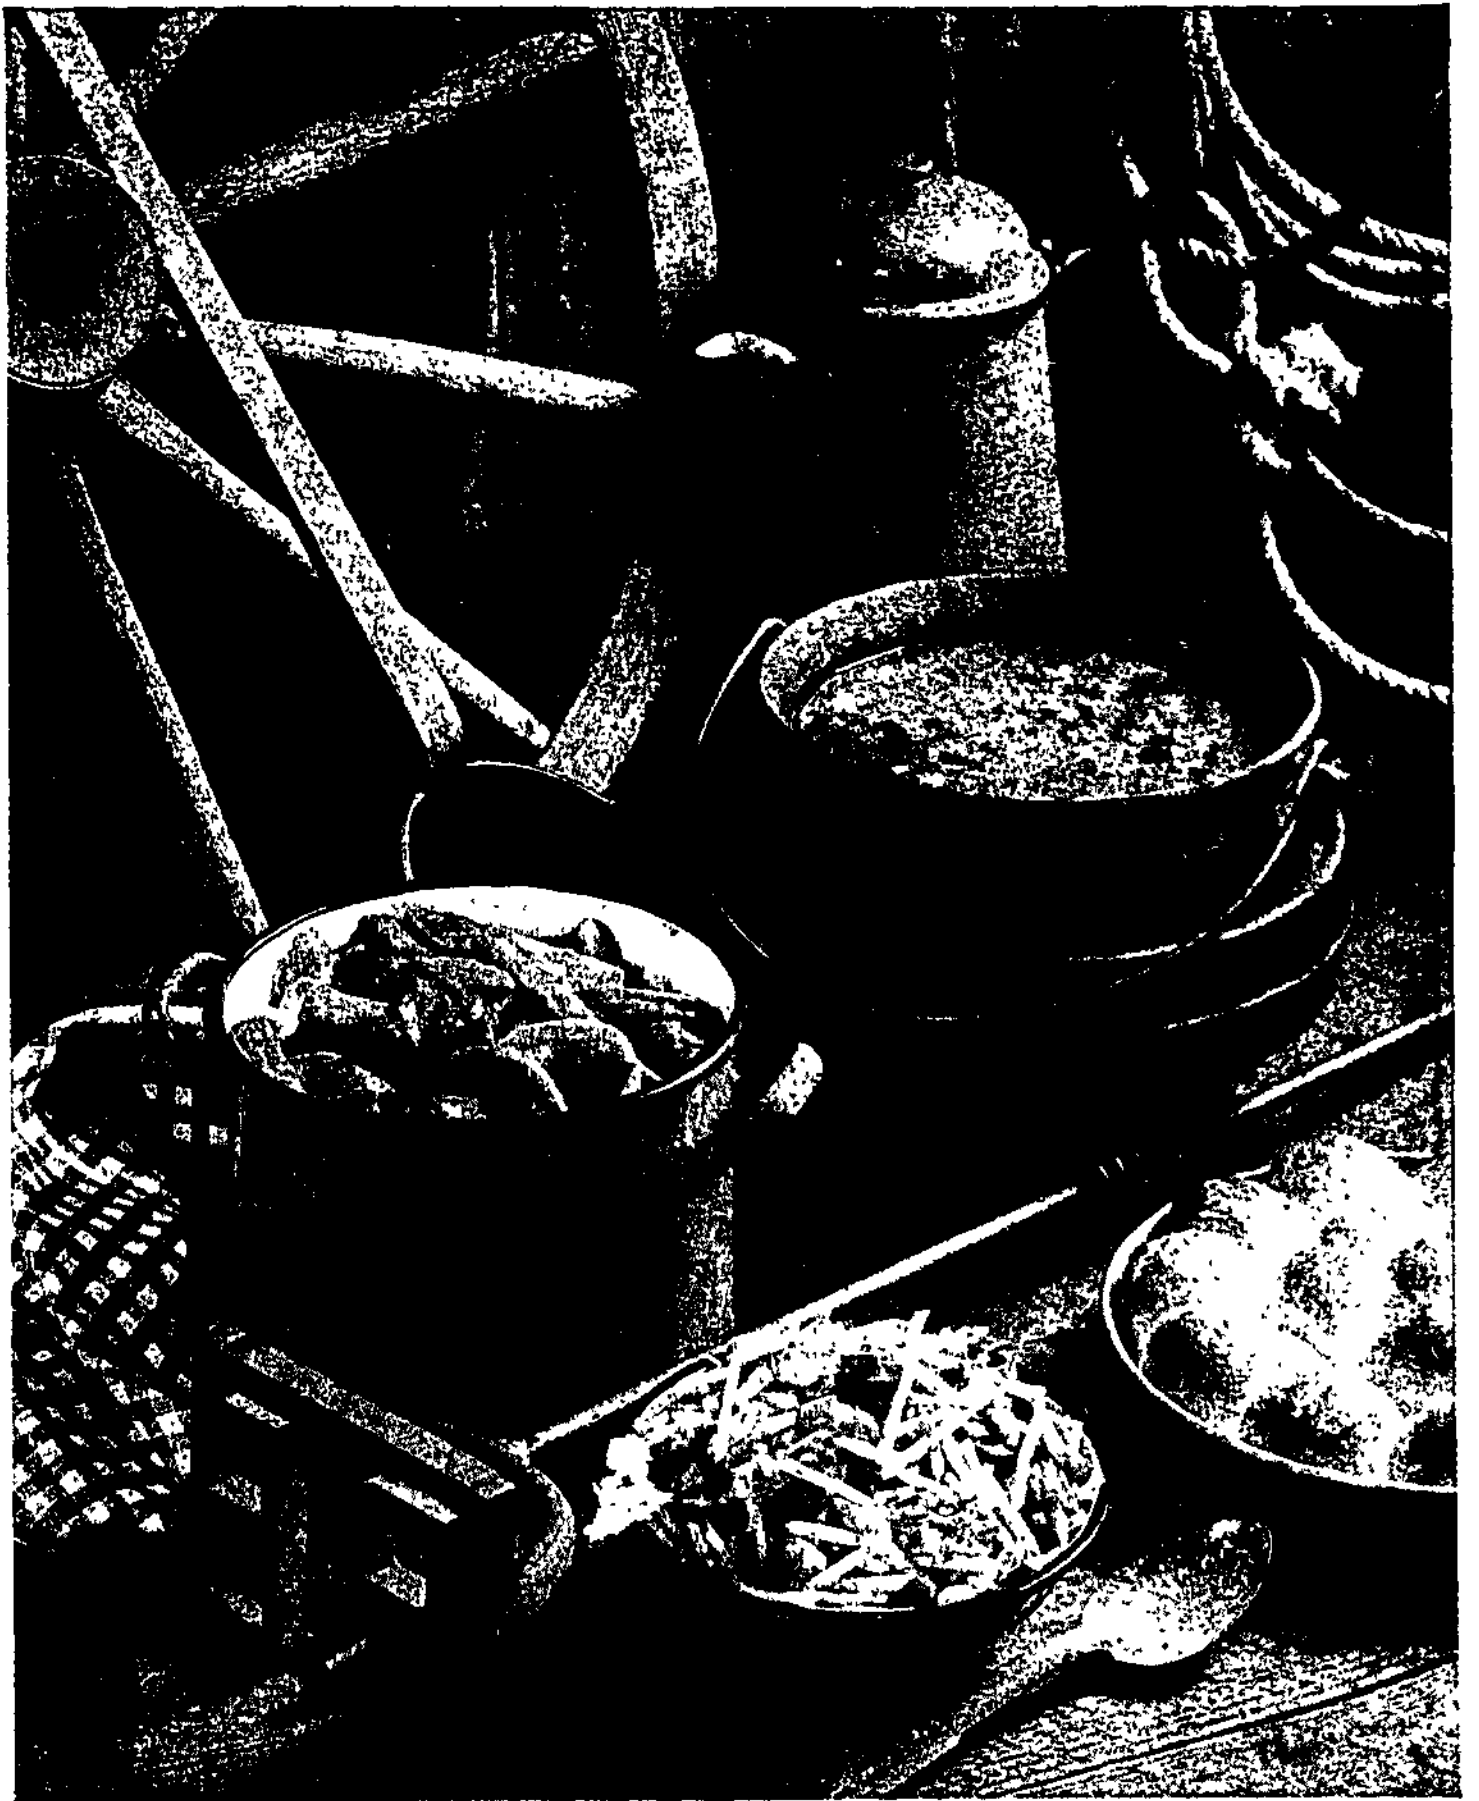

CHUCK WAGON CHOW

At its best, chuck wagon cooking was never elegant. But, what it lacked in fancy it made up for in flavor. A good chuck wagon cook could take the basic beans and beef and transform them into tantalizing steaks, hearty stews, or a steaming pot of chili.

Though cattle drives and chuck wagons belong to the past, chuck wagon style dishes are very much a part of today's camping, picnic and barbecue scenes.

Today's featured recipes are fashioned with the smack and tang of the old wild West yet are easily made with the modern help of convenience foods.

"PIE BOX" STEW

("Pie Box" was Western slang for chuck wagon)

- 3 pounds beef cubes (1 1/2-inch)
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 2 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) mushroom gravy
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 1 large bay leaf
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Generous dash pepper
- 8 medium carrots (about pound), cut diagonally in 1-inch pieces
- 2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen whole baby okra

In large heavy pan, brown meat in shortening; pour off fat. Add gravy and seasonings. Cover; cook over low heat 1 hour 30 minutes. Add carrots; cook 45 minutes. Stir now and then. Add okra; cook 15 minutes more. Stir now and then. Remove bay leaf before serving. Makes about 9 cups.

A BOWL OF RED

(That's Texas talk for chili)

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 5 tablespoons chili powder
- 2 teaspoons cumin seed
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced
- 2 cans (10 1/4 ounces each) beef gravy
- 2 cans (16 ounces each) tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 3 cans (16 ounces each) kidney beans
- 1/4 cup corn meal

In large heavy pan, brown beef and cook onion with chili, cumin, and garlic until tender. Add gravy, tomatoes, salt, and red pepper. Cook over low heat 25 minutes. Stir now and then. Add beans and corn meal. Cook, stirring for 5 minutes or until thickened. Makes about 14 cups.

STEAK SAUCE

(Enough to sauce 6 hamburger patties or a 2-lb. steak)

- 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) brown gravy with onions
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- Generous dash hot pepper sauce

In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Cook over low heat 5 minutes. Stir now and then. Makes about 1 1/2 cups sauce.

BRAGGIN' BISCUITS

(Similar to the famous sourdough biscuits)

- 3 cups biscuit mix
- 1 cup plain yogurt

In bowl, mix ingredients thoroughly with fork. Form dough into ball. Knead 5 times on floured board. Divide dough into 16 equal parts; shape each piece into a smooth ball. Place in ungreased 8-inch cake pan. Bake at 450 degrees for 20 minutes or until done. Makes 16 biscuits.

COWPOKE 'TATERS

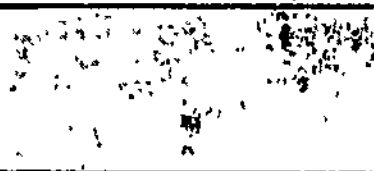

(Cowpoke is short for cowpuncher, another name for cowboy)

- 6 slices bacon
- 1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 cans (about 2 ounces each) potato sticks

In skillet, cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons drippings. In drippings, brown mushrooms and cook pepper until tender. Add potatoes and bacon. Heat; stir now and then. Makes about 4 cups.

WORKING FULL TIME does not stop Mrs. Rich Gravesmill of Des Plaines from adding homemade flavor to her menus. One of her specialties is homemade noodles. She rolls the dough out on the kitchen table using cornstarch rather than flour to keep the dough from sticking and give the noodles a better quality. Mrs. Gravesmill recommends cutting the noodles thinner for soup and wider for casseroles dishes.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

More than one-third of the money American families spend for food each week goes for meat, poultry and fish items, according to the latest national food consumption survey by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Naturally, the range in costs of different cuts of meat is great, so careful selection of these products can result in worthwhile savings.

To take advantage of the best buys, you need to be aware of the many cuts of meat available and how to use them in family meals. The economy of a cut depends on the amount of cooked lean meat it provides as well as its price per pound.

Often the cut with a low price per pound is not the best buy in food value or in servings of meat provided. For example, a relatively high-priced meat with little or no waste may become more economical than a low-priced cut with a great deal of bone, gristle or fat.

SIMILAR FOOD value can be obtained from the same size servings of different types and cuts of meats. Generally, cooked lean pot roast is as nutritious as that from steak, turkey as nutritious as veal; fish as nutritious as lean lamb. Liver and other variety meats give a bonus of food value.

Assuming average amount of waste and that three ounces of cooked lean meat are counted as one serving, the following guidelines may be used for determining the amount of meat to buy.

Center cut of ham, veal cutlet, fish steak and fillets, flank steak, ground meat, round steak, lean stew meat, boned roast and liver all provide three or four servings per pound for cuts with little or no fat or bone.

Two or three servings per pound can be obtained from most roasts, some chops and steaks, ham, poultry and dressed fish.

FIGURE ONE to two servings from cuts with much bone, gristle or fat. Meats in this category include rib chops of lamb, pork or veal, porterhouse, T-bone, club steaks, chicken wings and back and short ribs.

The servings per pound will, of course, vary depending on how much family

Mrs. Rich Gravesmill

She makes time for interesting meals

by LOIS SEILER

How does a mother of two manage a home and a full time career and still provide her family with interesting meals?

"You make the time to do what you want to do," said Dorothy Gravesmill of Des Plaines, whose only wish is that there were 36 hours in a day instead of 24.

An obstetrical nurse at Lutheran General Hospital, Dorothy finds that working nights allows her more time for her family. She sleeps during the day and is up and about when school is over, with ample time to prepare an appetizing dinner.

Having grown up on a farm in Ohio, Dorothy learned to cook early in life. Her father was a chef for restaurants in Akron and taught her many of the basics, from the proper use of knives and cutting boards to seasoning with spices and herbs. From her mother she learned many of the tricks in putting together a tasty meal. Little use was made of recipes; Dorothy learned primarily from watching and doing, and even today she admits to cooking primarily by instinct and taste.

Both of her own daughters, Carol, a junior at Eastern Illinois University, and Meg, a sixth grader at Cumberland School, learned to cook as youngsters and are quite capable of putting together an appealing meal.

From the time they were little, the girls loved to help Dorothy make homemade noodles. Dorothy uses her mother's recipe, rolling out the dough on her large, round formica kitchen table.

"Homemade noodles will keep well for a couple of weeks, but they should be used, not stored," Dorothy said.

This cook makes her own homemade bread as well as noodles, and about both she says, "Once you get in the habit of making them, you'll never be satisfied with the commercial variety."

"Noodles are very easy to make," Dorothy emphasized, "and they have more body and flavor and are more tender than any you can buy. They can turn a tuna casserole into a real taste treat."

She uses them for stroganoff, to dress up leftover pork or beef tidbits, with seafood concoctions and in homemade chicken soup. They are also delicious served plain buttered, or with parsley and Parmesan cheese, and served as an accompaniment for any meat.

Most appreciative of her cooking is Dorothy's husband, Rich, who keeps his wife supplied with the latest cook books. A Lemon Bisque, made by one of his mother's recipes, is a family favorite.

Simple to prepare, the bisque has a vanilla wafer crust and topping with a light lemon filling. Dorothy appreciates the delicate texture that makes the dessert so easy to digest after a substantial meal, while Rich likes the refreshing lemon tang that is "just right and doesn't bite back at you."

Dorothy has taken courses in French and Japanese cooking and yeast breads. Whatever free time she has available is spent working with children. On her days off she can be found doing volunteer work at the Instructional Materials Center of Cumberland School, where she is also picture lady.

1/2-inch wide for use in casseroles. Let dry three to four hours. Store in plastic bags until ready to use.

LEMON BISQUE

2 1/2 cups vanilla wafers
1 small package lemon gelatin
1 1/4 cups boiling water
1/3 cup granulated sugar or honey
1/8 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated rind of one lemon
1 large can Milnot, well-chilled
Crush vanilla wafers fine with rolling pin or blender.

Dissolve gelatin in water. Add sugar, salt, lemon juice and rind. When partially congealed, beat slightly with a wire whisk.

Beat chilled Milnot with a whisk or electric beater until fairly stiff. Turn gelatin mixture into whipped milnot and blend well.

Put half of the vanilla wafer crumbs into the bottom of an oiled 9 by 13 or 10 by 13-inch pan. Pour in lemon mixture and top with remaining crumbs. Chill in refrigerator until set, preferably overnight. Serves 12.

SUE AND GARY Rosentrator of Buffalo Grove don't need a special occasion for preparing a Chinese-style dinner on their Weber wok. Gary usually does the actual cooking while Sue helps with the recipe creation and food preparation before the cooking begins.

Chinese cookery moves outdoors

by FRAN HECKART

It will take more than the first fall breeze to prompt Gary and Sue Rosentrator to retire their Weber grill for the season. Conveniently located on the deck just outside the dining room of their Buffalo Grove home, the grill has become an integral part of the family's meal preparations.

Having had a longstanding interest in Mexican and various other types of cooking, the Rosentrators broadened their interests this season. They took up outdoor Chinese cooking. The couple purchased a Weber Wok Pan for about $20 and it's been fried rice rather than hamburgers ever since.

Gary has become so adept at outdoor wok cooking that he can prepare and serve an entire dinner from the wok. He and Sue devised their own recipes for a soy mixture which they use with vegetables, meat and fried rice. Although they often use the recipes provided by the manufacturers, their recipe has become quite popular too.

In keeping with Chinese custom, foods are cooked in a very short time over a hot fire. Food preparation is done in advance so the actual cooking is a swift, smooth operation taking only minutes. Gary's basic hint for beginners is, "work fast."

The food is cooked in hot oil. Fresh vegetable or peanut oil can be used; however, the Rosentrators are fortunate enough to know a friendly butcher so they have access to and use suet.

For the following menu, which includes vegetables, sirloin steak and fried rice, both Sue and Gary recommend plum wine for dessert and shrimp appetizers.

For an Oriental flavor Gary often cooks the shrimp in the wok with sake.

He simply puts fresh shrimp into the hot, oiled wok, then adds approximately half a cup sake. A tight-fitting cover (Gary uses a pie pan) is placed over the shrimp so they will steam for a few minutes with the sake. Recipes to complete the menu follow.

SOY MIXTURE

1 bouillon cube
1/2 cup boiling water
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup sake
1 tablespoon
Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons sugar
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Dissolve bouillon in water and mix with remaining ingredients. (This mixture is used for the entire menu.)

VEGETABLES

Zucchini, sliced
Cucumbers, sliced
Bean sprouts
Chinese vegetables
Mushrooms, fresh or canned
Carrots, sliced
Green peppers
Onion slices
Add all the vegetables to the wok at once. Add soy mixture and stir. Cook about 5 minutes, adding soy mixture as needed.

MEAT

Heat a small amount of suet (or melt a piece of fat cut from the beef) until evidence of smoke. Add strips of sirloin steak (or any tender cut of beef) and toss quickly. Add soy mixture the last 30 seconds. Allow about 2 minutes for medium rare meat.

FRIED RICE

Rice for six servings, cooked

1 pound ground beef
1 can mushrooms, or 1/2 pound fresh, sliced
1 egg

Brown ground beef, mushrooms and rice in wok, stirring constantly. Add egg. Stir. Add soy mixture and continue mixing about 1 or 2 minutes.

SWEET SOUR PORK

1 1/2 pounds pork, cut into strips
1/2 cup water
1 No. 2 can pineapple chunks
1/4 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 cup vinegar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 green pepper, cut into strips
1/4 cup onion, sliced thin

Pour 2 ounces peanut oil into pan and stir until pan has oil coating. Permit to heat until definite evidence of smoke. Brown pork in oil. Add 1/2 cup water; cover and simmer about 15 minutes until pork is tender. Add more water if necessary. Drain pineapple reserving syrup. Combine sugar, cornstarch, juice, vinegar, soy sauce and salt; add to pork, stir and cook until thick. Add pineapple, onion and pepper and cook three minutes. Serve with rice.

Corning offers

cookbook promotion

A cookbook with a variety of recipes from the files of James A. Beard, internationally known gourmet chef and author, has been prepared for Corning Glass Works' use in promoting its smoothtop cooking appliances.

The cookbook, entitled "James Beard Cooks with Corning," features 36 recipes "chosen because they fit into today's style of entertaining," Beard says. Some of the recipes suggest how to serve the particular dish and the appropriate wines to serve with them. The collection includes both exotic dishes for formal parties and ones for those concerned with "economy gastronomy."

The new cookbook is being distributed by Corning smoothtop appliance dealers throughout the country to consumers interested in Corning Appliances.

Make a dessert that's plum great

Desserts from fresh fruits in season offer a very special flavor treat. Taste sensations that fresh fruit such as California plums offer are worth every bit of extra preparation.

COLD PLUM SOUFFLE

6 large California plums, pitted and sliced
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups water
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
5 egg whites stiffly beaten
1/2 cup sugar

Garnish:
1 large California plum, sliced lengthwise
1/2 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon powdered sugar

Combine plums, sugar and 1 cup of the water in a saucepan. Cover and simmer until plums are soft. Press plums through a sieve to make a smooth puree. In the meantime, combine gelatin in remaining one-half cup cold water. Let soften and add to the hot puree, stirring to blend. Cool mixture and place in refrigerator to chill until thick, taking care not to let it set. Beat egg whites until stiff and gradually add one-fourth cup sugar while beating. Carefully fold cold plum mixture into egg whites and spoon into a 3-cup souffle dish to which a two-inch wide foil collar has been attached and firmly fastened with tape or a string.

To serve: Remove collar and garnish with one-half cup whipping cream, whipped and lightly sweetened, by piping with a star tip on pastry bag. Garnish center with thinly sliced plum. Makes 4 to 6 servings, or 1 quart souffle.

NOTE: If mixture seems a bit too light in color, add a drop of red food coloring before combining with egg whites for souffle.

Chiffon creams suit all tastes

Chiffon Cream, made with fresh natural ingredients, tastes great and has a light, airy texture making it a perfect summer dessert.

The basic Vanilla Chiffon Cream may be varied in a number of ways. A little unsweetened cocoa makes Chocolate Chiffon Cream. Instant coffee and a dash of almond extract provide mellow Coffee Chiffon Cream. In Lemon Chiffon Cream, grated lemon rind and lemon juice add tanginess to the basic recipe. Maple-Walnut is another variation, using maple syrup and chopped walnuts. Peppermint extract and a little red food coloring make the fifth variation.

For the family table, serve Chiffon Creams in dessert dishes, glasses, custard cups, bowls, even coffee cups. For party presentation, handsome inexpensive gelatin molds are available in most any variety or hardware store.

With this basic Chiffon Cream recipe — and its several variations — you can design delectable desserts to your fancy any time you wish.

CHIFFON CREAM

Vanilla:
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons plus ¼ cup sugar, divided
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Mix together gelatin, 2 tablespoons sugar and salt in saucepan. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatin mixture. Place over very low heat; stir constantly until gelatin dissolves (until there are no visible granules) and mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is thickened but not lumpy (until it mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon). Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar and beat until stiff.

Fold gelatin mixture into beaten egg whites. Turn into 4-cup bowl, mold, or individual serving dishes. Chill until set. Makes 6 servings.

Chocolate Chiffon Cream: Mix ¼ cup unsweetened cocoa with gelatin, sugar and salt in saucepan and follow basic method.

Coffee Chiffon Cream: Substitute ¼ teaspoon almond extract for vanilla. Mix 2 tablespoons regular instant coffee powder with gelatin, sugar and salt and follow method.

Lemon Chiffon Cream: Substitute 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind and 2 tablespoons lemon juice for vanilla.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

On two occasions in recent years I've vacationed on the rocky shores of coastal Maine near Boothbay Harbor and have studied the cooking lore of this New England area.

The state has high regard for its ancestry and many recipes I uncovered date back more than 100 years. Cookery is dominated by seafood which is plentiful and cheap (in comparison to Middle West prices).

Dinners ranged from lobster, 1½ pounds in size and costing about $2.25, to fresh mackerel which was hooked with our own jig off the boat float.

Lobster is best, in my opinion, steamed rather than boiled or broiled. When you have the steam rolling in a lobster pot, drop the live ones in, cover and cook for 18 to 20 minutes. Served with melted butter and wedges of lemon there is nothing more succulent.

The mackerel is easy to prepare because it has no scales. Cut off head and tail, scrub the interior well and you're ready to cook. I like mackerel pan fried. Dip the fish into a mixture of three parts corn meal and one part flour mixed with salt and pepper and fry in fresh hot shortening until both sides are golden brown. WHEN I COOKED lobster one or two extras were thrown into the steamer to be served cold in salads. For this one, to serve 4, I added tiny Maine shrimp to the lobster meat to total about 1 pound in all.

Prepare lobster meat in bite-size pieces, cook shrimp and chill. In a mixing bowl combine 1 cup sour cream, ¼ cup chili sauce, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup chopped green onion, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper.

For each serving cover bottom of large salad bowls with bibb lettuce and arrange several cuts of crisp head lettuce. Put crabmeat and lobster over the lettuce and place around it wedges of fresh tomato and hard-cooked eggs. Pour over the sauce from the mixing bowl and garnish each salad with wedges of fresh lemon.

This is an attractive and filling lunch-dish. You can substitute water-packed tuna for the lobster meat with almost equally good results.

CANNED FOODS

The cost of most canned foods has increased less than that of fresh meats, fruits and vegetables and frozen and dehydrated products. Yet, a shopper still can save a few pennies when buying canned foods. For example, check the style of what is in the can. No matter the quality, whole fruits and vegetables usually cost more than cut styles. Whole peaches, for example, will cost more (up to 10 cents) than peach slices — in all quality grades. Fancy-cut vegetables, such as julienne carrots, usually cost more than other cut styles.

Freezer hints

To keep frozen foods from drying out use good moisture-resistant containers. If it's clean and durable, it will help preserve food's value, color, flavor and texture.

Food should be packed tightly for freezing, but not too tightly. It expands as it freezes.

Don't overload your freezer, or it will slow down the rate of freezing and foods may lose quality and spoil. Usually, two or three pounds of food for each cubic foot of the freezer will freeze within 24 hours. If the power to your freezer goes off, keep it closed. Food will stay frozen for two days, even in the summer. If the freezer is off longer than that, move food to a storage locker.

Enjoy fruits and vegetables from your garden throughout the fall and winter by freezing them now. It's a simple way to preserve foods, according to Ethel Dieckman, Extension food and nutrition specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

To determine future needs

Schools to begin special door-to-door census soon

To aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs, School Dist. 21 will conduct a census of all residents between Oct. 15 and 31.

The door-to-door canvassing will be done by PTA members in each school attendance area.

The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey is designed to give administrators data to plan for future needs.

"From 1963 on, we had a pretty good idea of what kind of kids we'd get from each kind of residence," said Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill. "All those indicators are shot now because of the drop in the birth rate and the change in building from mainly single-family to multiple-family dwellings."

GILL SAID the increased spread in prices of homes in Dist. 21 has also had an effect on enrollments. There are more families with expensive homes who have older children.

Assistant Supt. John Barger said in 1963 there were three times as many kindergarten children as eighth grade students in the district. Today, he said, there is an almost even distribution.

The survey is also intended to identify students in the district who have special educational needs. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental and physical handicaps, the survey will also reveal the number of students who need bilingual instruction.

After the survey is completed, Gill said, it will probably take about a month to compile the results. A report will be presented to the school board as soon as possible, he said. High Schools in the Dist. 21 area will also receive copies of the report.

QUESTIONS INCLUDED in the survey are:

- Type of dwelling (single-family detached, single-family attached, such as townhouse or quadhome).

- Number and age of children in the residence, the school each attends and any handicaps.

- If there are no children under 19 in the residence, the number and age of persons under and over 35.

- Languages other than English spoken in the home.

- Number of years lived in the district.

Besides the numerical data, the survey also asks for each resident's opinion of schools in the district. Residents will be asked to state if they are well pleased, satisfied, dissatisfied or have no opinion of elementary, junior high and high school instruction.

Gill said if it appears that a large number of residents are unhappy with schools in the district, a followup will be made to find out why and what can be done to correct the problem.

Lake County road projects

by JOE FRANZ

Several major road improvements are planned in Lake County in the next several years to keep pace with Buffalo Grove's expansion to that area.

Although some of the projects are still in the planning stages and others are tentative, construction of some projects could begin as early as next year.

Edward Streed, superintendent for the Lake County Highway Department, said yesterday the county hopes to begin extending Busch Road shortly after the first of the year.

THE ROAD which lies north of the village ends at the Soo Line R.R. tracks. The extension will connect it with Deerfield Road near Milwaukee Avenue. Although the area is now unincorporated, the village plans expansion there in the future.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the extension of the two-lane road will create another major east-west road to connect the village to neighboring communities to the east.

Streed said the 2.75-mile extension will probably cost between $500,000 and $600,000. He said construction of the project was scheduled to start late this year, but will be delayed somewhat because of negotiations with land owners for the right of way. The county hopes it can obtain the land through negotiations rather than through condemnation which is more costly, he said.

Another project planned for next year is the creation of a T-intersection at Rte. 53 and Rte. 83 in the northern section of the village. Henry Yamanaka, mobility studies engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday the state plans to eliminate the dangerous intersection that now exists.

HE SAID THE PLAN calls for the re-alignment of Rte. 53 so traffic on the road is forced to stop when it meets with Rte. 83. Work on the intersection is scheduled to begin in April next year, he said. The project is expected to cost $275,000, he added.

In 1975 the Cook County Highway Department plans to begin the widening and extension of Lake-Cook Road through Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. At present, the two-lane road runs from Arlington Heights Road, east to Buffalo Grove Road.

The county is in the process of obtaining the right of way for the extension of the road from Buffalo Grove Road to Milwaukee Avenue. The road, which will be widened to four lanes will be linked to portions of Lake-Cook Road both east and west of the village, thus making it a major east-west highway.

ANOTHER PROJECT which is probably several years away is the widening of Ill. Rte. 22, north of Buffalo Grove. Yamanaka said the state is studying the possibility of widening the road to four lanes between U.S. Rte. 41, in Highland Park, to Rand Road, in Lake Zurich.

Yamanaka said he could not predict when the project would begin since plans are still tentative.

Within the next few years there are plans to pave Arlington Heights Road from Rte. 83 north 1,000 feet to Levitt and Son's Koelper Demuth property. The project will be paid for by the village, Levitt and Vernon Township, Larson said.

The unpaved portion of the road runs into an area Levitt plans to develop within the next two years. The paving of the road will be done as the area is developed, Larson said.

HERBERT L. RHINO, 212 S. Mount Prospect Rd., Mount Prospect, picks some of the hundreds of mushrooms that appeared in his and neighbors' yards after Monday night's heavy rains. The mushrooms, none of which were planted, could be poisonous, according to village health officer Marjorie Boswell. She said it takes an expert to tell mushrooms apart. Her suggestions was that people knock down the unwanted fungi.

Creek reservoir 'two years away'

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday construction of a 100-acre retention reservoir on Buffalo Creek in the northwest portion of the village is at least two years away.

The project, which will alleviate flooding in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and other downstream areas is being undertaken by the Lake County Forest Preserve District, Metropolitan Sanitary District and Buffalo Grove.

Larson said the MSD is reviewing the contract between the three parties. He said he hopes the agreement will be signed by the end of October.

Once the agreement is signed the forest preserve district can begin negotiations with landowners to acquire the needed property. Larson estimates land acquisition will take at least one year and construction of the reservoir another year.

THE RESERVOIR, which is proposed for southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads, will have a capacity for 260 million gallons of water.

Under the proposed agreement, the MSD will assume the major cost of the $2.1 million facility. About $1.8 million will be needed for the land and about $300,000 for construction of the dam and reservoir.

The forest preserve district has applied for a federal grant to reimburse the MSD for the land acquisition cost. The MSD will engineer the project, the forest preserve will operate the park around it and the village will maintain the facility, after it is constructed.

During a severe storm water will be retained in the reservoir until the chances of flooding have disappeared. At that time the water will be released from the reservoir into Buffalo Creek.

Busing fee for Stevenson grade school

A bus will transport about 65 students to Stevenson School in Wheeling, paid for by parents with some reimbursement from Dist. 21.

A group of parents petitioned the district two weeks ago to bus students from several nearby apartment complexes.

Most of the parents who signed the petition were residents of the Willow River, Willow Park Estates, Lochlomen and Orchard Park apartments.

The Dist. 21 School Board tonight is scheduled to act on a request that would have the district pay the entire cost of busing. The request will probably be denied because all children attending Stevenson live within the 1½-mile busing boundary of the school.

Bob Gerry, Stevenson principal, yesterday forecasted the decision of the board and mailed letters to parents asking if they would be willing to pay $60 annually for bus service.

THE BUS BEGAN running about a week ago, Gerry said, but there is still room for about five children to ride.

Parents should contact the school immediately to register for the bus service. It is unlikely, Gerry said, another bus will be available because there are not enough Stevenson children to fill more than one bus.

Gerry said both parents and children appear to be satisfied with busing arrangements.

The regular-sized Ritzenthaler bus runs in the morning, picks up about 17 kindergarten children at 12:30 p.m. and returns children to their homes in the afternoon.

Swim signup canceled

The Buffalo Grove Park District has canceled registration for its fall swimming program indefinitely. Registration was to be this Saturday, however, park officials said yesterday that because the new Buffalo Grove High School Aquatic Dome is not yet complete they will have to wait for a starting date.

Sidewalk program to begin

Buffalo Grove's sidewalk replacement program is scheduled to begin Oct. 1 and take about three to four weeks to complete, according to William Davis, public works director.

Under the program residents with damaged or cracked sidewalks are having them replaced for one-half the cost. The cost to each resident is $12.50 for each square. The remaining cost will be paid by the village.

Davis said only residents that requested the sidewalks be replaced prior to the Sept. 10 deadline will have them replaced this fall. Requests made after that will be scheduled for next year, he said.

Davis said after the sidewalks are replaced a curing compound will be spread over them to protect the new pavement. He said the parkway restoration around the sidewalks will be done shortly after the sidewalks are replaced.

The village plans to replace dead, damaged or diseased trees on parkways about the end of October, Davis said. The trees are being replaced free to residents who made the requests before Sept. 10. Replacement requests made after that will be made next year, Davis said.

Davis said he will ask the village board to replace the trees with honey locusts, a fast growing sturdy tree.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Philip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told the Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raged through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House

Rep. Philip Crane

Rep. Samuel H. Young

shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep fighting. Crane was one of many Republican congressmen to sign a poster delivered to Agnew. The poster pictured a cat hanging from a pole and the message was "hang in there, baby."

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal meetings to discuss the Maryland bribery-kickback probe were called but there was "plenty of discussion," according to Cong. Young.

For full story on Agnew probe

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were seated in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClellan (R-13).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClellan, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClellan's office said.

"The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

UGH! ACHIEVEMENT tests seems to be what this Dist. 26, River Trails Junior High School student is thinking. Most kids say although the tests are boring to take, they're worthwhile and an accurate measure of what they know. The tests are being given all this week in schools throughout that district.

Achievement tests

Students, teachers, administrators maintain testing is necessary, but far from perfect

EDITOR'S NOTE: Every year students in the Northwest suburbs take standardized achievement tests. This week students in River Trails School Dist. 26 are taking the exams and Herald reporter Jill Bettner got opinions from students, teachers and administrators about the annual testing.

by JILL BETTNER

Students at River Trails Junior High School (Dist. 26, Mount Prospect) appear to consider annual achievement tests a necessary evil. The tests are worthwhile, they say, but boring.

Along with the junior high students, all pupils in grades two through eight in the district this week are taking the achievement tests developed by Science Research Associates Inc.

According to Glen Erickson, principal of Bond School and director of testing for the district, the machine-scored tests are designed to measure academic skills. The results of the tests indicate how the student's skills compare with others his age in the district and nationally.

Students in grades one through three are tested mainly in reading, language arts and math, Erickson said. Upper level students are also tested in these areas plus science, social studies and the use of source materials.

The tests are being given at short stretches over several days.

MOST RIVER TRAILS students agreed that the tests are fair and pretty good indicators of their ability in each academic area.

"I think they show what we know and there isn't much on them that we haven't had yet," said Chris Domerach, seventh grade.

The students also feel teachers are correct in using the tests to help gear classroom instruction to the needs of pupils.

"It's a good way to tell what kids need to know," said Arnette Garcia, seventh grade. "Teachers should use them to tell whatever kids get wrong on the tests," added Dennis Leuntjens, eighth grade.

Although most teachers said they use the SRA tests results somewhat to tailor their instruction to fit student needs, they agreed that a pupil's ability cannot be accurately measured by the tests alone.

"We're told to rely pretty much on the results of the tests," said a language arts teacher who wished to remain anonymous. "It's what the board has determined, so it's what they want and the parents want, but the tests don't measure everything. For example, they don't measure creativity."

ERICKSON STRESSED that there are many factors too, that influence a student's performance on the tests.

"We try to emphasize to parents and teachers that this one test is not the gospel word," he said. "It's just one means we have of learning a child's progress. All the reading books have tests, the math program includes a test after each chapter and teachers use other tests to measure the day-to-day progress picture of students all year."

Erickson said the districtwide comparisons of student performance are useful in identifying general academic strengths and weaknesses.

"Last year, we found that a lot of students were low in math skills, so this year we've tried to schedule more math review and work of that kind," he said. "Although we don't teach primarily for the test, it helps us get a better idea of what we're doing."

RIVER TRAILS social studies teacher Walter Caeulic agreed, saying, "It's a good way of evaluating the system so that we can better program for years to come."

Up until last year, the Iowa Test of Basic Skills achievement tests were administered in the district each spring. Administrators feel the SRA tests are more accurate and the results are easier to explain to parents.

"This is really the Cadillac package of tests," said Eugene Kukla, River Trails principal. "What I think is so uniquely good about them is that parents can understand the results so they can cooperate with teachers in correcting learning problems."

KUKLA SAID because several skills are measured in each academic area, it is easier to pinpoint a student's problems.

For example, under reading, the student is tested for comprehension, his ability to restate material, understand a sequence and summarize, draw inferences, apply the material to new situations and see logical relationships. He is given a separate score for each skill.

By giving the tests in the fall rather than the spring as in the past, Kukla said instructors have a better chance to give students the help they need to advance and do well in the next grade. Sometimes, too, students may be transferred from one ability group to another based on the test results. Students in grades seven and eight at River Trail are sectioned into low, intermediate and high-ability groups.

Kukla will call a special meeting of parents in November to explain the test scores. Homeroom teachers will also meet with parents individually to discuss their child's test results.

The principals of the other schools in the district will conduct similar parent meetings.

State officials to meet with PHIA

by TOM VON MALDER

Four state officials have already accepted an invitation to meet Monday with the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

Those who have said they will attend the 8 p.m. meeting at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., are State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st, said he will try to send an aide.

Those invited, but yet responding, are Gov. Daniel Walker; State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette; State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, and State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th.

Jack Gilligan, PHIA president, has drawn up a list of legislative areas to be discussed at the meeting. The list includes items of direct interest to Prospect Heights residents.

THE FIRST of 11 subject areas Gilligan has listed is a reduction or elimination of the assessed valuation of airports, golf courses and similar privately-owned publicly-used facilities. Gilligan would like to see at least a 75 per cent reduction to serve as an "inducement to the preservation of these uses."

Palwaukee Airport and the Rob Roy Golf Course both lie partially within the proposed boundaries for the City of Prospect Heights.

The second proposal calls for the establishment of a state land use commission, which among other functions would hold public hearings to "determine the total environmental impact of, and to clearly define criteria for allowing, conversion to other uses of airports and golf courses" and other privately owned, publicly used properties.

The proposal states that the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) may be the agency that could be empowered to hold such hearings. Current proposals before Mount Prospect call for apartments on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

A third proposal supports the creation of a Regional Transportation Authority for the area. "We don't want an expressway put through Prospect Heights. We don't want a transportation system stuck down our throats," Gilligan said. He added the PHIA wants knowledge of transportation plans and ability to speak on any plans.

OTHER PROPOSALS would give the townships limited zoning and land use approval authority and permit townships to buy or condemn property for environmental protection, recreation or other public use. The first is prompted by incidences such as the one in which a home was moved onto Waterman Avenue without the PHIA or neighborhood being informed before hand.

"We want to know what's happening," Gilligan said. "We've been burned a couple of times." He said the residents of Waterman Avenue were extremely upset when the house was moved to their street.

The sixth proposal calls for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners. "We want some of their situations examined. They are (often) restricted severely by the (mobile park) manager," Gilligan said. Many mobile home parks are found in unincorporated areas, as there are often municipal ordinances against trailer homes.

Gilligan's group would like a more equal distribution of state sales tax rebates, he said. "Randhurst is a regional shopping center. It doesn't belong to Mount Prospect alone."

The PHIA plan is not to take all of the sales tax rebate from Mount Prospect, for example, but some "slight" reimbursement.

THE PHIA is also asking for more state funding for environmental projects, an increase in the authority and power of soil and water conservation districts with respect to land use recommendations. It also calls for townships to be empowered to engage in environmental programs designed to control air and water pollution and flood damage relief.

The final proposal seeks minimum standards and requirements for surface drainage control and enforcement through sanitary districts in unincorporated areas.

3-day show at track may draw 100,000

A three-day high fidelity trade show that will include five outdoor concerts and is expected to draw thousands is scheduled to open Friday afternoon at Arlington Park Race Track.

Sponsors of the show, Pacific Stereo, were given permission to stage the concerts and exhibit sound equipment by the village administration, apparently without official notification to the village board of trustees.

Trade shows are permitted at the race track under terms of the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and Arlington Park. However, the village board in the past has required special-use permits for other outdoor activities, including the recently concluded Future of America Fair.

TICKETS to the three-day show, dubbed the "Sound Experience" are free at any of the six area Pacific Stereo stores and at Discount Records on LaSalle Street in Chicago.

The talent line up for the weekend includes:

Friday at 7 p.m. The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Freddie King and The All Star Frogs.

Saturday at 2 p.m. Steve Goodman, Ed Holstein, Mississippi Flanagan and Fred Holstein.

Saturday at 7 p.m. Paul Butterfield's Better Days, Mike Bloomfield, Mark Naftalin and Junior Lacey.

Sunday at 2 p.m. The Chicago Brass Quintet and the Chicago Chamber Orchestra.

Sunday at 7 p.m. Jose Feliciano, El Chicano and Bonnie Koloc.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police officials say they have been told by promoters that a crowd of 100,000 is expected over the three-day run. Extra patrolmen for crowd control have been assigned, according to Police Sgt. Jack Weber.

The trade show itself will feature the latest high fidelity stereo equipment from 40 different manufacturers. Sound seminars will be conducted by factory experts and full-length films are also planned.

All exhibits will be in the Arlington Park grandstand. The concerts will be staged in front of the grandstand. THERE WILL be a $1 race track parking fee.

Pacific Stereo, a leading seller of stereo equipment on the West Coast, has five Chicago area stores in the suburbs of Evanston, Lombard, Oak Park, Niles and Oak Lawn.

Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning said recently that administrative officials were aware of the trade show and concert plans and did not think that a special use permit was needed.

Special-use permit applications require a public hearing, usually held by the plan commission, and must be approved formally by the village board.

Village trustees contacted yesterday said they had not discussed the possible need for a special-use permit, and said there had been no official notice of the concert plans.

Arlington Park's director of public relations, Tom Rivera, said almost all the details for the show were planned by Pacific Stereo and the race track's sales department.

He added that business licenses for the show were approved by the village with the knowledge that the concerts would be an integral part of the exhibition.

Heights needs police: county

Prospect Heights, if it becomes a city, should form its own police department rather than hire Cook County Sheriff's police, according to Sheriff's Police Chief Edward Dobbs.

Dobbs said his force would be more than willing to supply Prospect Heights with support police service, including training, backup and criminal investigations. However, Dobbs said the Sheriff's police is trying to get out of the patrol business.

Dobbs and two other members of the Sheriff's police attended a finance committee meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) Tuesday night. PHIA is exploring the costs of setting up a City of Prospect Heights in their unincorporated area.

JACK GILLIGAN, PHIA president, told Dobbs he would prefer contracting with the Sheriff's police for a period of at least three or four years, with a gradual changeover to an all-Prospect Heights force. Gilligan's concern is that it would cost Prospect Heights more money than they could possibly raise, if the community had to come up with its own police department right after incorporation.

Sheriff's police currently patrol the Prospect Heights area with two cars. For Prospect Heights to supply itself with the same coverage, 10 policemen would have to be hired.

Dobbs, following a long-standing policy of the Sheriff's police, urged PHIA to form its own force and contract for backup services from the Sheriff's police.

As for the period of turnover, Dobbs said, "I don't believe we'd abandon you if there is a need for our services. But, at the same time, we'd hope you'd appreciate our position and what our aims are."

DOBBS HAD NO figures ready to give PHIA on how many men and police cars they should have and what a department might cost the community. He promised to gather such figures over the next couple of weeks.

Gilligan said he does not see the area with 13,000 residences incorporating until next March or April.

Other costs for a police department that will face Prospect Heights would be for police vehicles, vehicle maintenance, mobile radios, some type of office and some record keeping.

City to press for overpass at Thacker, River

by STEVE BROWN

Despite several rebuffs, Des Plaines city officials plan to renew their efforts to get county approval for the proposed Thacker Street-River Road overpass.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said this week he has met with County Comr. Floyd Fullin to discuss the controversial topic. He said the city will attempt to get the Cook County Forest Preserve District to reconsider its refusal to allow the overpass to be built on land in the Northwestern Woods along River Road.

The project, which has been on the drawing boards for several years, has been stalled by forest preserve authorities who will not allow use of their land for the project. Additional objections to the project came from residents who live along River Road.

Plans call for the overpass to carry River Road traffic over Mtn. Street and the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks.

A connecting overpass would carry the traffic from Thacker Street over the Des Plaines River and Busso Highway.

BEHREL SAID the city's plan of action is somewhat indefinite at this time. He said Tuesday that he expects continued opposition from persons who fought to block the overpass in 1972.

Former mayoral candidate Burton Kosmen, headed a petition drive to gather support against the overpass plan. Kosmen, who now heads the Citizens Action Committee, collected about 1,500 signatures on the petition opposing the overpass.

Local residents voiced concern that the overpass would force the relocation of several families along River Road. The project would also block access to River Road for persons who live along the thoroughfare.

Des Plaines officials have said the overpass is essential to the overall downtown redevelopment program. They also argue that the overpass would help alleviate serious traffic congestion problems in the downtown area.

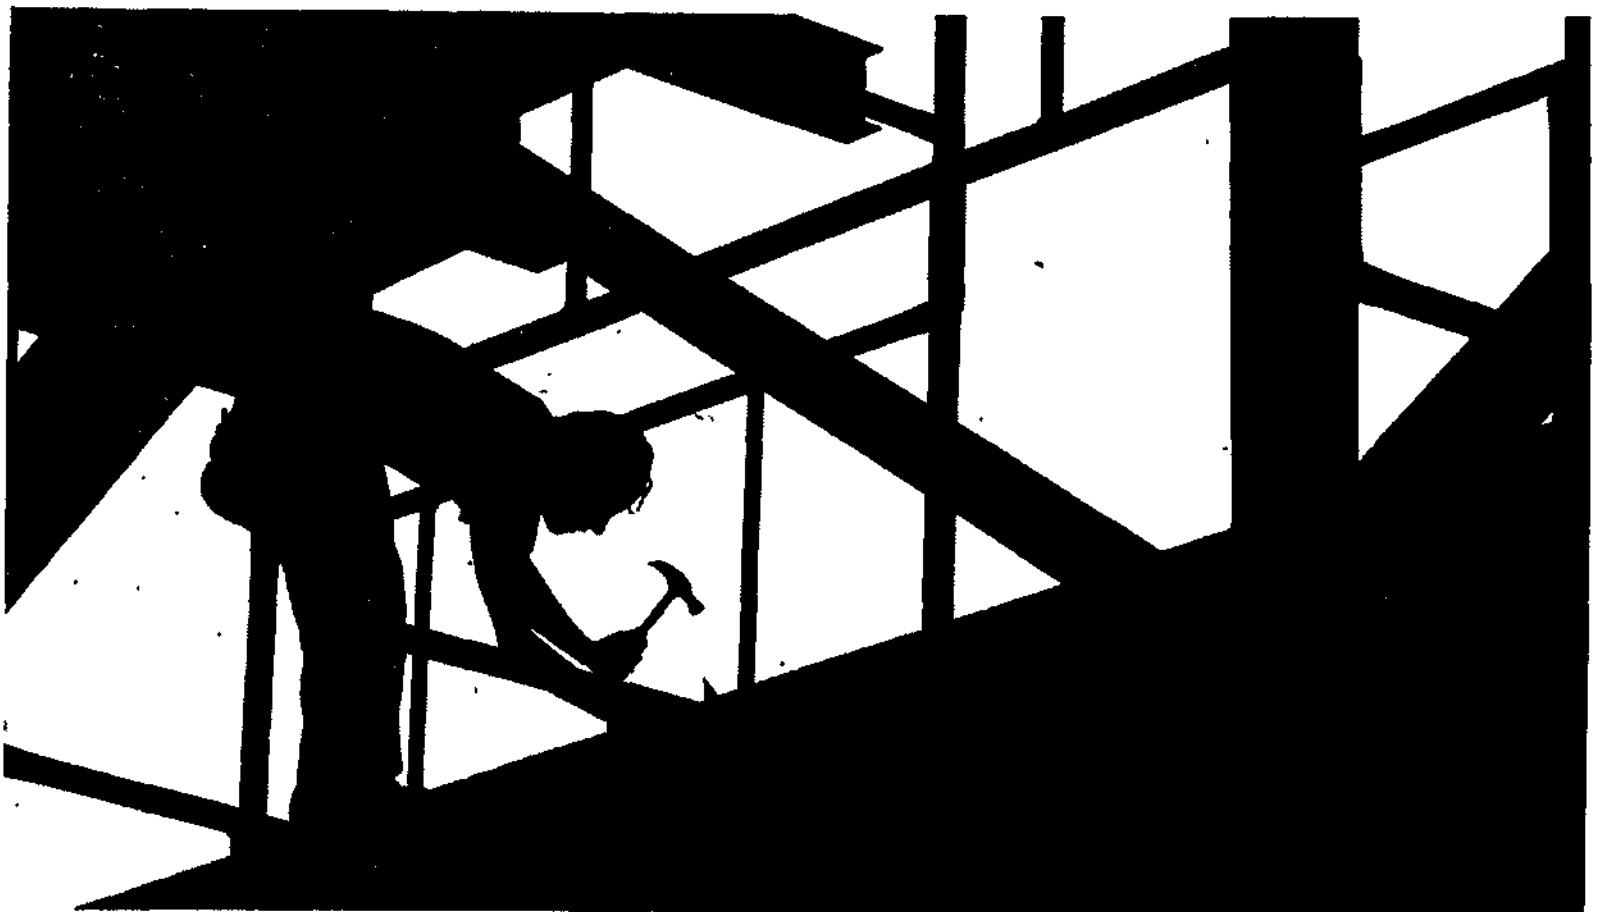

The biggest bottleneck in the entire project appears to be in the Thacker Street phase.

FINAL STATE approval for the project hinges on whether or not approval is obtained for the use of forest preserve land.

Forest preserve officials have complained that if the overpass is built for Thacker Street, nearly two acres of land will be isolated by the construction of the overpass.

Plans for the structure have been revised with shortened overpass approaches. Officials believe that this will help diminish some of the objections to the overpass.

The Cook County Board of Commissioners could overrule the forest preserve officials on the use of the land for the overpass.

BEAMS AND GIRDERS form the backdrop for this Des Plaines Public Library. Workers are now placing roof supports and windows. When the addition is completed the next year, the city's library will more than double in size.

Is it time for city to begin program?

Paramedics everywhere—except here

EDITORS NOTE: Throughout the Northwest suburbs, firefighters have been trained in unique new life-saving techniques. Des Plaines has not been a part of the program but city officials are expected to begin a study of paramedics Monday when Ald. John Seltz (7th) introduces the idea to the council. Herald reporter John Maes researched the paramedic program for this two-part series on what it could mean to the city.

There is an island in the Northwest suburbs.

The island is surrounded by communities that have trained paramedics in their fire departments. On the island, none exist. The name of the island is the City of Des Plaines.

Paramedics, specially trained firemen taught to administer drugs and treatment to heart attack and accident victims enroute to a hospital, are nearing their second year of operation in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove fire departments. A fire chief in Rolling Meadows recovering from a heart attack, owes his life to his paramedics.

Kiwanis Peanut Day sale on tomorrow

Members of the Des Plaines Kiwanis Club will be on streets throughout the city tomorrow to begin their annual Peanut Day Sale.

The club has set a fund raising goal of $9,373 for this year. Members of the club will sell peanuts at many intersections throughout the city.

This will be the 17th annual Peanut Day in Des Plaines. Many other clubs in the Chicago area also will be involved in the project.

Kiwanis officials said the project is one of the group's major fund raising efforts each year. Money raised from the peanut sale is used to finance a number of community activities including the Maine West High School Key Club, the Northwest YMCA, Community Chest, senior citizens groups and the annual Des Plaines Pet and Bike Parade.

A spokesman for the group said that the project has raised more than $75,000 for local community organizations and projects.

No teacher settlement yet

Teacher and board negotiators are still at odds in the Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62 contract dispute despite two sessions with a federal mediator.

The two teams met for the second time Tuesday night with Robert C. Leitner of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, Chicago. A third mediation session is scheduled for tonight.

Stuart D. Kisten, head of the board's negotiating team, said "some progress" was made during the 3½-hour session. The teacher's association is now considering a new proposal presented by the board.

"I would say we made definite progress—hopefully we can get together on this," Kisten said.

Kisten would not give details on the board's offer, saying the board is continuing its policy of "not negotiating in the newspapers."

JAN THOMAS, a member of the Des Plaines Education Association (DPEA) negotiating team, said both sides are "still far apart" in the contract dispute.

"Our proposal to the board showed a tremendous amount of movement. We're still waiting to see the board make the same amount," she said.

The board still refuses to discuss eight non-salary items it considers non-negotiable, according to Miss Thomas. Teachers want to negotiate certain items with the board, including teacher representation on a board committee studying class size.

"Basically, it's the same situation we've had for the past 11 months," she said.

The DPEA representative council met yesterday to discuss the board's new proposal.

EMEA teachers break off contract talks

by LINDA PUNCH

The East Maine Education Association (EMEA) broke off contract negotiations after the Dist. 63 board refused to give a written commitment that a board member will be present at all sessions.

The negotiations session, held Tuesday night at Ballard School, was the first to include a professional negotiator hired by the school board. The negotiator, Fred B. Lifton, is a member of the law firm employed by the school district.

NEARLY 100 teachers attended the meeting to protest the board's hiring a professional negotiator. Henry O'Neill, EMEA president, said teachers view Lifton's presence as "cutting off our last real contact with the board."

The board team includes Lifton, board member Arlene Nidetz, Dist. 63 Assistant Supt. Donald Stetina and Nathanson principal Steward Lechli.

Mrs. Nidetz said she told teachers team members would be present at all negotiation sessions. Lifton advised the board not to make a written commitment since "we aren't ready to let the EMEA decide the composition of the board team."

EMEA representative Ken Howenstine said the board team "never verbally or in writing" agreed to have a board member at all sessions.

THE NEXT MOVE in negotiations is "entirely up to the teachers since they unilaterally decided to cease negotiations," according to Mrs. Nidetz.

"We've said repeatedly that we're willing to negotiate. We've never left the negotiating table," she said.

Mrs. Nidetz also objected to the presence of the 190 teachers at the negotiating session. Under the Dist. 63 agreement, contract negotiations are conducted in private.

Howenstine said teachers are "willing to meet anytime" the board guarantees a board member will be present at all negotiating sessions.

THE EMEA LAST week set Oct. 15 as a strike vote day. The Dist. 63 board and the EMEA are clashing over the teacher union's proposal that teachers have a voice in setting working conditions.

Teachers are asking that class size and other conditions be included in their contracts.

Howenstine said teachers plan to increase picketing at school open houses and board meetings. The EMEA is also mailing out leaflets on negotiations.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Philip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told the Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raced through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House

Rep. Philip Crane

Rep. Samuel H. Young

shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep fighting. Crane was one of many Republican congressmen to sign a poster delivered to Agnew. The poster pictured a cat hanging from a pole and the message was "hang in there, baby."

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal meetings to discuss the Maryland bribery-kickback probe were called but there was "plenty of discussion," according to Cong. Young.

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were seated in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClellan, (R-13).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClellan, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClellan's office said.

"The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

Mayor itching to begin redevelopment projects

Steps will be taken in the near future to get Des Plaines downtown redevelopment projects rolling.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said that he intends to begin taking action on a number of city projects that are tied to the proposed Superblock project.

He listed the planned land exchange where the city would turn over south Center Street and receive the right-of-way along Prairie Street as one of major elements of the project.

Behrel also noted that the city must acquire an easement adjacent to the project to improve and enlarge sanitary and storm sewers and water mains.

Before the exchange of land can take place, Behrel said the necessary plans must be completed and all legalities worked out. He said the city will also have to begin negotiations for several parcels of land that will be used as parking lots.

HE SAID a final determination will have to be made as to whether or not the city plans to straighten Prairie Avenue.

The mayor did not disclose the details of any land acquisition project which may be undertaken.

"I think you'll be seeing a lot more action concerning the redevelopment in the near future," Behrel added.

Earlier this month, Jerome R. Gottlieb, president of Des Plaines Mall Corp., said that preliminary work on the project could get under way in November.

Grand jury indicts burglary suspect

A Cook County grand jury has indicted a Des Plaines man on charges of burglarizing a Mount Prospect home.

Mount Prospect police said a "true bill" was returned against Rex J. Austin, 18, of 1490 Thacker St., Des Plaines. One was not returned against Vincent J. Badlamenti, 20, of 504 Brockton Pl., Schaumburg, who was arrested in the same incident.

Police said lesser charges may be filed against Badlamenti. Both men were arrested Aug. 11, after they were found at 111 N. Horner Ln., the John E. Katzler residence. Police allegedly found Austin in a bedroom holding a jewelry case and Badlamenti at the front door.

Court dates are to be announced.

Show, concerts at race track

A three-day high fidelity trade show that will include five outdoor concerts and is expected to draw thousands is scheduled to open Friday afternoon at Arlington Park Race Track.

Sponsors of the show, Pacific Stereo, were given permission to stage the concerts and exhibit sound equipment by the village administration.

TICKETS TO the three-day show, dubbed the "Sound Experience" are free at any of the six area Pacific Stereo stores and at Discount Records on LaSalle Street in Chicago.

The talent line up for the weekend includes:

Friday at 7 p.m. The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Freddie King and the All Star Frogs.

Saturday at 2 p.m. Steve Goodman, Ed Holstein, Mississippi Flanagan and Fred Holstein.

Saturday at 7 p.m. Paul Butterfield's

Better Days, Mika Bloomfield, Mark Naitalia and Junior Lacey.

Sunday at 2 p.m. The Chicago Brass Quintet and the Chicago Chamber Orchestra.

Sunday at 7 p.m. Jose Feliciano, El Chicano and Bonnie Koloc.

Arlington Heights police officials say they have been told by promoters that a crowd of 100,000 is expected over the three-day run. Extra patrolmen for crowd control have been assigned according to Police Sgt. Jack Weber.

The trade show itself will feature the latest high fidelity stereo equipment from 40 different manufacturers. Sound seminars will be conducted by factory experts and full-length films are also planned.

All exhibits will be in the Arlington Park grandstand. The concerts will be staged in front of the grandstand.

THE FIRST DAY on the job Buffalo Grove paramedics were called out on two emergencies. Months of training were put to use when a local woman suffered heart failure. Guided by doctors at Northwest Community Hospital, the paramedics administered lifesaving aid.

Des Plaines an island — barren of paramedics

Community Hospital in Arlington Heights said the victims would have otherwise died if a paramedic had not been on the scene.

BEFORE BECOMING a paramedic, a fireman must be a certified Emergency Medical Technician (EMT). Basic EMT instruction consists of more than 100 hours of training in basic and cardio-pulmonary (heart) physiology.

In the 81-hour paramedic training course, the fireman learns the use of life saving drugs and defibrillation or heart shock treatment.

Paramedic programs were brought to the northwest suburbs due largely to the efforts of Mrs. Janet Schwettman, an Inverness housewife. She promoted the idea to area village officials and influenced state legislation passed last year authorizing paramedic care of injury and heart attack victims.

Paramedics are actually the "eyes, ears and hands of a doctor on the emergency scene," according to Dr. Robert Anzinger, director of emergency services at Lutheran General Hospital and an outspoken proponent of the program.

ON THE SCENE of an emergency, the paramedic keeps within constant radio contact with a doctor in a hospital emergency room who radios instructions to the paramedic on how to treat the victim.

Through special radio equipment, operated by the paramedic, the doctor can monitor the patient's heartbeat and other vital signs.

"The doctor must rely on the paramedic for accurate information on the patient's condition so the right treatment can be given," said Anzinger. "The function of a paramedic is to get the patient in a stable condition so he can be transported to the hospital."

For a heart attack victim, a paramedic could be instructed to either administer drugs intravenously or give the heart "shock" — called defibrillation.

WITH ITS monitoring equipment, Northwest Community is currently the base of the Northwest suburban paramedic operation.

When patient information is monitored into the $11,000 Northwest system, the emergency room doctor alerts the hospital where the patient will be taken to prepare to receive the victim.

The growth of the program has spurred an interest in area hospitals to purchase their own equipment, which would enable them to monitor vital information transmitted by the paramedic to Northwest.

A confederation of 12 area hospitals called the North Suburban Health Resources Association (NSHRA) is currently outlining a plan which would coordinate the use of equipment in suburban hospitals.

A major reason for the NSHRA master plan, said Anzinger, is to avoid overlaps in communications which could result if too many hospitals set up their own communications and interfere with each other's transmissions.

ANZINGER SAID only one or two of the member hospitals would need a transmitting aerial. Remaining locations could "landline" or pick up the signal on their own receiver unit.

Lutheran General is expected to purchase the $5,000 receiving unit in about six months.

But obviously, according to Anzinger, the elaborate system is of little use without paramedics.

"The first few minutes after a heart attack are critical," he said. "If a paramedic can get to the victims soon enough to administer the life giving treatment, they can be saved."

"The statistics on lives saved are too impressive for any town not to have the program." Tomorrow: A Des Plaines paramedic program?

Village may ask for changes to stop Devon-53

by FRED GACA

Elk Grove Village officials may ask Cook County to withdraw zoning changes that now permit construction of part of the Devon-53 housing project on unincorporated land.

Trustee Edward Kenna asked Village Atty. Edward Hofert to investigate the possibility of having the county zoning changed, based on the information presented by the village plan commission.

The request was made at Tuesday's board of trustees meeting when the plan commission presented its recommendation, opposing the approval and annexation of the 267-acre, 13,000-unit development proposed for the southwest section of the village.

The developers of the project are asking the village to modify several zoning ordinances to permit building of the project and annexation of the site.

HOFFERT SAID he would report back to the board by the next meeting, Tuesday night. He said, however, he doubted the village would have much of a chance to get the county to change its zoning.

Most of the property for the proposed project is in unincorporated Cook County and under county zoning. Several years ago, the county granted multi-family zoning for about 77 acres, at the request of the developers.

At the time, Elk Grove Village unsuccessfully opposed the zoning.

After zoning was granted, the village was able to get the four individual developers of the project to work together on a common plan for the project. It was this plan that the plan commission recommended against.

THE REJECTION was based on the commission's contention that the development is poorly planned and is not desirable for the area.

Presentation of the recommendation caused some angry words between the village board, especially Trustee Ronald Chernick, and the plan commissioners.

Commissioner Leah Cummins criticized the board for beginning their discussion by considering possible action by the developers in getting county zoning. She said the board was reacting the same way it did several years ago when it felt the village had no choice but to accept the project because the developers threatened to build under county zoning if they did not get village approval.

SHE SAID THE BOARD should consider whether or not the plan was a good one for the village and said the commission has developed an "air-tight" case against the project.

Chernick said the commission had gone beyond what it was required to in reviewing the project. He also criticized the manner in which the commission conducted two public hearings on the Devon-53 development.

Both Chernick and Trustee Edward Kenna said the board had to consider the possibility that the developers would go to the county and get zoning for the project.

Temper cooled quickly, however, and both the trustees and the commissioners agreed both bodies were only concerned with the best interests of the village.

THE TRUSTEES made no attempt to reach a decision on the recommendation at Tuesday's meeting. They said the board would need time to study the recommendation and other information before they could vote.

The village board has the final decision on accepting the project. The board is not required to follow the advisory recommendation of the plan commission.

The attorney for the Devon-53 development, Robert DiLeonardi, has said he wants to meet with the board to discuss the plan commission's recommendation. However, he was not in the audience Tuesday and, according to village officials, has not made any effort to contact the village.

HEARING IS IMPORTANT to those of all ages and kindergarten students are no exception. Mary MacKer, a student at Clearmont School responds to sounds to test hearing as a hearing specialist checks her responses. All students at the Elk Grove Village school had their hearing and vision tested recently. Tests will be conducted at all local schools.

Art students leave crayons behind

by BOB GALLAS

A fourth grader welds a sculpture in art class.

Another student bolts a steel sculpture together.

A kindergarten hammers a nail into a piece of wood without hitting his finger.

Slowly, but surely, Dist. 59 art classes are leaving construction paper and crayons behind — far behind.

"Kids love to work with something solid, something they can get their hands into," said Forman Onderdank, instructor of the art program in the Elk Grove Township School District. For that reason, according to Onderdank, art classes are emphasizing work with clay, ceramics, wood, metals and even weaving.

"CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS are working with all sorts of materials these days," said Onderdank, "and if kids are ever going to be able to understand these artists, they have to have some concrete experience with these materials."

Onderdank's office proves that Dist. 59 children do get a chance to work with a variety of materials. Lining the walls are sculptures of animals, small ceramic figures and modern art wall plaques made with sand, metals and plaster all made by students from kindergarten to eighth grade.

Art is being taught in a more enlightened way in Dist. 59 these days, according to Onderdank. "We're bringing in practical things such as how to work with hammers and saws, metals and wel-

Police lieutenant quits to take chief's post in Alsip

Elk Grove Village police Lt. Raymond Marinec will resign from the department Oct. 7 to become police chief of Alsip, Ill.

The Alsip village board announced Marinec's appointment at their board meeting Tuesday. The appointment will be confirmed Oct. 1.

Alsip Mayor Arnold Andrews, in announcing the appointment, said Marinec will assume duties on Oct. 8.

Marinec is the second village police lieutenant to resign in the past 13 months to accept a police chief position elsewhere. Harry Walsh resigned in August, 1972, to become police chief of Buffalo Grove.

Marinec was promoted to lieutenant in charge of the investigations and youth division after Walsh left. He is an 11½ year veteran of the Elk Grove Village police department.

ALSIP is a village on the southwest edge of Chicago and is bordered by Blue Island and Oak Lawn. The acting Alsip police commander, Sgt. Ronald Rice, said the community was similar to Elk Grove Village with a large residential area adjoining an industrial park.

Rice said the village had a population of about 15,000 with an additional 5,000 to 6,000 workers coming into the industrial park daily.

The Alsip police department now has 17 patrolmen and four sergeants, according to Rice. He said the department has a squad car for every one of the officers.

Marinec said he took the position because it was a "bigger challenge, one I've wanted for a long time."

MARINEC IS married and the father of five children. He said he expects to move his family to Alsip soon after taking the chief's position.

In taking the Alsip job, Marinec will be following on the heels of a major department scandal. Stanley Thoms, former Alsip police chief and a 21-year veteran of the department, was recently convicted on six counts of bribery and official misconduct.

Thoms resigned from the force in June. He is to be sentenced for the crimes on Oct. 18.

He was convicted of accepting bribes from two motels in exchange for ignoring prostitution operations.

Marinec served in the U.S. Army for three years as a military policeman and has received training at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois, the Southern Police Institute of the University of Louisville and Harper Community College.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Philip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told the Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raced through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House

shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal meetings to discuss the Maryland bribery-kickback probe were called but there was "plenty of discussion," according to Cong. Young.

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were seated in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClory, (R-13).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClory, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClory's office said.

The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

Village board wrapup

Centex to propose new law for yards

Suggestions for a revised ordinance for yard space around homes will be submitted to Elk Grove Village by Centex Homes Corp.

James Blaeser, Centex regional vice president promised to have the company's attorney prepare his suggestions as soon as possible.

According to Blaeser, the present ordinances are not beneficial to the village because developers will be forced to build either smaller or unattractive homes in order to comply with the law.

The village board of trustees, at Tuesday's meeting, considered issuing a stop work order against Centex in the construction of 78 homes in Section 19, west of Ill. Rte. 53. The homes, according to the village building department, violated the yard space requirements.

The board, however, agreed to permit buildings now under construction to be finished.

Blaeser said any new construction would comply with the ordinances. He admitted the homes now being completed violated the ordinances and said "the problem is ours."

After the board agreed to permit the construction of homes already started, Village Pres. Charles Zeitek asked Blaeser for possible suggestions if the village were to consider a review of the ordinance.

'New safety barriers needed'

Elk Grove Village will ask the construction company working on the expansion of Blesterfield Road to improve the barriers and driveway markings for better safety.

Several cars have driven into the ditches at the construction site, especially when turning onto or off of Blesterfield.

Stan Klyber, secretary of the Association of Industry and Commerce, at Tuesday's board meeting asked the village for assistance in getting easier access into the Grove Shopping Center, Blesterfield and Arlington Heights roads. He also asked for the village to allow shopping center employees to drive through the village hall parking lot.

The board refused to open the parking lot because of the heavy pedestrian traffic and the large number of village vehicles driving in and out of the lot.

Trustee Edward Kenna suggested that the shopping center should do more to improve the marking of the entrances still open during construction.

The board considered installing village barricades and lights, but decided against it after being told the village could be considered liable for an accident if it installed their own devices.

Garage expansion under $400,000

The Elk Grove Village Board approved a proposal for the expansion of the public works garage on Landmeier Road at Tuesday's meeting.

Cost of the expansion is not to exceed $400,000. Funds for the project will be split between money from a previous referendum bond issue and next year's federal revenue sharing funds.

The board also authorized the village to seek a proposal from an architect for the necessary drawings. The preliminary plan calls for an expansion of 22,000 square feet for the garage. The expansion will join the two existing buildings at the site for a combined area of about 30,000 square feet.

Jaycees' Fallfest approved

Permission for the Elk Grove Village Jaycees to hold their annual Fallfest was granted by the village board of trustees.

The Jaycees will set up their circus tent on Lions Park and Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit property for the weekend festival.

The village board action permits the Jaycees to sell food and refreshment without paying a license fee.

High school homecoming dates

Elk Grove High School homecoming bonfire and parade will be Oct. 19 and 20. The Elk Grove Village board of trustees has granted permission for the high school to hold the events.

The bonfire will be held the evening of Oct. 19. The parade through village streets will be the next day.

"I wouldn't want to force the kids to do anything before I made sure it would work," said Onderdanck who taught at the Art Institute of Chicago for 15 years and also taught at Dist. 63 in Elmhurst before coming to Dist. 59.

"The little ones will surprise you in what they can do," said Onderdanck, "as long as you take the time to explain very carefully and don't let them get tired."

IN ADDITION TO the animal and modern art sculptures made of clay and plaster, paper sculptures have captured the fancy of the school children. While some prefer to make paper animals, cars or houses, others have been more creative.

"One youngster decided to illustrate the cliché, 'paint the town,'" said Onderdanck. "He made a paper airplane with a large can of paint attached to the side," he said.

Another child made a paper sculpture of Thomas Edison, according to Onderdanck, "complete with a paper light bulb and a paper plug."

Onderdanck, who's been associated with art for about 40 years, likes to keep in touch with what's going on so he experiments a lot in addition to keeping up with his hobby of painting and sculpting.

Secretary's church tracts anger parents

An attempt by an Elk Grove Village School Dist. 59 secretary to promote an out-of-school activity apparently backfired Tuesday and prompted calls to the school and The Herald from irate parents.

The secretary, Mrs. Theresa Durkee, of Mark Hopkins School, said she gave a child literature on the group Awana to pass out on a bus going to a nearby trailer park. The group, a scout-type organization for boys and girls, is sponsored nationally by Bible Churches and locally by the Mount Prospect Bible Church.

Complaining parents objected to the fact that the majority of the literature was devoted to the church, not Awana.

District rules prohibit the distribution of any religious oriented literature on school property.

"I didn't realize what I had done might have been against district rules until after the bus had left," said Mrs. Durkee. "I was only concerned with helping the kids in the trailer park who don't have any playgrounds," she said.

MARK HOPKINS School Principal, Dale Wilke said Mrs. Durkee's action "was against district rules but won't happen again. I'm sure it was all just an honest mistake," he added.

A spokesman for the Mount Prospect Bible Church, Mrs. Jan Woodall, said Mrs. Durkee "was not authorized to pass out the literature at the school by the church or Awana."

Ordinarily, according to Mrs. Woodall, the literature is passed out door-to-door by congregation volunteers promoting the church. Congregation members were asked to take some of the literature and pass it out in their neighborhoods or to their friends, according to Mrs. Woodall.

The literature invited people to the church and gave times of services. At the bottom, was a small paragraph telling about the Awana group.

DIST. 59 ART instructor Forman Onderdanck takes a look at some of the children's creations. Plaster elephants and hands are just a few of the things created in art classes aimed at being more "practical."

High school film series

A film series, sponsored by the humanities board of Elk Grove High School, is being presented monthly in the high school Little Theater.

A questionnaire was distributed at the first showing, which featured the classic "King Kong," and students indicated their choices for future films.

Upcoming films include "Willard," "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," "Little Big Man," "The Getaway," "Greedy," "All Quiet on the Western Front," and "Othello."

A special showing of "Gidget Goes to Rome" will take place in October. Admission will be half price for students who wear bobby sox and saddle shoes.

Proceeds from the film series will be used to finance humanities month next May.

Homeowners want action from park district

"So what are you doing for us?" was the major question Schumburg Park District officials encountered during referendum presentations Monday to two homeowner groups.

The officials answered general questions about the $2.5 million park development referendum to be held Oct. 13. Several citizens in separate meetings of the Lancer Park and Sheffield homeowners associations wanted to know what their "neglected" subdivisions would get from the referendum.

Paul Derda, superintendent of the park district, explained that the subdivisions did not have recreational facilities immediately nearby because at the time of the last referendum both subdivisions were just starting. Derda added that money for land acquisition and park development is not available until funds are approved by a referendum.

DERDA TOLD THE Sheffield homeowners if the referendum is approved nearly $80,000 is planned to be used at the Hoover park-school site at Springfield Road and Amherst Drive. The plan includes a playground area, baseball diamond, two tennis courts and extensive grading and landscaping.

The park district has also plans to install more playground apparatus at Sheffield Park West just west of the Hoover School site.

THE LANCER PARK residents were told a proposed Olympic-sized pool is planned for nearby Meineke Park if the referendum passes.

Also in the Lancer Park area at the Collins Park-School site, 407 S. Summit Dr., there are plans for additional playground apparatus and baseball diamond construction.

Derda and other park district officials are meeting with citizens to show the need for the referendum, which is divided into two parts — park improvements and land acquisition.

Included in the project is development at 13 park and park-school sites, Springfield Valley land acquisition, a maintenance facility, an enclosure for Archer Pool, an Olympic-sized pool, tennis courts, lighted recreation fields and an outdoor hockey rink.

Hanover Park, Algonquin, Bartlett, Barrington, Carolanville, Dundee, Hampshire and Burlington. Children from other areas are also accepted.

Parents wanting information concerning education for handicapped children who are retarded are asked to contact Henry J. Smart, executive director, 697-5530.

The school is in need of volunteers to work with students in a variety of activities including: swimming, bowling, workshop and self-help programs and serving hot lunches.

School officials also are seeking a volunteer to work as telephone receptionist from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The only requirements necessary are a willingness to answer phones and greet people; office skills are not necessary.

Anyone interested in this opening is asked to contact Nedra Wilkinson, volunteer co-ordinator, 697-5530.

Crusade of Mercy sets a $15,000 fund drive goal

A goal of $15,000 has been set for the 1973 Palatine Crusade of Mercy drive, which officially gets underway on Monday.

To help announce the 1973 drive, a Crusade of Mercy flag raising ceremony will be held at Buehler YMCA on Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Charles H. Foos, president of the Crusade of Mercy, said he is optimistic the $15,000 goal will be reached this year. Last year with the same goal, the drive fell approximately $3,400 short.

"I think we have a stronger organization, better momentum, more workers and more influential people as workers (this year)," said Foos.

EMPHASIS THIS year will be placed on the school districts and businesses and to a smaller extent the professional area, according to Foos.

"Our residential homeowners camp has always held its own and we hope to see it continue to grow. To reach our goal we will try to make greater inroads into the school districts and businesses," he continued.

Fund-raising letters will be mailed to 13,000 Palatine residents this weekend. The residential campaign is conducted solely by mail.

Letters also will be mailed to more than 400 businesses in Palatine and these will be followed up by personal contacts. A dinner for campaign workers and chairmen will be held on Wednesday at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in Palatine to distribute solicitation materials to the workers.

A LUNCHEON FOR Palatine business leaders is planned for Oct. 17 at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

"People Helping People," is the theme of this year's drive which will run from Oct. 1 through Oct. 31. The drive is divided into six groups: school districts, businesses, municipal, residential, professional and clergy.

The Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy makes up the difference between the local goal of $15,000 and the $45,000 needs of the 13 local organizations which share the funds.

The organizations that receive Crusade of Mercy funds are: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

Village getting feedback on its questionnaire

Juvenile delinquency, senior citizen needs and other social problems are the major concerns of Palatine residents responding to a citizens' questionnaire.

A sampling of responses to the 1973 Palatine questionnaire found 56 per cent of the respondents rank social factors as the most important problems facing the village. Population growth and population patterns and density were also viewed as important present and future problems. Of least concern is the historical character of Palatine, according to the sampling.

The questionnaire, which seeks input from residents to help with the planning of community goals and objectives for the Comprehensive Planning Program, was distributed last week.

The village mailed out approximately 7,200 questionnaires and 782 of the questionnaires had been returned by Tuesday. The village is anticipating an 18 per cent return. Deadline for submitting the questionnaires is Saturday.

The sampling of the questionnaires indicates most of the respondents are homeowners who have lived and worked in Palatine for many years and plan to stay at their present location.

Persons who did not receive a questionnaire by mail may pick one up at village hall, 54 S. Broadway, or at stores and banks in the village. Questions concerning the questionnaires should be directed to Robert Runn at 358-7500.

3-way alliance may fund walks for junior high

Sidewalks for Palatine Hills Junior High School students may be financed through a coalition of Palatine Township, the Village of Palatine and Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15, if representatives of the township are successful.

Auditor Don Bellm and Supervisor Howard I. Olsen are arranging a meeting with Acting Village Mgr. James Bennett and Supt. Frank Whiteley to discuss alternatives to fund and construct a walkway to the school.

Parents have approached virtually every local government to get a sidewalk along Smith Street north of Northwest Highway. Smith Street now is a two-lane road with narrow shoulders, forcing students to walk on or near the roadway to get to the school from the south.

No meeting date has been set, but a meeting is expected to be arranged for sometime next week.

WHEW, FOOTBALL HAS got to be easier than this... Cheerleaders at Fremd High School know just what to do at other regular sports events, but what can you do with a cross-country track team?

Run after them, of course. These cheerleaders hit the grass at the Palatine Hills Golf Course earlier this week to make it to the next runners in time to urge them on. It must have helped. Fremd runners took first place, ahead of Conant and Palatine high schools.

'Public should be informed'

Teachers to protest lack of contract

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 teachers will be handing out leaflets in area shopping centers over the weekend, protesting the lack of a wage settlement.

"We feel that the public should be informed of the situation from our standpoint," said George Sherman, head of the district's teachers' organization, which met yesterday to plan protest action. Sherman added that the Classroom Teachers Council (CTC) is not planning to strike. "We hope it never gets to that point," he said.

Dist. 15 teachers returned to their classrooms this fall without a new contract. Wages are frozen at last year's level, but board negotiator Walt Sundling said any settlement will be retroactive to the beginning of the school year.

The teachers and the school board were $152,000 away from settling at their fifth negotiating session Monday night, said teacher negotiator George Yingst. He said teachers presented salary figures from neighboring districts and asked for "comparable" wages.

YINGST SAID the board is looking into those figures and making their own computations. Sundling refused to talk specifically about the negotiations. "We are considering all aspects that are involved and we are hopeful that we can conclude negotiations in a mutually satisfying manner at an early date," he said.

The next negotiating session is Oct. 8. Yingst said teachers would not lower their demands. At a teacher's meeting Tuesday, he said teacher negotiations "were given a tremendous vote of confidence." Teachers gave negotiators a standing ovation at that meeting.

Sherman added that CTC membership is nearing the 90 per cent mark compared to 52 per cent in previous years.

"They're joining for one reason — to back our negotiators," he said.

Teachers are asking for a total salary package of $8,372,820, an increase of approximately $336,790 from last year's settlement.

Yingst did not release details on how the increase would be distributed across the salary schedule. He did say the CTC is asking the highest per cent increase in wages for experienced teachers who make up the bulk of the district's 588 teachers.

"We know what we're worth and we're going to fight for it," said Sherman.

Mixed reaction to flood plain bill

The proposed flood plain ordinance in Palatine has received mixed reactions from the Palatine Plan Commission.

While praising sections of the proposed ordinance, Thomas A. Moody Jr., chairman of the plan commission, Tuesday indicated he would favor altering the present flood plain ordinance rather than adopting the new one.

At the present time construction is allowed on flood plains provided there are provisions for water retention on the property to protect adjacent sites from flooding.

THE PROPOSED ordinance bans all construction on flood plains except for a limited number of permitted and special uses.

The philosophy behind the proposed ordinance is to maintain flood plains as natural retention areas and not tamper with them because even the best engineering plans for water retention are fallible, said Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr., chairman of the village board's flood control committee which is pushing adoption of the ordinance.

The proposed ordinance only pertains to flood plains adjacent to streams and (Continued on page 5)

Village board wrapup

New route asked for truck traffic

Truck drivers will be looking for a new way to travel east and west through Palatine if the village board has its way.

The board is exploring ways it could eliminate truck traffic on Palatine Road within the village limits and not jeopardize its state highway funding of approximately $20,000 annually.

Bradley Glass, village attorney, said a east-west truck route could be established by the village and it would just have to meet the approval of the Cook County Highway Department. He added that there was no way to guarantee trucks would follow the truck route.

Restriction of trucks and load weights on state roads is prohibited unless there is evidence the weight would cause physical damage to the road, according to Acting Village Mgr. James Bennett.

The board directed Glass to seek the permission of the County Highway Department to establish the alternate east-west truck route through Palatine.

The board's streets and traffic committee also discussed aggressively seeking expansion of Palatine Road between Northwest Highway and Quentin Road from two to four lanes to accommodate the truck traffic. The state already has easements for the widening, which is part of its long-range plan, according to Pres. Wendell Jones.

Saratoga storm project

Engineering cost estimates on the proposed Saratoga relief storm sewer project have been referred to the Palatine Village Board's flood control committee.

The preliminary cost estimate on the project, which is designed to relieve flooding in sections of the Reseda and Virginia Lake subdivisions, is $276,750.

The proposed storm sewer would run south on Saratoga to Carpenter and south on Carpenter.

An alternate proposal, would cost approximately $196,625. Under the alternate proposal the storm sewer would run south on Saratoga, east on Carpenter Drive between Rohlfing Road and Glenn Drive, south on Glenn Drive to the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way and east through residential backyards in Winston Park and Virginia Lake subdivisions to the vicinity of Baldwin Road and north to Virginia Lake. This proposal would necessitate the village obtaining easement rights from 17 property owners.

Ex-lieutenant honored

Former Palatine Police Lt. Edward Campeau was awarded a retirement badge in a black leather case by Pres. Wendell Jones on Monday.

Campeau, who is now Palatine's animal warden, joined the police force in 1953 and was the first policeman to retire this summer.

Parade permit approved

A parade permit for the William Fremd High School homecoming parade on Oct. 19 has been approved by the Palatine Village Board.

Approximately 50 decorated cars and floats with a police escort will leave the Fremd High School front parking lot, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., at 3 p.m. The parade will proceed north on Quentin Road, east on Palatine Road, south on Plum Grove Road, west on Hellen Street, south on Cedar Street and west on Illinois Avenue back to the school.

Pumpkin sale Oct. 20

The Palatine Jaycee Wives 2nd Annual Pumpkin Sale on Oct. 20 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. has been approved by village officials.

The pumpkin sale will be located at the corner of Palatine Road and Brockway Street.

Hockey tag day Oct. 27

The Palatine Amateur Hockey Association has received permission from the village board to conduct a tag day on Oct. 27.

Funds from the Tag Day will be used to defray the costs of the 1973-74 hockey program sponsored by the Palatine Amateur Hockey Association, in cooperation with the Palatine Park District.

K of C candy sale set

The Knights of Columbus will conduct a two-day candy sale in Palatine for the benefit of mentally retarded children.

The candy sale will be held on Nov. 2 and 3.

stream beds and is the first phase of a comprehensive program being developed in Palatine to protect flood plains, Guss said. Planned for the future are ordinances regulating the use of under-five-acre retention areas and a soil and erosion ordinance.

The main concern of the plan commission was the regulation of development of land adjacent to flood plains under the proposed ordinance. The proposal is to also ban building land adjacent to flood plains which are less than one foot above the level of the flood plain unless the elevation is raised.

MOODY SAID he was happy to see restrictions placed on property adjacent to flood plains but expressed concern this could lead to elevation problems and subsequent problems with road and other public improvements because of grade.

Another concern of the plan commission was the ability to use a flood plain for a parking lot if the village granted a special use. It was felt this would lead to more runoff of water onto adjacent property.

Guss said the concerns expressed by the plan commissioners would be looked into and taken under consideration prior to final action on the ordinance by the board.

The proposed flood plain ordinance has the endorsement of the citizen's and board's flood control committees and the board's planning, building and zoning committee.

Vandals break shop windows

Windows at Art's Book Shop, 16 S. Bothwell St., Palatine, were broken by rock-throwing vandals during the night Tuesday.

Nothing was taken in the incident, but the windows and a cover on the store's cash register were broken sometime between 6 a.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. yesterday. Damage was estimated at $200, according to Palatine police.

Ortiz reappointed acting police chief

Lt. Frank Ortiz has been reappointed acting Palatine police chief for another 90-day period by the Palatine Village Board.

Ortiz was first appointed to serve as an interim police chief in June after former Police Chief Robert Centner stepped down under pressure from the board.

The four-man police chief search committee appointed by the board is about four weeks away from making a recommendation to the board, said Acting Village Mgr. James Bennett. Ortiz is one of 17 applicants for the police chief vacancy.

The appointment was made with the understanding Ortiz would step down as acting police chief if a new police chief is named and assumes the post during the 90-day period.

'Y' yoga classes begin next week

Yoga classes start next week at the Buehler YMCA, with registrations being taken now.

A total of nine classes, for students from age four through adult, will be offered by three certified instructors. Class size is limited, and each session will be one hour per week.

The children's class began yesterday. Adult sessions are offered Monday evening, Wednesday morning and evening, and Thursday morning. Babysitting is available. The classes will continue for seven weeks.

More details are available at the YMCA, Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive, northwest of Palatine, or by calling 359-2400.

Planners vote to deny steak house proposal

The Palatine plan commission has recommended denial of an annexation request of 1½ acres along Northwest Highway for a Ponderosa Steak House.

Marie A. Zambach petitioned to have the property at 440 W. Northwest Hwy. across from the Village Oasis annexed with a business zoning and special use permit for the construction of a Ponderosa Steak House. The property is currently in unincorporated Palatine Township.

The plan commission indicated it was premature to give the petitioner an answer because the village's land use plan is approximately two months away from approval. Since the petitioner had requested an answer to its annexation request the commission unanimously voted to recommend denial. The village board will make the final decision.

A HELPING HAND gets the feet in the air at the Salt Creek Park District's early morning exercise class for women. Women may enroll in the class anytime through December.

Registration is taken by phone at 259-6890. Classes are held at the Rose Park field house, 530 S. Williams, Palatine.

Paper shortage may hike price of garbage bags

A nationwide shortage of paper may be driving up the cost of garbage bags provided free to Rolling Meadows residents by the city.

The city council voted Tuesday to delay accepting a contract with the St. Regis Paper Co. of Palatine to provide garbage bags for the city next year. The council's action came in an effort to give the city time to solicit other bids for the garbage bag supply.

The company, which currently sells bags to the city at a cost of 9.63 cents per bag, was the only firm to submit a bid for the garbage bag contract. The bid calls for a substantial increase in the cost of bags of up to a penny per bag.

RESIDENTS in the city currently receive garbage bags free of charge from the city. The city purchases the bags and distributes them as part of its free refuse collection service for homeowners.

The city's current budget allows $45,000 for the purchase of garbage bags. Figures show the city uses about 650,000 bags per year, but that total is expected to increase next year to 850,000 due to expanding service needs.

Under terms of the proposed St. Regis contract, the 850,000 bags could cost the city up to $87,550 next year.

The St. Regis company bid sets the cost of bags purchased through June, 1974 at $103 per 1,000 bags. The bid then calls for a price hike to $118 per 1,000 bags for bags purchased from June to December, 1974.

ALD. JOHN ROCK (3rd), chairman of the council's public works, building and zoning committee, told the council a notice for bids on the bag contract was publicized but only the St. Regis company responded. Rather than accept the lone bid, Ald. William Ahrens (2nd) said the city should solicit bids from other companies in an effort to get a better price.

To allow for time to solicit the bids, Mayor Roland Meyer suggested the council approve the purchase of a three-month supply of bags, a plan which the council approved.

Supt. of Public Works John Hennessy said yesterday he will negotiate with paper companies to purchase the three-month garbage bag supply.

BEFORE THE council voted to table consideration of the garbage bag contract, Ald. Thomas Waldron (2nd) warned that delaying acceptance of the St. Regis bid might mean the city will pay even higher prices for the bags later. Waldron said predictions are that the paper shortage situation will get worse rather than better, which may lead to soaring prices.

Ald. Kenneth Reitzke (5th) also suggested that the city consider using plastic biodegradable bags to supplement the paper bag supply. He said the plastic bags could be used for leaves and grass.

Meyer said the plan could be considered during the winter months, to determine if the plastic bags could be used next spring and summer. He also suggested the city could order bags of lesser thickness than are now being used to help reduce the total cost.

Critical shortages of paper have been caused by continuing labor strikes at paper mills in Canada, which supply much of the paper used in paper products in the United States.

A SHADY TREE by a babbling creek makes a nice place for a fellow to stop on an afternoon bike ride. Salt Creek may not be the prettiest stream and this spot behind the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex may not be the most serene location, but it seems to be just fine for this youngster.

'Public should be informed'

Teachers to protest lack of contract

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 teachers will be handing out leaflets in area shopping centers over the weekend, protesting the lack of a wage settlement.

"We feel that the public should be informed of the situation from our standpoint," said George Sherman, head of the district's teachers' organization, which met yesterday to plan protest action. Sherman added that the Classroom Teachers Council (CTC) is not planning to strike. "We hope it never gets to that point," he said.

Dist. 15 teachers returned to their classrooms this fall without a new contract. Wages are frozen at last year's level, but board negotiator Walt Sundling said any settlement will be retroactive to the beginning of the school year.

The teachers and the school board were $152,000 away from settling at their fifth negotiating session Monday night, said teacher negotiator George Yingst. He said teachers presented salary figures from neighboring districts and asked for "comparable" wages.

YINGST SAID the board is looking into those figures and making their own computations. Sundling refused to talk specifically about the negotiations. "We are considering all aspects that are involved and we are hopeful that we can conclude negotiations in a mutually satisfying manner at an early date," he said.

The next negotiating session is Oct. 8. Yingst said teachers would not lower their demands. At a teacher's meeting Tuesday, he said teacher negotiations "were given a tremendous vote of confidence." Teachers gave negotiators a standing ovation at that meeting.

Sherman added that CTC membership is nearing the 90 per cent mark compared to 52 per cent in previous years.

"They're joining for one reason — to back our negotiators," he said.

Teachers are asking for a total salary package of $6,372,820, an increase of approximately $536,790 from last year's settlement.

Yingst did not release details on how the increase would be distributed across the salary schedule. He did say the CTC is asking the highest per cent increase in wages for experienced teachers who make up the bulk of the district's 538 teachers.

"We know what we're worth and we're going to fight for it," said Sherman.

'A miracle,' chief's wife tells council

"I was a witness to a miracle," Shirley Fogarty told the city council Tuesday. In a brief statement she thanked the council for funding the fire department's paramedic program which saved the life of her husband, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty.

Mrs. Fogarty told the council their appropriation of $7,000 last year to begin the paramedic program saved her husband's life.

Fogarty suffered a heart attack Aug. 16 and doctors have credited paramedics with saving his life. The 51-year-old chief is recuperating at his home following open heart surgery Sept. 9 at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital.

Truck fire damage estimated at $1,000

A small truck fire at the Rossetti Contracting Co., 4050 Industrial Ave., Rolling Meadows, caused an estimated $1,000 damage Monday night.

The fire occurred in a 1968 semi-trailer truck owned by the company, the fire department said. The fire was started by an apparent short circuit in the truck's engine. Damage was confined to the truck engine, with 90 per cent of the wiring destroyed, the department said.

The fire occurred at 11:05 p.m. Monday.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Philip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told the Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raced through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House

Rep. Philip Crane

Rep. Samuel H. Young

shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep fighting. Crane was one of many Republican congressmen to sign a poster delivered to Agnew. The poster pictured a cat hanging from a pole and the message was "hang in there, babe."

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were seated in

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were seated in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClory, (R-13).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClory, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClory's office said.

"The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

Public works brouhaha

Judge says Hoffman Estates wrong in Labor Dept. snub

by NANCY COWGER

Hoffman Estates was "wrong" in denying the Illinois Labor Department had legal jurisdiction in the village's dispute with 26 fired public works employees, said a Cook County Circuit Court judge.

"As I read the statute, they're wrong. If that question were presented to me, I'd say they're wrong," said Judge Nathan Cohen who this week mediated a dispute between Chicago city colleges and their teachers.

Judge Cohen's comment came on the heels of announcement by Gilbert Cornfield, attorney for the employees, that he will file suit against the village if it does not comply with labor department recommendations.

The judge has no jurisdiction yet in the case. The department held a fact-finding hearing July 29 into events leading to a one-day strike by employees and the village firing them in retaliation. The village refused to participate in the hearing.

The department recommended the village immediately rehire the employees and negotiate a contract with their union within seven days. The findings were issued Friday, and the seven days expires this Friday.

THE VILLAGE has not rehired the men, and will not discuss the findings until Monday night, at the earliest, said Mayor Virginia Hayter yesterday. Although the village received the findings Monday and the board met that night, trustees took no action on them.

Mayor Hayter reiterated yesterday the village position on the hearing. "They had no jurisdiction," she said.

Referring to state law, Judge Cohen said "I don't see anything in the act that the Department of Labor would not have jurisdiction. I don't see any inhibition or impediment at all to the department's taking jurisdiction" in labor disputes involving public employees.

The village had argued that the department had authority only if both parties to the dispute requested its intervention. Judge Cohen also termed that argument "wrong."

MAYOR HAYTER strenuously objected to Judge Cohen's comments, and although no suit has been filed to date said she would seek reassignment of the case if it should be assigned to him.

"He is prejudicing himself. It (the case) won't go to him because he has already made a prejudicial statement. He has made a judgment without a case in front of him and without any other thing," said the mayor.

Cornfield said the suit, to be filed only if the village does not comply with the labor department findings, would claim violation of the employees' constitutional rights and seek a court order for their reinstatement in their jobs. He will try to file it next week and hopes for action on it during October, he said.

CORNFIELD ALSO said he would encourage the department to reopen the hearing and subpoena village officials, which it did not do July 29. However, Donald Johnson, hearing officer, said yesterday the hearing is closed and the department is not considering further action in the Hoffman Estates matter. He does not believe the department has any legal authority to force compliance with its findings by the village, he said.

The former employees, are members of Local 2041, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

THE EAGLE'S PERCH, a geodesic dome, is among the most popular contemporary playground equipment designed to appeal to children aged 6 to 14. Al Binder, Hoffman Estates park district director, notes they hold attention of children for unusually long time periods. The district has installed domes like this one in five local parks in the past month. (Photo by Mike Seeling)

Jewel heist car believed found

A car believed to be the getaway vehicle in the largest jewel robbery in Schaumburg's history has been recovered in southwest suburban Stickney, police said yesterday.

The car, a 1972 Chevrolet, bearing license plate numbers identical to those supplied by witnesses as abandoned for about four weeks, police reported. The car was reportedly used in the $12,000 armed robbery Aug. 24 at Woodfield Jewelers in the Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Golf and Meacham roads.

The registered owner of the car, Jacob Cohen, Chicago, is named on a flight warrant and is wanted for questioning about the robbery, police said. Chief Martin Conroy said Cohen is not only being sought by local authorities, but by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation also.

After the robbery, the bandit drove off in a 1973 Cadillac, which was later found to have been stolen from Des Plaines the day before, police reported. The robber then changed cars in a parking lot a few blocks away, police said.

Man on probation after guilty plea

An 18-year-old Schaumburg man who bombed the car owned by a village resident and stole jewelry from a Woodfield store was put on probation yesterday after pleading guilty to reduced charges.

Daniel A. Gonsaulius of 434 Slingerland Dr., was arrested Aug. 22, for the theft on Aug. 7 of $2,000 in watches and watch chains from Frank's Jewelers at Woodfield.

He also was charged with criminal damage to property for the July 17 bombing of a car owned by Russell Lobaugh, 609 Lillie Court.

Gonsaulius pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge reduced from burglary to theft on the incident at Frank's Jewelers and also pleaded guilty to the criminal damage charge.

He was given one year's probation on each count by Associate Judge James Maher at the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Texaco holds up stop-signal installation

Installation of stop signals at Schaumburg and Springfields roads is being held up due to Texaco Inc.'s apparent unwillingness to dedicate a 15-foot easement.

Unless the matter is settled quickly, the village stands to lose $60,000 in federal, state and county assistance now provided by the Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety (TOPICS), said John Coste, village administrator.

Coste explained that TOPICS will be phased out by Jan. 1 to be replaced by a federal assistance plan.

THIS INTERSECTION and two others now under construction in the village have been planned for TOPICS funding. The problem has occurred because Texaco Inc., owner of a gasoline station on the northeast corner of the intersection, has refused to dedicate the needed easement.

Texaco officials, however, have expressed willingness to sell the needed land to the village, Mayor Robert O. Atcher explained.

He said that Campanelli Bros. dedicated sufficient land to provide a wider-than-normal street in Springfields from Schaumburg to Wise Road and noted that a church opposite the Texaco station dedicated the requested easement.

TRUSTEES APPROVED a resolution this week requesting Texaco Inc. give serious consideration to the easement proposal in view of opposition to the approval of the service station several years ago.

"We have no difficulty with Schaumburg," said Ron Rue, of Texaco's real estate department.

Rue said the easement proposal "is under consideration but no decision has been made."

"I can't answer that," Rue replied when asked if Texaco would be willing to dedicate the easement.

"Of course, we have to take land values into consideration," he added.

Sheffield Manor woes

by PAT GERLACH

Bells will be ringing but lights will continue to blink in Schaumburg's Sheffield Manor subdivision.

Owners of quadrophomes in the less than two-year old subdivision can now look forward to private telephone lines. But power failures may be anticipated there for some time.

Residents of the Manor, south of Bode Road and just east of Barrington Road, recently complained of both telephone and electricity problems.

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. this week said 45 orders for private telephone service, now pending in the Manor, have been released.

"ALL OF THESE people should be on private service within two weeks. That is, unless we have trouble making appointments with them for the change of service," said Carl Fyhrle, an Illinois Bell public relations representative.

Fyhrle said party lines were assigned in the area because cable facilities there were not capable of handling a large number of new private subscribers. But cabling has been extended and the telephone company's construction department has given the go-ahead on conversion to private service.

"It is really funny, though, because years ago people had eight party lines and thought nothing of it," Fyhrle commented.

Power interruptions though, may continue as a way of life in the Manor.

JACK STEVENS, a Commonwealth Edison district superintendent said there would be power problems "At least until most construction in the area and odds and ends of planting have been completed so that contractors can move on."

Stevens said Com Ed has four recorded interruptions of power this year alone.

"Three of these were due to underground failures as a result of construction damage," he said.

He explained that in the Schaumburg area "utilities are all almost on top of each other." Little doubt exists that power cables are inadvertently cut "all the time" by contractors working in the area. Usually they are immediately reported to Com Ed field personnel and quickly repaired, Stevens said.

"That does not mean that interruptions due to cables striking cannot appear hours, weeks or even months after the occurrence," Stevens advised.

ONLY ONE case of power failure during a rain storm has been reported, according to Stevens. "That was on June 16 when lightning struck," he said.

But in the meantime, Stevens offers reassurance in that Com Ed constantly tests the entire Bode Road line for cable strikes or other problems.

"Except for the lightning instance, we have three reports. But that does not necessarily mean there may not have been many other power interruptions we haven't learned of," Stevens said.

Homeowner in Africa, his home burglarized

Hoffman Estates police are investigating the burglary of the home of W. A. Mulligan and the theft of several paintings, discovered early Sunday.

Mulligan returned at 3 a.m. Sunday from a 2½-week business trip to Africa. He found his home ransacked and four oil paintings, two water colors and 30 block prints missing, according to police. Entry apparently was gained by damaging the lock on the rear door. Police said they are investigating reports unauthorized persons lived in the home during Mulligan's absence.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

Meacham Rd. to be enlarged

Responsibility for maintenance, jurisdiction and control of part of Meacham Road will be accepted by the Village of Schaumburg following widening and upgrading of the highway by Illinois Department of Transportation.

DOT plans call for enlarging Meacham Road, between Higgins and Algonquin roads, to four lanes. Contracts must be awarded for the project by Jan. 1, 1977, according to an agreement between the village and DOT. A timetable for the work cannot be established until that time.

The project will involve a new bridge over the Illinois Tollway, installation of median strips and channelization of Wiley and Remington roads which lead from Meacham road to Schaumburg Industrial Park.

WHEN PLANS for the Meacham Road work were revealed in July, Mayor Robert O. Atcher requested DOT consider delaying the project until more motor fuel tax funds become available to the village through increased population.

Unofficial results of a special census conducted in Schaumburg this month indicate a more than 7,000-person increase since the last count was done 18 months ago.

Present DOT policy calls for unnumbered highways to be brought up to acceptable standards and then offered to municipalities, Atcher said.

"If a village refuses, DOT has no alternative but to leave the road in its present condition and just maintain the facility, so we have no alternative," he added.

Village board wrapup

14-day limit OK'd for stray dogs

Stray dogs impounded by the Village of Schaumburg may be destroyed after a minimum of 14 days, according to action taken by the village board Tuesday.

Dogs wearing identification may be disposed of seven days after owners have been notified if no attempts have been made to redeem the animals.

Action amending current animal legislation came after investigation by the village health department.

A survey conducted over three months indicates that most impounded dogs carried no identification but were claimed by owners within one to two days.

Revisions in the ordinance were suggested by the health, safety and recreation committee.

Generator bid awarded

A $4,250 contract for purchase of a gas-driven generator for Schaumburg's new municipal building was awarded to Industrial Engines and Parts of Chicago, the only bidder, this week.

The generator will be used as a power-failure back-up system for telephones, a sump pump, lighting and fans which operate the furnace, said John Coste, village administrator.

Since delivery is not expected until February, an auxiliary generator now used at the Great Hall will be used until new equipment is installed.

New German restaurant

The Black Forest, a German grocery and wine store at Woodfield Mall, will soon begin serving food, beer and wine.

Schaumburg trustees agreed this week to reclassify a liquor license from Class F (package goods) to Class H (for sale and consumption on premises) to accommodate a delicatessen section planned at the store.

Village board members expressed no objection to the eventual issuance of a liquor license to Seven Eagles Corp.

To discuss proposals for unincorporated areas

State officials will meet with PHIA on legislation

by TOM VON MALDER
Four state officials have already accepted an invitation to meet Monday with the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

Those who have said they will attend the 8 p.m. meeting at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., are State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-Ist, said he will try to send an aide.

Those invited, but yet responding, are Gov. Daniel Walker; State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette; State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, and State Sen. John J. Nilmrod, R-4th.

Jack Gilligan, PHIA president, has drawn up a list of legislative areas to be discussed at the meeting. The list includes items of direct interest to Prospect Heights residents.

THE FIRST of 11 subject areas Gilligan has listed is a reduction or elimination of the assessed valuation of airports, golf courses and similar privately-owned publicly-used facilities. Gilligan would like to see at least a 75 per cent reduction to serve as an "inducement to the preservation of these uses."

Palwaukee Airport and the Rob Roy Golf Course both lie partially within the proposed boundaries for the City of Prospect Heights.

The second proposal calls for the establishment of a state land use commission, which among other functions would hold public hearings to "determine the total environmental impact of, and to clearly define criteria for allowing, conversion to other uses of airports and golf courses" and other privately owned, publicly used properties.

The proposal states that the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) may be the agency that could be empowered to hold such hearings. Current proposals before Mount Prospect call for apartments on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

A third proposal supports the creation of a Regional Transportation Authority for the area. "We don't want an expressway put through Prospect Heights. We don't want a transportation system stuck down our throats," Gilligan said. He added the PHIA wants knowledge of transportation plans and ability to speak on any plans.

OTHER PROPOSALS would give the townships limited zoning and land use approval authority and permit townships

Discount meals for elderly may expand to all hours

Senior citizens in Mount Prospect may soon be able to get a meal at reduced rates any hour of the day at numerous local restaurants.

Kathleen Stover, program coordinator of the Mount Prospect Senior Citizens Advisory Council, said yesterday she hopes to convince participating restaurant owners to do away with the hours restricting the reduced-rate meal program.

"The thing the seniors have found a little confusing is the hours that are set at some of the restaurants," she said.

The 21 restaurants which participate in the program set their own hours. Some offer discounts during certain off hours, such as 2 to 4 p.m., and others offer discount rates throughout the day.

MRS. STOVER SAID she believed the hours was the only major problem with the reduced rate program now. "As far as we can see from this end," she said, "it's been a very successful program."

The program is just completing its sixth month.

Marjorie Boswell, the village health director who initiated the program, said she considers it "definitely worthwhile," and mentioned staggered hours as the only drawback in the present arrangement.

Many senior citizens have taken advantage of the program, she said, including 52 who went in a group to one restaurant.

MRS. STOVER SAID studies are being made of providing mini bus service to help elderly citizens get to and from the restaurants.

"Seniors in general have problems with transportation," she said. "Getting to the doctor, to meetings, just getting around town in general."

Other possibilities being pursued are car pools manned by volunteers and group arrangements with local taxicab companies.

UGH! ACHIEVEMENT tests seems to be what this Dist. 26, River Trails Junior High School student is thinking. Most kids say although the tests are boring to take, they're worthwhile and an accurate measure of what they know. The tests are being given all this week in schools throughout that district.

Achievement tests

Students, teachers, administrators maintain testing is necessary, but far from perfect

EDITOR'S NOTE: Every year students in the Northwest suburbs take standardized achievement tests. This week students in River Trails School Dist. 26 are taking the exams and Herald reporter Jill Bettner got opinions from students, teachers and administrators about the annual testing.

by JILL BETTNER

Students at River Trails Junior High School (Dist. 26, Mount Prospect) appear to consider annual achievement tests a necessary evil. The tests are worthwhile, they say, but boring.

Along with the junior high students, all pupils in grades two through eight in the district this week are taking the achievement tests developed by Science Research Associates Inc.

According to Glen Erickson, principal of Bond School and director of testing for the district, the machine-scored tests are designed to measure academic skills. The results of the tests indicate how the student's skills compare with others his age in the district and nationally.

Students in grades one through three are tested mainly in reading, language arts and math, Erickson said. Upper level students are also tested in these areas plus science, social studies and the use of source materials.

The tests are being given at short stretches over several days.

MOST RIVER TRAILS students agreed that the tests are fair and pretty good indicators of their ability in each academic area.

"I think they show what we know and there isn't much on them that we haven't had yet," said Chris Domerschi, seventh grade.

The students also feel teachers are correct in using the tests to help gear classroom instruction to the needs of pupils.

"It's a good way to tell what kids need to know," said Arnette Garcia, seventh grade. "Teachers should use them to teach whatever kids get wrong on the tests," added Dennis Leuntjens, eighth grade.

Although most teachers said they use the SRA tests results somewhat to tailor their instruction to fit student needs, they agreed that a pupil's ability cannot be accurately measured by the tests alone.

"We're told to rely pretty much on the results of the tests," said a language arts teacher who wished to remain anonymous. "It's what the board has determined, so it's what they want and the parents want, but the tests don't measure everything. For example, they don't measure creativity."

ERICKSON STRESSED that there are many factors too, that influence a student's performance on the tests.

"We try to emphasize to parents and teachers that this one test is not the gospel word," he said. "It's just one means we have of learning a child's progress. All the reading books have tests, the math program includes a test after each chapter and teachers use other tests to measure the day-to-day progress picture of students all year."

Erickson said the districtwide comparisons of student performance are useful in identifying general academic strengths and weaknesses.

"Last year, we found that a lot of students were low in math skills, so this year we've tried to schedule more math review and work of that kind," he said. "Although we don't teach primarily for the test, it helps us get a better idea of what we're doing."

RIVER TRAILS social studies teacher Walter Cuculic agreed, saying, "It's a good way of evaluating the system so that we can better program for years to come."

Up until last year, the Iowa Test of Basic Skills achievement tests were administered in the district each spring. Administrators feel the SRA tests are more accurate and the results are easier to explain to parents.

"This is really the Cadillac package of tests," said Eugene Kukla, River Trails principal. "What I think is so uniquely good about them is that parents can understand the results so they can cooperate with teachers in correcting learning problems."

KUKLA SAID because several skills are measured in each academic area, it is easier to pinpoint a student's problems.

For example, under reading, the student is tested for comprehension, his ability to restate material, understand a sequence and summarize, draw inferences, apply the material to new situations and see logical relationships. He is given a separate score for each skill.

By giving the tests in the fall rather than the spring as in the past, Kukla said instructors have a better chance to give students the help they need to advance and do well in the next grade. Sometimes, too, students may be transferred from one ability group to another based on the test results. Students in grades seven and eight at River Trails are sectioned into low, intermediate and high-ability groups.

Kukla will call a special meeting of parents in November to explain the test scores. Homework teachers will also meet with parents individually to discuss their child's test results.

The principals of the other schools in the district will conduct similar parent meetings.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Philip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told the Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raced through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep fighting. Crane was one of many Republican congressmen to sign a poster delivered to Agnew. The poster pictured a cat hanging from a pole and the message was "hang in there, baby."

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal meetings to discuss the Maryland bribery-kickback probe were called but there was "plenty of discussion," according to Cong. Young.

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of congressmen were seated in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClory, (R-13).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClory, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClory's office said.

"The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

Schools plan census

To aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs, School Dist. 21 will conduct a census of all residents between Oct. 15 and 31.

The door-to-door canvassing will be done by PTA members in each school attendance area.

The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey is designed to give administrators data to plan for future needs.

"From 1963 on, we had a pretty good idea of what kind of kids we'd get from each kind of residence," said Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill. "All those indicators are shot now because of the drop in the birth rate and the change in building from mainly single-family to multiple-family dwellings."

GILL SAID the increased spread in prices of homes in Dist. 21 has also had an effect on enrollments. There are more families with expensive homes who have older children.

Assistant Supt. John Barger said in 1963 there were three times as many kindergarten children as eighth grade students in the district. Today, he said, there is an almost even distribution.

The survey is also intended to identify students in the district who have special educational needs. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental and physical handicaps, the survey will also reveal the number of students who need bilingual instruction.

After the survey is completed, Gill said, it will probably take about a month to compile the results. A report will be presented to the school board as soon as possible, he said. High Schools in the Dist. 21 area will also receive copies of the report.

QUESTIONS INCLUDED in the survey are:

- Type of dwelling (single-family detached, single-family attached, such as townhouse or quadrohome).
- Number and age of children in the residence, the school each attends and any handicaps.
- If there are no children under 19 in the residence, the number and age of persons under and over 35.
- Languages other than English spoken in the home.
- Number of years lived in the district.

Besides the numerical data, the survey also asks for each resident's opinion of schools in the district. Residents will be asked to state if they are well pleased, satisfied, dissatisfied or have no opinion of elementary, junior high and high school instruction.

PHIA invites state officials to meeting to buy or condemn property for environmental protection, recreation or other public use. The first is prompted by incidences such as the one in which a home was moved onto Waterman Avenue without the PHIA or neighborhood being informed before hand.

"We want to know what's happening," Gilligan said. "We've been burned a couple of times." He said the residents of Waterman Avenue were extremely upset when the house was moved to their street.

The sixth proposal calls for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners. "We want some of their situations examined. They are often restricted severely by the (mobile park) manager," Gilligan said. Many mobile home parks are found in unincorporated areas, as there are often municipal ordinances against trailer homes.

Gilligan's group would like a more equal distribution of state sales tax rebates, he said. "Randhurst is a regional shopping center. It doesn't belong to Mount Prospect alone."

The PHIA plan is not to take all of the sales tax rebate from Mount Prospect, for example, but some "slight" reimbursement.

THE PHIA is also asking for more state funding for environmental projects, an increase in the authority and power of soil and water conservation districts with respect to land use recommendations. It also calls for townships to be empowered to engage in environmental programs designed to control air and water pollution and flood damage relief.

The final proposal seeks minimum standards and requirements for surface drainage control and enforcement through sanitary districts in unincorporated areas.

3-day show at race track expected to draw many

A three-day high fidelity trade show that will include five outdoor concerts and is expected to draw thousands is scheduled to open Friday afternoon at Arlington Park Race Track.

Sponsors of the show, Pacific Stereo, were given permission to stage the concerts and exhibit sound equipment by the village administration, apparently without official notification to the village board of trustees.

Trade shows are permitted at the race track under terms of the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and Arlington Park. However, the village board in the past has required special-use permits for other outdoor activities, including the recently concluded Future of America Fair.

TICKETS TO the three-day show, dubbed the "Sound Experience" are free at any of the six area Pacific Stereo stores and at Discount Records on LaSalle Street in Chicago.

The talent line up for the weekend includes:

Friday at 7 p.m. The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Freddie King and the All Star Frogs.

Saturday at 2 p.m. Steve Goodman, Ed Holstein, Mississippi Flanagan and Fred Holstein.

Saturday at 7 p.m. Paul Butterfield's Better Days, Mike Bloomfield, Mark Naftalin and Junior Lacey.

Sunday at 2 p.m. The Chicago Brass Quintet and the Chicago Chamber Orchestra.

Sunday at 7 p.m. Jose Feliciano, El Chicano and Bonnie Koloc.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police officials say they have been told by promoters that a crowd of 100,000 is expected over the three-day run. Extra patrolmen for crowd control have been assigned, according to Police Sgt. Jack Weber.

The trade show itself will feature the latest high fidelity stereo equipment from 40 different manufacturers. Sound seminars will be conducted by factory experts and full-length films are also planned.

All exhibits will be in the Arlington Park grandstand. The concerts will be staged in front of the grandstand.

THERE WILL be a $1 race track parking fee.

Pacific Stereo, a leading seller of stereo equipment on the West Coast, has five Chicago area stores in the suburbs of Evanston, Lombard, Oak Park, Niles and Oak Lawn.

Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning said recently that administrative officials were aware of the trade show and concert plans and did not think that a special use permit was not needed.

Special-use permit applications require a public hearing, usually held by the plan commission, and must be approved formally by the village board.

Village trustees contacted yesterday said they had not discussed the possible need for a special-use permit, and said there had been no official notice of the concert plans.

Arlington Park's director of public relations, Tom Rivera, said almost all the details for the show were planned by Pacific Stereo and the race track's sales department.

He added that business licenses for the show were approved by the village with the knowledge that the concerts would be an integral part of the exhibition.

Prospect Hts. needs own police: county

Prospect Heights, if it becomes a city, should form its own police department rather than hire Cook County Sheriff's police, according to Sheriff's Police Chief Edward Dobbs.

Dobbs said his force would be more than willing to supply Prospect Heights with support police service, including training, backup and criminal investigations. However, Dobbs said the Sheriff's police is trying to get out of the patrol business.

Dobbs and two other members of the Sheriff's police attended a finance committee meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) Tuesday night. PHIA is exploring the costs of setting up a City of Prospect Heights in their unincorporated area.

JACK GILLIGAN, PHIA president, told Dobbs he would prefer contracting with the Sheriff's police for a period of at least three or four years, with a gradual changeover to an all-Prospect Heights force. Gilligan's concern is that it would cost Prospect Heights more money than they could possibly raise, if the community had to come up with its own police department right after incorporation.

Sheriff's police currently patrol the Prospect Heights area with two cars. For Prospect Heights to supply itself with the same coverage, 10 policemen would have to be hired.

Dobbs, following a long-standing policy of the Sheriff's police, urged PHIA to form its own force and contract for backup services from the Sheriff's police.

As for the period of turnover, Dobbs said, "I don't believe we'd abandon you if there is a need for our services. But, at the same time, we'd hope you'd appreciate our position and what our aims are."

DOBBS HAD NO figures ready to give

PHIA on how many men and police cars they should have and what a department might cost the community. He promised to gather such figures over the next couple of weeks.

Gilligan said he does not see the area with 13,000 residences incorporating until next March or April.

Other costs for a police department that will face Prospect Heights would be for police vehicles, vehicle maintenance, mobile radios, some type of office and some record keeping.

Grand jury indicts burglary suspect

A Cook County grand jury has indicted a Des Plaines man on charges of burglarizing a Mount Prospect home.

Mount Prospect police said a "true bill" was returned against Rex J. Austin, 18, of 1436 Thacker St., Des Plaines. One was not returned against Vincent J. Badlamanti, 20, of 504 Brockton Pl., Schaumburg, who was arrested in the same incident.

Police said lesser charges may be filed against Badlamanti. Both men were arrested Aug. 11, after they were found at 111 N. Horner Ln., the John E. Katler residence. Police allegedly found Austin in a bedroom holding a jewelry case and Badlamanti at the front door.

Court dates are to be announced.

Village board must give approval

Planners OK improvement study of Arlington Hts. Rd.

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission has approved and forwarded to the village board a study calling for a 30-year, $32 million improvement plan for Arlington Heights Road.

O.V. Anderson, commission chairman said, "This study is an endeavor to set standards and goals to improve Arlington Heights Road so you don't have the mixture you have along Dempster Street in Skokie."

Joseph Kesler, village planner, who prepared the study, stressed the improvements, should they be approved by the village board, would span 30 years at a cost of slightly more than $1 million annually. He said funds would come from all available sources, including the state, county, village and federal government.

Basically the study proposes Arlington

Heights Road, the major north-south artery of the village, become an eight-mile tree-lined, aesthetically controlled thoroughfare.

THE REPORT suggests development of further single family homes fronting on the street be drastically curtailed in favor of multi-family, light manufacturing or controlled commercial uses. Parcels of land have been designated in the study for use in flood-control projects and possible acquisition by the Arlington Heights Park District as part of a greenbelt.

The report urged a detailed study of the intersection of the street and Northwest Highway at the Chicago North Western Railway.

John Best, village planning engineer, said the original plan to depress both roads was impractical. He suggested only Arlington Heights Road be depressed to ease traffic congestion there.

Plans for a pedestrian subway at the intersection were also laid aside. Commissioners said the tunnel would represent a flood problem in times of heavy rains.

A series of enclosed pedestrian overpasses was scrapped. One experimental overpass was urged for Arlington Heights and Rand roads. The commissioners said the intersection provided enough varied foot traffic upon which judgements about future structures could be based.

PLANS FOR A seven story municipal clock tower were also eliminated.

The report calls for use of trees and curving tinted sidewalks to make the roadway more appealing. Plans also include median dividers be planted with flowers wherever possible.

The commissioners stressed the study does not change any existing zoning along the road. Rather, they said, it provided a unified plan for developing the road harmoniously.

The original study was a massive 450-page technical document. The commissioners approved, along with the technical study, a nine-page summary which divides the road into 14 major segments. The summary report also includes maps of existing land use, proposed land and proposed zoning of the areas.

Schools plan door-to-door census

To aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs, School Dist. 21 will conduct a census of all residents between Oct. 15 and 31.

The door-to-door canvassing will be done by PTA members in each school attendance area.

The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey is designed to give administrators data to plan for future needs.

"From 1963 on, we had a pretty good idea of what kind of kids we'd get from each kind of residence," said Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill. "All those indicators are shot now because of the drop in the birth rate and the change in building from mainly single-family to multiple-family dwellings."

GILL SAID the increased spread in prices of homes in Dist. 21 has also had an effect on enrollments. There are more families with expensive homes who have older children.

Assistant Supt. John Barger said in 1963 there were three times as many kindergarten children as eighth grade students in the district. Today, he said, there is an almost even distribution.

The survey is also intended to identify students in the district who have special educational needs. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental and physical handicaps, the survey will also reveal the number of students who need bilingual instruction.

After the survey is completed, Gill said, it will probably take about a month to compile the results. A report will be presented to the school board as soon as possible, he said. High Schools in the Dist. 21 area will also receive copies of the report.

QUESTIONS INCLUDED in the survey are:

- Type of dwelling (single-family detached, single-family attached, such as townhouse or quadrohome).

- Number and age of children in the residence, the school each attends and any handicaps.

- If there are no children under 19 in the residence, the number and age of persons under and over 35.

- Languages other than English spoken in the home.

- Number of years lived in the district.

Besides the numerical data, the survey also asks for each resident's opinion of schools in the district. Residents will be asked to state if they are well pleased, satisfied, dissatisfied or have no opinion of elementary, junior high and high school instruction.

19-year-olds can't drink in the village until Oct. 6

by KURT BAER

Nineteen- and 20-year-olds anxious to buy their first legal beer Oct. 1 will have to do their drinking outside the Village of Arlington Heights.

The change in liquor laws will not become effective locally until Oct. 6.

According to state statutes, the village ordinance permitting 19- and 20-year-olds to drink beer and wine does not become law until 10 days after it is published in a newspaper of general circulation.

Arlington Heights' new liquor control ordinance was printed in yesterday's Herald, which means that it will not become law in the village until Oct. 6, despite the fact that the change was approved by the Board of Trustees on Sept. 17.

ASSISTANT VILLAGE Mgr. Darryl Kenning said yesterday that holders of village liquor licenses, both package store and tavern operators, have been notified by mail of the Oct. 6 starting date.

Youngsters who misrepresent their age in an attempt to purchase liquor are subject to a $200 fine. Accepting alcohol as a "gift," or having possession of liquor can bring an underage person a $25 to $100 fine.

Arlington Heights Police Capt. Maurice English said yesterday that police would enforce the Oct. 6 drinking date.

Local liquor control ordinances take priority over state law, particularly in the case of home rule municipalities like Arlington Heights. Communities retain the right to regulate liquor sales and alcohol consumption, and local license holders are obliged to follow the village ordinance, according to Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

VILLAGE CLERK Ruth Ruff, who is responsible for getting village ordinances published when required by law, said the liquor control ordinance was given to the Herald September 19 for publication and was told the material could not be printed until Sept. 28.

To coincide with the Oct. 1 starting date, the ordinance must have been published no later than Sept. 21.

A spot check yesterday of three village bartenders revealed an attitude of acceptance that they will be five days late in serving their new young customers.

"I think that responsible kids will realize the problem. What the heck difference does one week make anyway?" said the manager of Lum's Restaurant, 1720 W. Algonquin Rd.

The manager of the Bella Inn, 15 E. Campbell St., said he was unaware of the delay but did not foresee any special problems connected with it.

THE BARTENDER at Bill's Inn, 21 W. Campbell, said he questioned whether the village ordinance would supersede the state law which set Oct. 1 as the first legal date for 19- and 20-year-old beer buying.

The Mount Prospect Village Board is not expected to pass an ordinance changing the drinking age in that community until next Tuesday.

However, Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said he intended to instruct village police not to enforce restrictions against 19- and 20-year-olds buying beer and wine after Oct. 1, even though the village ordinance technically would not become law until the middle of the month.

A similar situation may confront other villages that have not yet changed their local ordinance to comply with the new state law.

Local congressmen support Agnew in plea for hearing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Republican congressmen from the Northwest suburbs are on the side of Vice President Agnew in the current controversy over Agnew's right to remain in office or face criminal charges.

Contacted yesterday, both Congressman Samuel Young (R-10th) and Phillip Crane (R-12th) applauded Agnew's efforts to get a hearing in Congress on charges that he accepted bribes while an official in the state of Maryland.

Agnew's request for a U.S. House investigation of charges that he accepted kickbacks several years ago was "a resourceful move on his part to try to get national coverage of the charges against him," Cong. Young told the Herald.

And according to Crane's office, the Agnew move was "handled in a much better fashion" than events surrounding the Watergate incident. "He's gone public," a spokesman for Crane said yesterday. "He's looked at his challengers eye to eye and said 'prove it.'" While speculation about the vice president's future course of action raced through the Washington grapevine yesterday, members of the Illinois delegation to Congress took part in efforts to reach some settlement about the role of Congress in the matter.

EARLIER, House Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said the House would not conduct an inquiry into the alleged charges against the vice president as Agnew had requested.

Republican congressmen yesterday were attempting to reach a compromise on Agnew's request and Albert's denial.

Rep. John Anderson of Rockford (R-17) and Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th) introduced resolutions in the House on the matter. Anderson's move called for Speaker Albert to appoint "an appropriate committee to determine whether allegations of impropriety by Vice President Agnew pertain to the period during his tenure in office."

The resolution urges Attorney General Elliot Richardson to consult on the matter and give a House committee any information about the Agnew investigation which would be relevant to a Congressional decision on the case against Agnew.

Findley's resolution called for a select committee to study whether the House

shall undertake impeachment proceedings against the vice president.

A THIRD MOVE yesterday by Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) calls for a bill to create a committee of eight Democrats and six Republicans to investigate the charges against Agnew and recommend a course of action for the House "at the earliest practical date."

Moral support for the vice president came from Republican congressmen who sent Agnew a poster urging him to keep

Rep. Samuel H. Young

fighting. Crane was one of many Republican congressmen to sign a poster delivered to Agnew. The poster pictured a cat hanging from a pole and the message was "hang in there, baby."

While Congress labored through its regularly scheduled business, House leaders discussed strategy involving Agnew. No formal meetings to discuss the Maryland-bribery-kickback probe were called but there was "plenty of discussion," according to Cong. Young.

For full story on Agnew probe

Agnew met with House Republican leaders late yesterday on Capitol Hill before Congress began the recess that will bring both Young and Crane back to the Northwest suburbs today.

TURMOIL SURROUNDING the vice president was rumored through the Capitol Hill grapevine late Tuesday, Crane's office said. Despite mention of meetings between Agnew, President Richard Nixon and Atty. Gen. Richardson, only a handful of Congressmen were seated in the House chambers when a hand-delivered letter from Agnew to Albert requesting House action was read.

Confusion followed because the House is without rules for investigating a vice president, said a spokesman for Cong. Robert McClell, (R-13).

The House Judiciary Committee is charged with probing impeachment of a vice president. McClell, who supports Agnew, is second-ranking Republican on the committee.

"It was totally unclear which committee would have jurisdiction," a spokesman at McClell's office said.

"The speaker also could appoint a select committee and I doubt that it would go to the entire House first," Speaker Albert's quick denial of the Agnew request ended some speculation, although maneuvering will continue until Congress returns Monday, Young said.

"If the Democratic leadership won't cooperate with him (Agnew), he'll just have to wait for the grand jury," Young said. "We're as much set up to do this kind of thing as the Senate is set up to do the Watergate."

Elk Grove lieutenant named Alsip police chief

Elk Grove Village police Lt. Raymond Marinec will resign from the department Oct. 7 to become police chief of Alsip, Ill. The Alsip village board announced Marinec's appointment at their board meeting Tuesday. The appointment will be confirmed Oct. 1.

Alsip Mayor Arnold Andrews, in announcing the appointment, said Marinec will assume duties on Oct. 8.

Marinec is the second village police lieutenant to resign in the past 13 months to accept a police chief position elsewhere. Harry Walsh resigned in August, 1972, to become police chief of Buffalo Grove.

Marinec was promoted to lieutenant in charge of the investigations and youth division after Walsh left. He is an 11½ year veteran of the Elk Grove Village police department.

ALSIP IS a village on the southwest edge of Chicago and is bordered by Blue Island and Oak Lawn. The acting Alsip police commander, Sgt. Ronald Rice, said the community was similar to Elk Grove Village with a large residential area adjoining an industrial park.

Rice said the village had a population of about 15,000 with an additional 5,000 to 6,000 workers coming into the industrial park daily.

The Alsip police department now has 17 patrolmen and four sergeants, according to Rice. He said the department has a squad car for every one of the officers.

Marinec said he took the position because it was a "bigger challenge, one I've wanted for a long time."

MARINEC is married and the father of five children. He said he expects to move his family to Alsip soon after taking the chief's position.

In taking the Alsip job, Marinec will be following on the heels of a major department scandal. Stanley Thoms, former Alsip police chief and a 21-year veteran of the department, was recently convicted on six counts of bribery and official misconduct.

Thoms resigned from the force in June. He is to be sentenced for the crimes on Oct. 18.

He was convicted of accepting bribes from two motels in exchange for ignoring prostitution operations.

Marinec served in the U.S. Army for three years as a military policeman and has received training at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois, the Southern Police Institute of the University of Louisville and Harper Community College.

State officials to meet with PHIA

by TOM VON MALDER

Four state officials have already accepted an invitation to meet Monday with the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) to discuss legislation affecting unincorporated areas.

Those who have said they will attend the 8 p.m. meeting at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., are State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston; State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie; State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. State Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-Ist, said he will try to send an aide.

Those invited, but yet responding, are Gov. Daniel Walker; State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette; State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, and State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th.

Jack Gilligan, PHIA president, has drawn up a list of legislative areas to be discussed at the meeting. The list includes items of direct interest to Prospect Heights residents.

THE FIRST of 11 subject areas Gilligan has listed is a reduction or elimination of the assessed valuation of airports, golf courses and similar privately-owned publicly-used facilities. Gilligan would like to see at least a 75 per cent reduction to serve as an "inducement to the preservation of these uses."

Palwaukee Airport and the Rob Roy Golf Course both lie partially within the proposed boundaries for the City of Prospect Heights.

The second proposal calls for the establishment of a state land use commission, which among other functions would hold public hearings to "determine the total environmental impact of, and to clearly define criteria for allowing, conversion to other uses of airports and golf courses" and other privately owned, publicly used properties.

The proposal states that the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) may be the agency that could be empowered to hold such hearings. Current proposals before Mount Prospect call for apartments on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

A third proposal supports the creation of a Regional Transportation Authority for the area. "We don't want an expressway put through Prospect Heights. We don't want a transportation system stuck down our throats," Gilligan said. He added the PHIA wants knowledge of transportation plans and ability to speak on any plans.

OTHER PROPOSALS would give the townships limited zoning and land use approval authority and permit townships to buy or condemn property for environmental protection, recreation or other public use. The first is prompted by incidences such as the one in which a home was moved onto Waterman Avenue without the PHIA or neighborhood being informed before hand.

"We want to know what's happening," Gilligan said. "We've been burned a couple of times." He said the residents of Waterman Avenue were extremely upset when the house was moved to their street.

The sixth proposal calls for an investigation into the rights of mobile home owners. "We want some of their situations examined. They are (often) restricted severely by the (mobile park) manager," Gilligan said. Many mobile home parks are found in unincorporated areas, as there are often municipal ordinances against trailer homes.

Gilligan's group would like a more equal distribution of state sales tax rebates, he said. "Randhurst is a regional shopping center. It doesn't belong to Mount Prospect alone."

The PHIA plan is not to take all of the sales tax rebate from Mount Prospect, for example, but some "slight" reimbursement.

THE PHIA is also asking for more state funding for environmental projects, an increase in the authority and power of soil and water conservation districts with respect to land use recommendations. It also calls for townships to be empowered to engage in environmental programs designed to control air and water pollution and flood damage relief.

The final proposal seeks minimum standards and requirements for surface drainage control and enforcement through sanitary districts in unincorporated areas.

Gun-carrying man arrested

A Chicago man was arrested in Arlington Heights Tuesday after his fellow workers reported he was carrying a gun, police said.

According to police reports, a worker at Knight Engineering, 1600 E. Davis, reported Elijah Childs, 20, was carrying a gun in the plant. Police say they found the weapon, a .38 caliber automatic pistol, hidden in a box between two machines.

A check by police revealed the weapon was reported taken in a Chicago grocery store robbery in June.

Childs was charged by Arlington Heights police with unlawful use of weapon, unlawful possession of a weapon and possession of stolen property. Chicago police are reportedly seeking links between Childs and the Chicago robbery. He is being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bond pending Oct. 19 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

A $100 reward is being offered by an Arlington Heights man for the apprehension or arrest of persons responsible for the current wave of vandalism in village parks and businesses, police report.

A spokesman for the Arlington Heights police said the man, who insisted on remaining anonymous, hoped the offer would spur individuals to come forward with information they might have.

Police said they would not judge the worth of the information supplied, but would forward that information to the man once a case has been cleared, either through a court conviction or station adjustment. The man would make the final judgment on the rewarding of the $100, police said.

Anyone with information on the vandals is asked to contact the Arlington Heights Police Department at 253-2346.

Two houses razed, declared 'unfit'

Two houses at the southwest corner of Sigwalt Street and Evergreen Avenue have been razed after being declared unfit for habitation by the village building department.

Building Director Marty Munson said the houses had been abandoned and were deteriorating.

The property is zoned for R-5 multi-family development and, because it lies within 330 feet of the central business district, is eligible for high density R-5 zoning.

However no immediate building plans for the site have been presented, Munson said.
